Time Brings Progress

Since 1890, the year Texas Normal College was established, North Texas has had six names, eight presidents and has expanded to a 300-acre state institution with a record enrollment of 10,802.

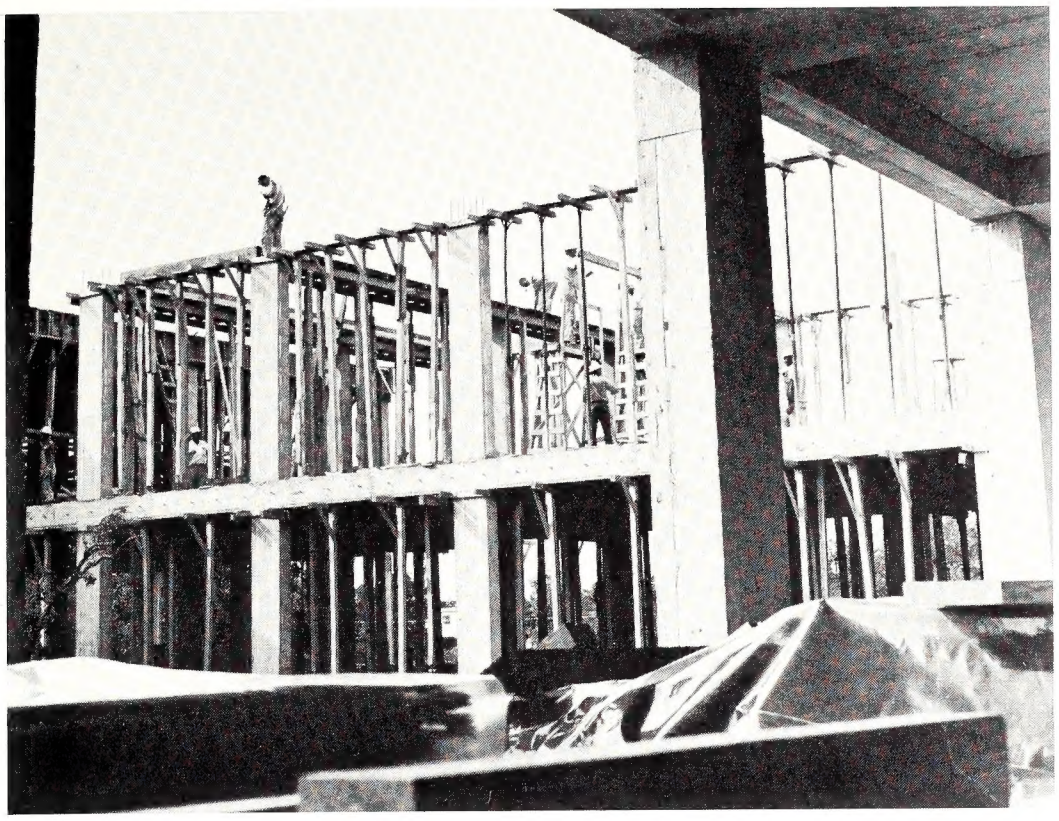

Time has brought many changes to the physical plant of NTSU. Striding through what was once the center of campus, one finds the circle of foliage surrounding "the pond" still a refuge for students seeking quiet in the midst of a hectic day. And built around this nucleus of the University grounds, 55 brick buildings house hundreds of classes on a campus which stretches for blocks in several directions.

Dotting the area in 1963-64 are signs of further progress. Maple Street Dormitory, planned at an estimated cost of $1.6 million to house 540 coeds, takes form as workmen rush to finish in time for the fall semester of 1964. A new Union Building wing, part of a $1.2 million T-shaped recreation center, rises where the "slab" once was used for Wednesday night dances, roller skating classes and paths for students to the south side of the campus.

Edifices such as the Music Building, University Clubhouse and Administration Building remain NTSU landmarks during this progress. Others, such as the newly-repaired Historical Building, are renovated and rhythm is added to the sounds of construction in and around campus.

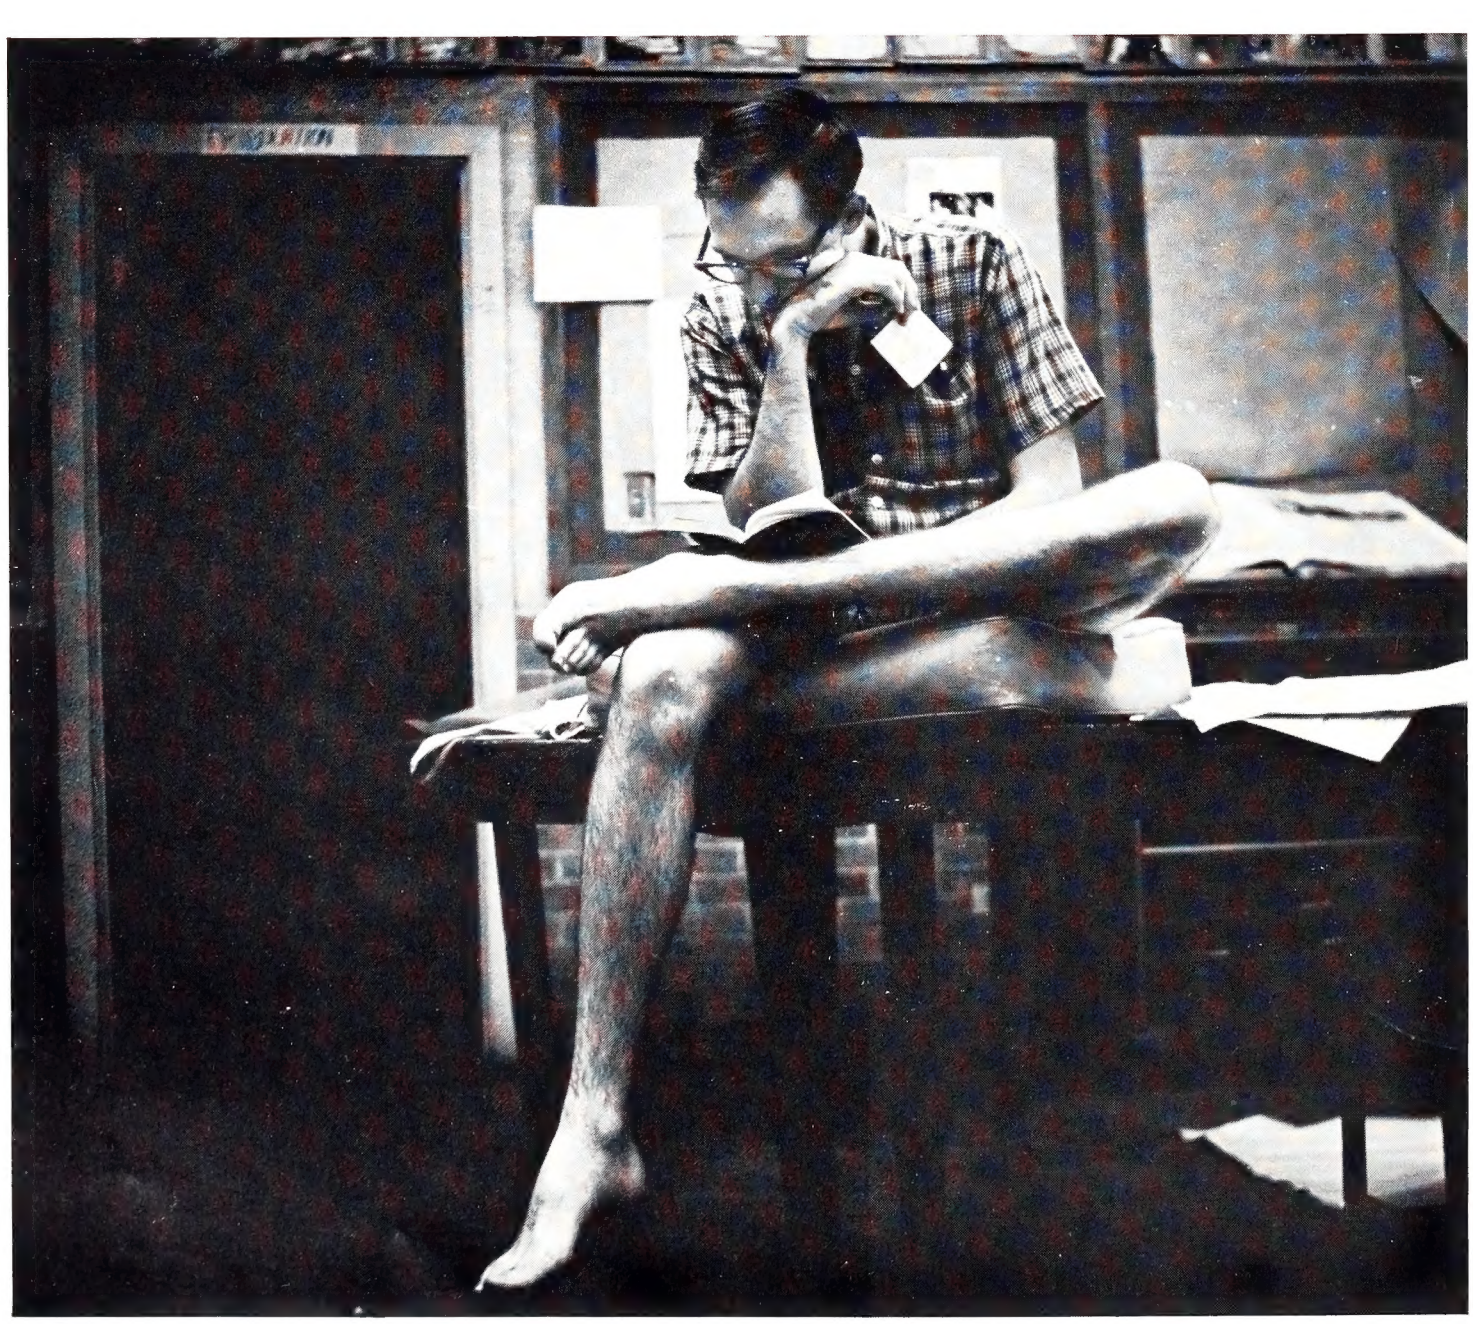

NTSU has many colorful faces . . . golden-hued bricks catch dancing rays of bright summer sunshine . . . puddles and more puddles ripple, tempting students to splash through, after a quick shower . . . purple shadows of half-finished structures play mischievously across a moonlight-bathed scene . . . multi-colored leaves, kicked at random by hurrying footsteps, create patchwork patterns in early fall . . . silver sidewalks stream through blackened lawns like silver ribbons at dusk . . . brown-flecked snow spots the grounds after the first (and usually last) snowfall . . . buildings and lawns are barren on weekends . . . classdays bring bustling activity . . . election time promotes a carnival of brightly-colored signs throughout mid-campus . . . and on and on sparkle the myriad, intricate designs of university life.

Time ticks away on the Ad Building clock. Much of the University remains the same. Much is changed. Time brings progress.

Students Devour Time

"Engaged in learning . . . devoted to study . . ."

But a student is more complex than that described by Webster. He thinks, laughs, frowns, puzzles. He does; he doesn't; he will. He lives; he learns.

The student stands apart, an entity . . . separated by sectionalism, divided by politics and economics, split by sex and having widely divergent associational backgrounds. But out of it all, the student here stands unified—a North Texan in name, spirit and activity.

From September to September, he lives in a secluded world. Suspended between a memorable past and an unforeseeable future, he walks, runs, often wades through student life—searching. Sometimes the search is for knowledge; sometimes, fun; oftentimes, identity. Individually the process takes its own route.

A collegian finds that his scholastic value differences change during his school career. Cheating on tests . . . sleeping through class . . . wasting time needlessly . . . all seem irrelevant to the learning process. The student finds he's related to the process through his actual participation, which includes absorbing and utilizing the negative and positive experiences of each minute, hour and day. The process is slow.

Along the way, moments are snatched for personality molding. Purposeful time is consumed discussing ideas, activities and people beneath a canopy of contemplation. Serious minutes are savored over an assignment, book or problem; often the time is a picture of abandonment with bare feet dangling and brows quizzically furrowing. Concentrated effort envelops the soul when one absorbs art, music or drama. Conformity puzzles; nonconformity is respected. And a small minority has already cast its personality into a hard, impenetrable mold: they look for the remnants of the "party school" tag, long dead and forgotten.

The processes of maturing and learning are identified experientially, aesthetically and intellectually. All take time. Students devour time.

Time Of Our Lives

Whirling through months of classes and study, an endless array of events dot a student's calendar with bright spots of green tradition. Athletic events, dramatic productions, Homecoming celebration, University Day speeches and awards, elections, torch marches, fraternity parties and pinnings—each is treasured for its particular impression, meaning and color.

Underlying the activities, the suitcase campus controversy appears. To migrate home or not to go on weekends is the issue. And yet, a nucleus of students savors the bittersweet events which compose the tradition and school spirit of the university.

With controversy raging as to whether the students should go or stay at week's end, the question arises: Why stay? What is there to do? The unspoken cry is: Keep us here. We want to stay. The discussion fills the year. And each year, those who want to stay find their own activity . . . their own pastimes . . . their own niche in this strange world of almost reaching maturity but not quite.

Another controversy sometimes takes precedence. It concerns why students are at North Texas—to study or socialize. One side is compelled to activate a dead past of road trips, pep rallies and football weekends. Where's that good old school spirit, they ask; where's our "glory to the green"? The other faction argues a degree is the thing; good old degree—it's a symbol now of business investment and prestige. Study, study, study, study, they insist; forget those useless activities, they just take up precious time.

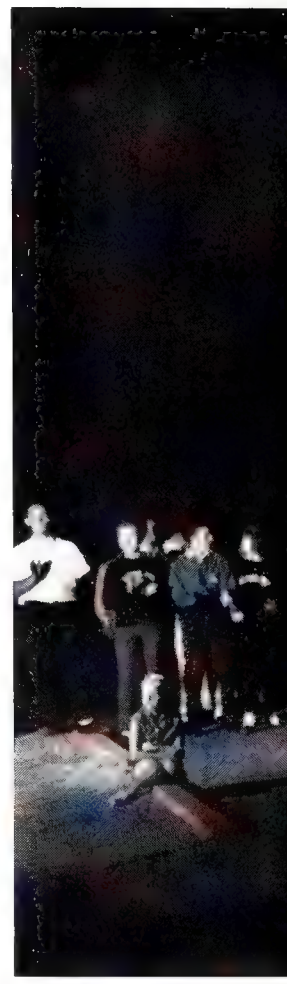

And down on fraternity row (which really isn't a row at all) the Greeks perpetuate the school spirit image of North Texas by their participation in all phases of campus life. Independents argue the Greeks wouldn't be interested if it weren't for fraternal ties. Greeks believe they wouldn't be Greeks if they weren't interested in the university. And thus the battle cries sound. Elections become a war of Independents and Greeks. Homecoming becomes a carnival of money spent, personalities and organizations matched, poor old school spirit and tradition parodied.

Yet somehow there is activity—a thread of tradition tangled up in the muddle. Somehow the students—those who want to have —have the time of their lives.

ROFESSIONAL
M.
REVUE

Administration

To 1964 North Texans:

The 1964 Yucca staff has adopted the theme "The Time of Our Lives." One is immediately impressed with the fact that there are many possible interpretations of this theme.

"Time for what" becomes the issue at point: time to spend four of our most active years on a semi-holiday; or, time to make friends who will help shape our destiny; time to become all that we had dreamed of being; time to learn the fine art of the quest for knowledge; time to develop criteria for making value judgments in all of the days which are to come; time to be less self-centered and more objective; time to be more tolerant.

As you view these pages, it is hoped that you will recall a vast array of experiences in the course of the year 1963-64 and that the controlling factor in it will be that you will come to say, "That was the year — the time — when I decided to make the time of my life count for more."

Offices Provide Personal Aids

Placement Office. The Placement Office serves as a liaison office by setting up appointments between students and prospective employers. The office aids mainly education students but maintains current files on all graduates of the University.

School administrators visit the office regularly in search of students for teaching positions.

Placement also provides up-to-date information on changing trends in various fields.

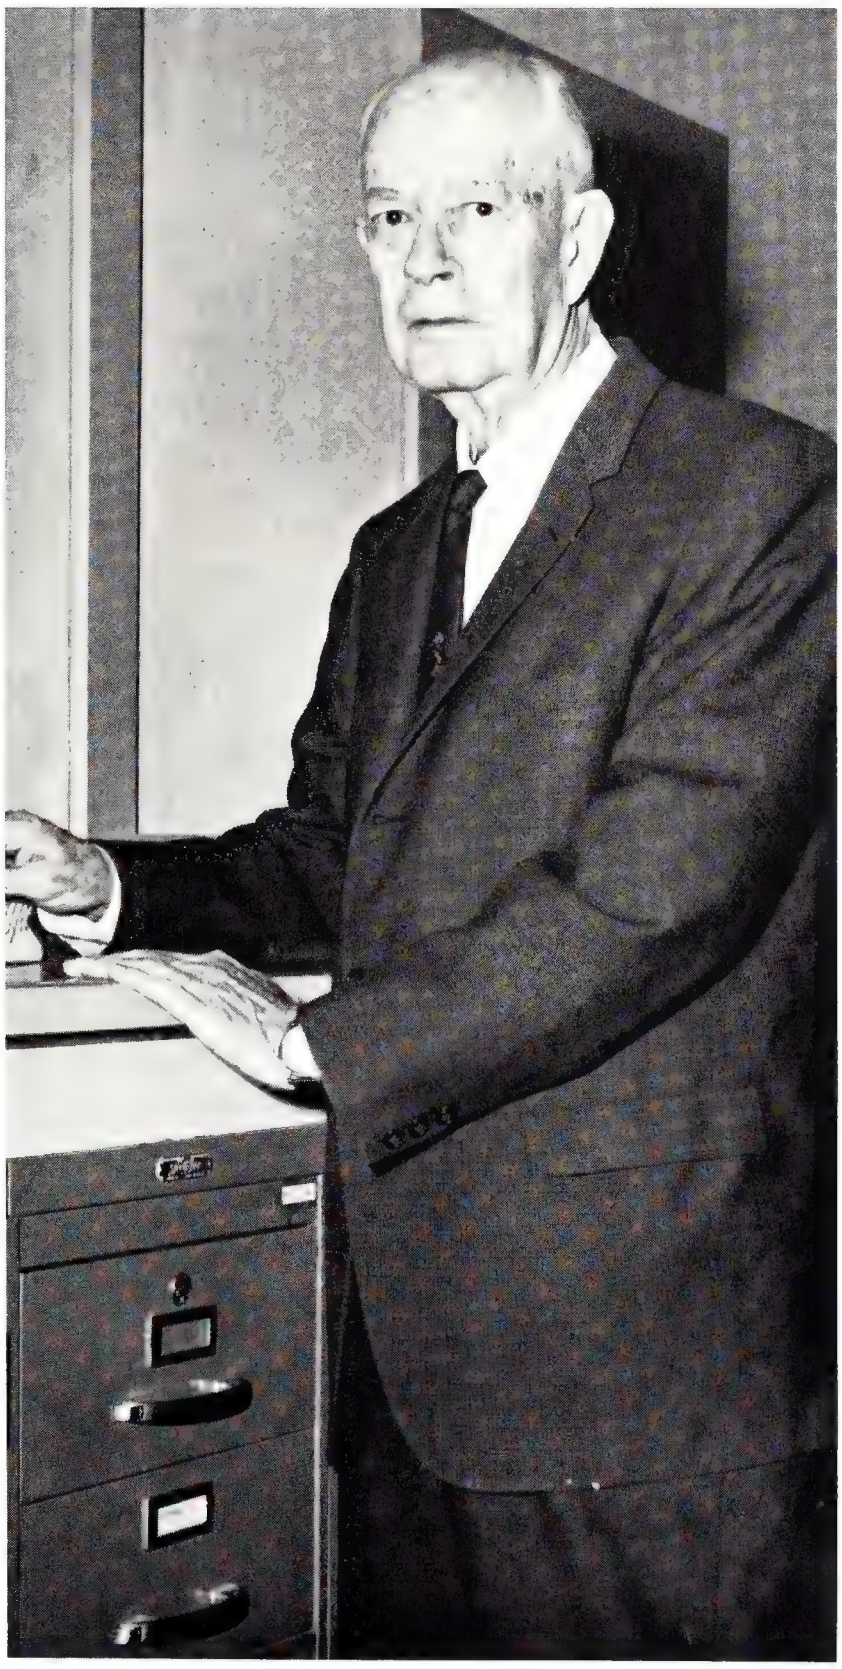

Guidance Office. Tests of ability, interest and personality may be taken in this office. The office attempts to help students who are undecided about a major field and those who need to develop more thorough study habits.

Reading courses are offered by this office for the slow reader. A student may double his reading speed and comprehension.

Business Office Officials Handle School Budgets, Fiscal Reports, Payrolls

Robert H. Caldwell, Business Manager

Comptroller. Preparing the annual financial report and budget is the responsibility of John L. Carter Jr., comptroller, who is in charge of the university's accounting, reporting and auditing.

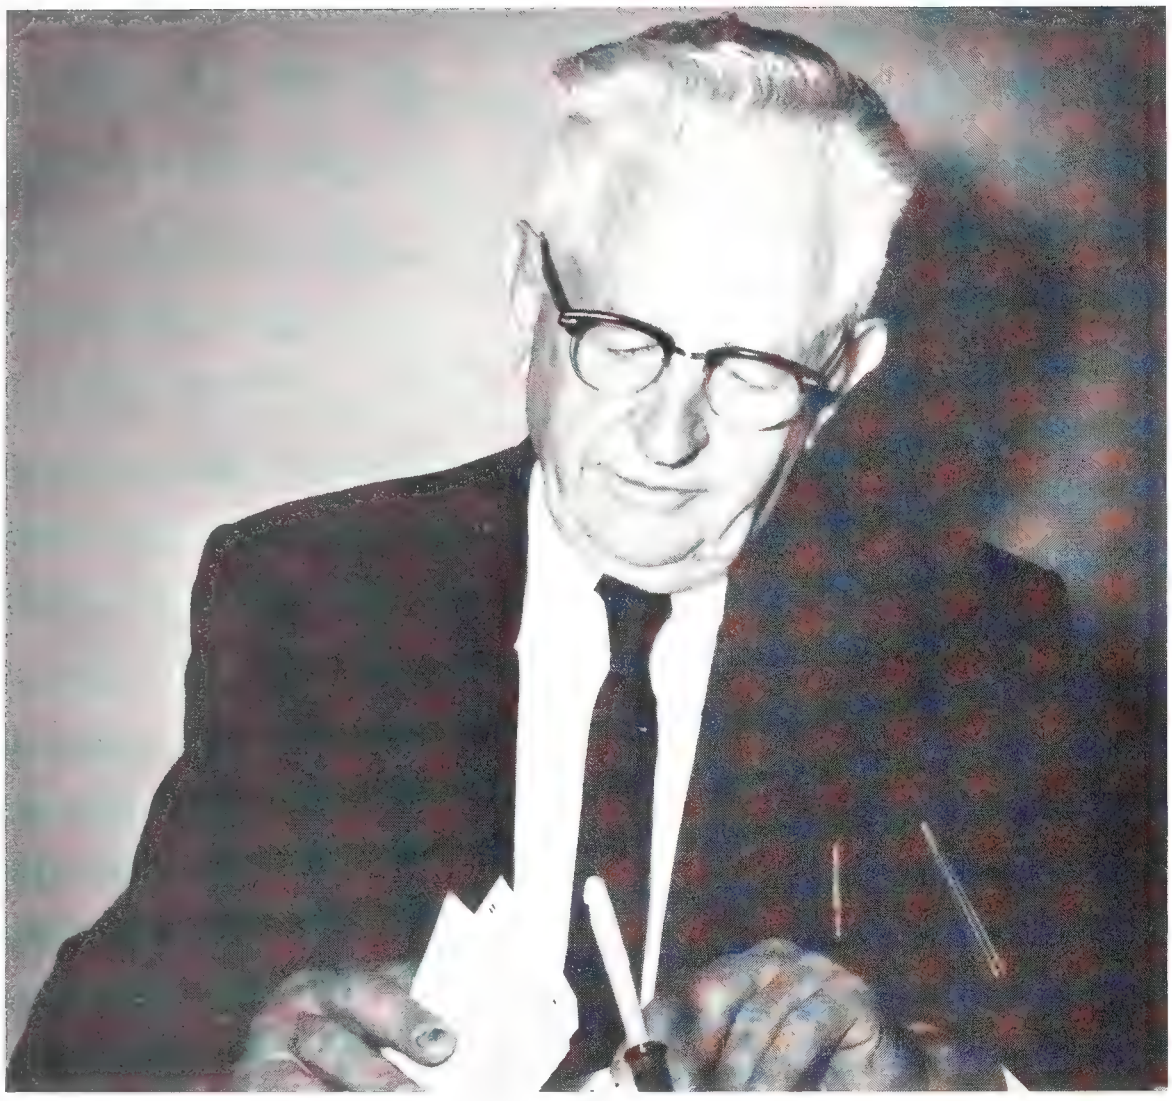

Carter, a certified public accountant, was chief accountant here prior to his becoming comptroller in 1961. He received his B.A. in 1946 from the University of Texas. Carter is a member of the American Institute of Accountants.

Business Manager. Robert H. Caldwell supervises the Business Office, issues faculty and student payroll checks and approves and accounts for university expenditures and revenues.

A North Texas ex-student, Caldwell was employed as cashier at Denton County National Bank until he was employed by NTSU in 1932.

John L. Carter Jr., Comptroller

Dr. Alex Dickie, Registrar

Registrar. In this capacity Dr. Alex Dickie is responsible for keeping permanent student records and releasing official grades and transcripts.

Before coming to North Texas in 1940, Dr. Dickie was deputy state superintendent of schools for Texas and school superintendent in Woodson. He is a member of Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars, Texas State Teachers Association and the American Association of Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Dr. Dickie received his B.A. and M.A. from Texas A&M and his doctor of education from the University of Texas.

Director of Admissions. John E. Tompkins was named to his current post in 1961 after serving as associate registrar.

Tompkins previously served two years as assistant professor of business administration and nine years as registrar and dean of students at Tarleton State College in Stephenville. He is a former North Texas student and a member of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers and Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars.

Director of Libraries. The Main Library, under the direction of Dr. David A. Webb, underwent several major additions with the creation of the education-psychology library and room and substantial additions to the children's literature collection as well as a new reading room.

Correspondence-Extension. A total of 89 courses, coordinated by Mrs. Hilda Cunningham, are offered through the two programs. Over 1,000 students are enrolled in extension courses alone.

The two programs enable persons to receive college credit for work done individually or as a member of an extension class in their own community.

'Alma Mater' Televised; Web Offset Press Means Print Shop Status Symbol

Director of News Service. Dr. James L. Rogers Jr. has the double responsibility of being administrative head of News Service while coordinating university publications.

This year Dr. Rogers supervised preparation of a television film, "Alma Mater—NTSU," depicting school history and achievements. In 1961, he received a Special Science Information Award from the Southern Regional Education Board.

Director of Print Shop. J. D. Hall supervises the Print Shop, which produces university publications. A $50,000 improvement project was instigated in 1963 with the purchase of a web offset press and a camera, plate-making accessories and auxiliary equipment used in offset printing. NTSU is among the first schools in the region to own a web offset press for newspaper publication.

Dr. J. Harold Farmer, Director of Student Union Building

Farmer, Swenson Plan For New Union Building

Director of Union Building. Dr. J. Harold Farmer closely followed in 1963-64 the construction of a new three-story $1.2 million Student Union Building. One wing was scheduled for occupancy during the spring and completion of the other set for December. The new facilities ultimately will contain five times more room than the present structure.

Dr. Farmer has full charge of UB activities: scheduling student events, supervising Snack Bar and Cafeteria operations and supplying information to students and visitors. He is also secretary of the Ex-Student Association.

Manager of University Store. The University Store will spend most of 1964 in the basement of the first new wing before it is moved into permanent quarters on first floor.

Continuing the duties he began in 1948, Andrew B. (Swede) Swenson purchases stock, cashes the inevitable student check and provides jobs for students.

Social Directors. Being "second mother" to several hundred girls is a title which could be aptly claimed by the 10 social directors for North Texas dormitories. The continuous job of supervising dorm life keeps these ladies extremely busy.

The social director for all women's dormitories, Mrs. Urcie Timblin doubles as dorm mother at Marquis Hall. She supervises placement of girls in dorms and dormitory regulations.

Currently 2,461 coeds live in university dormitories. Completion of Maple Street Dormitory in the fall of 1964 will create space for an additional 540 girls. With the exception of married women, students are required to live in approved housing.

University Hospital. Completed in 1958, the 74-bed hospital is equipped with examination and treatment rooms, X-ray and lab facilities and offices for the two full-time physicians, Dr. L. O. Hayes and Dr. Frank K. Thompson.

During the long session, nine nurses, a lab technician and an X-ray technician are required full time to maintain a 24-hour operation. Registration fees cover service of a physician and board and room while a student is ill in the hospital.

Director of Foods Service. Miss Sadie Kate Bass has the often "meaty" job of supervising purchases of food and equipment for dormitory kitchens.

Assisted by a staff of 13, she oversees the handling of food and menus in each dorm.

Equipment purchases for the new residence hall — Maple Street Dormitory—were made this year by the dietitian and her staff.

Summer 1963 Reflected

. . . a time of growth, change, happiness, new friends and older, unfamiliar students. It was a season of 7 a. m. classes, no school on Monday, quick naps in the air-conditioned library and rides in spunky sports cars. A record 5,200 students enrolled the first six weeks; 4,170 students set another record the second summer term.

Planning, organizing and building left little time for laggard living. The USNT Summer Planning Board prepared its projects for the long term. Plans to expand the university's phone system were announced. The Board of Regents approved 61 new teachers. And workmen scurrying to lay the new Union Building foundation destroyed an old friend, the UB Terrace—known to North Texans as the Slab.

A poised, careful approach, a graceful bend of the waist, a sudden stretch of the tanned body and a quiet splash: Diane Eggleston, a freshman from Dallas, demonstrates a perfect jackknife at the Swimming Pool.

Bustling Summer

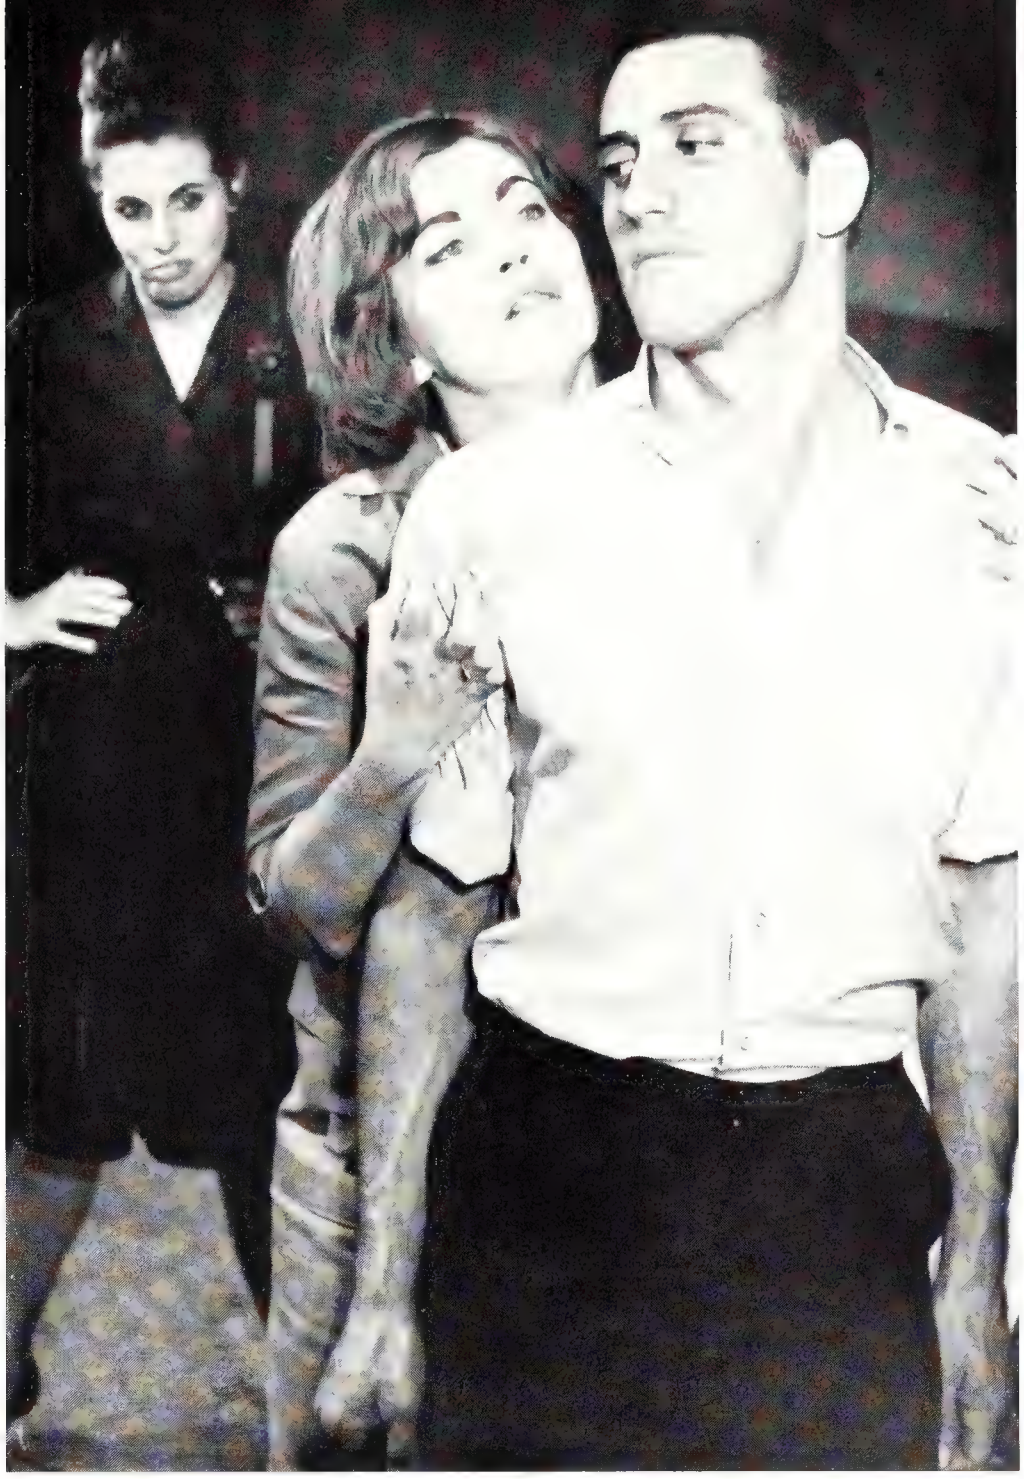

Summer floated into the university with a bubble of activity that gradually expanded until it burst with the largest graduating class in North Texas' 73-year history: 797 students received degrees, bringing the number of 1963 graduates to 1,844.

A revolving schedule of events resembled the hands of a well-kept clock—ever changing, never ceasing. New resident violinist Carroll Glenn was featured at the String Chamber Music Festival . . . Zip Code—76203—was introduced by the University Post Office . . . approval of a master's degree program for library service gave NTSU its 19th area in which such degrees are awarded . . . a $10,350,210 budget for the 1963-64 fiscal year was approved . . . Dr. Stanley K. Hamilton presented to the public a dramatized reading of his own play—an adaptation of Mary McCarthy's "Groves of Academe" . . . Dr. Chester A. Newland was named to succeed the late Dr. Sam McAlister as director of the government department . . . the Swimming Pool was seldom empty and always exhilarating.

Paul Douglas Thomas of the mathematics faculty caught the sun eclipse of July 20 by placing a sheet of paper below his telescope.

Cam Carr futilely seeks the affection of B. B. King as a jealous Melinda Brock sulks in the background in Lab Theater's No Exit, by Sartre.

Thirty-three-year-old Dr. Newland became director of the government department in July. A member of the American Political Science Association, he received his B.A. in government at North Texas in two years.

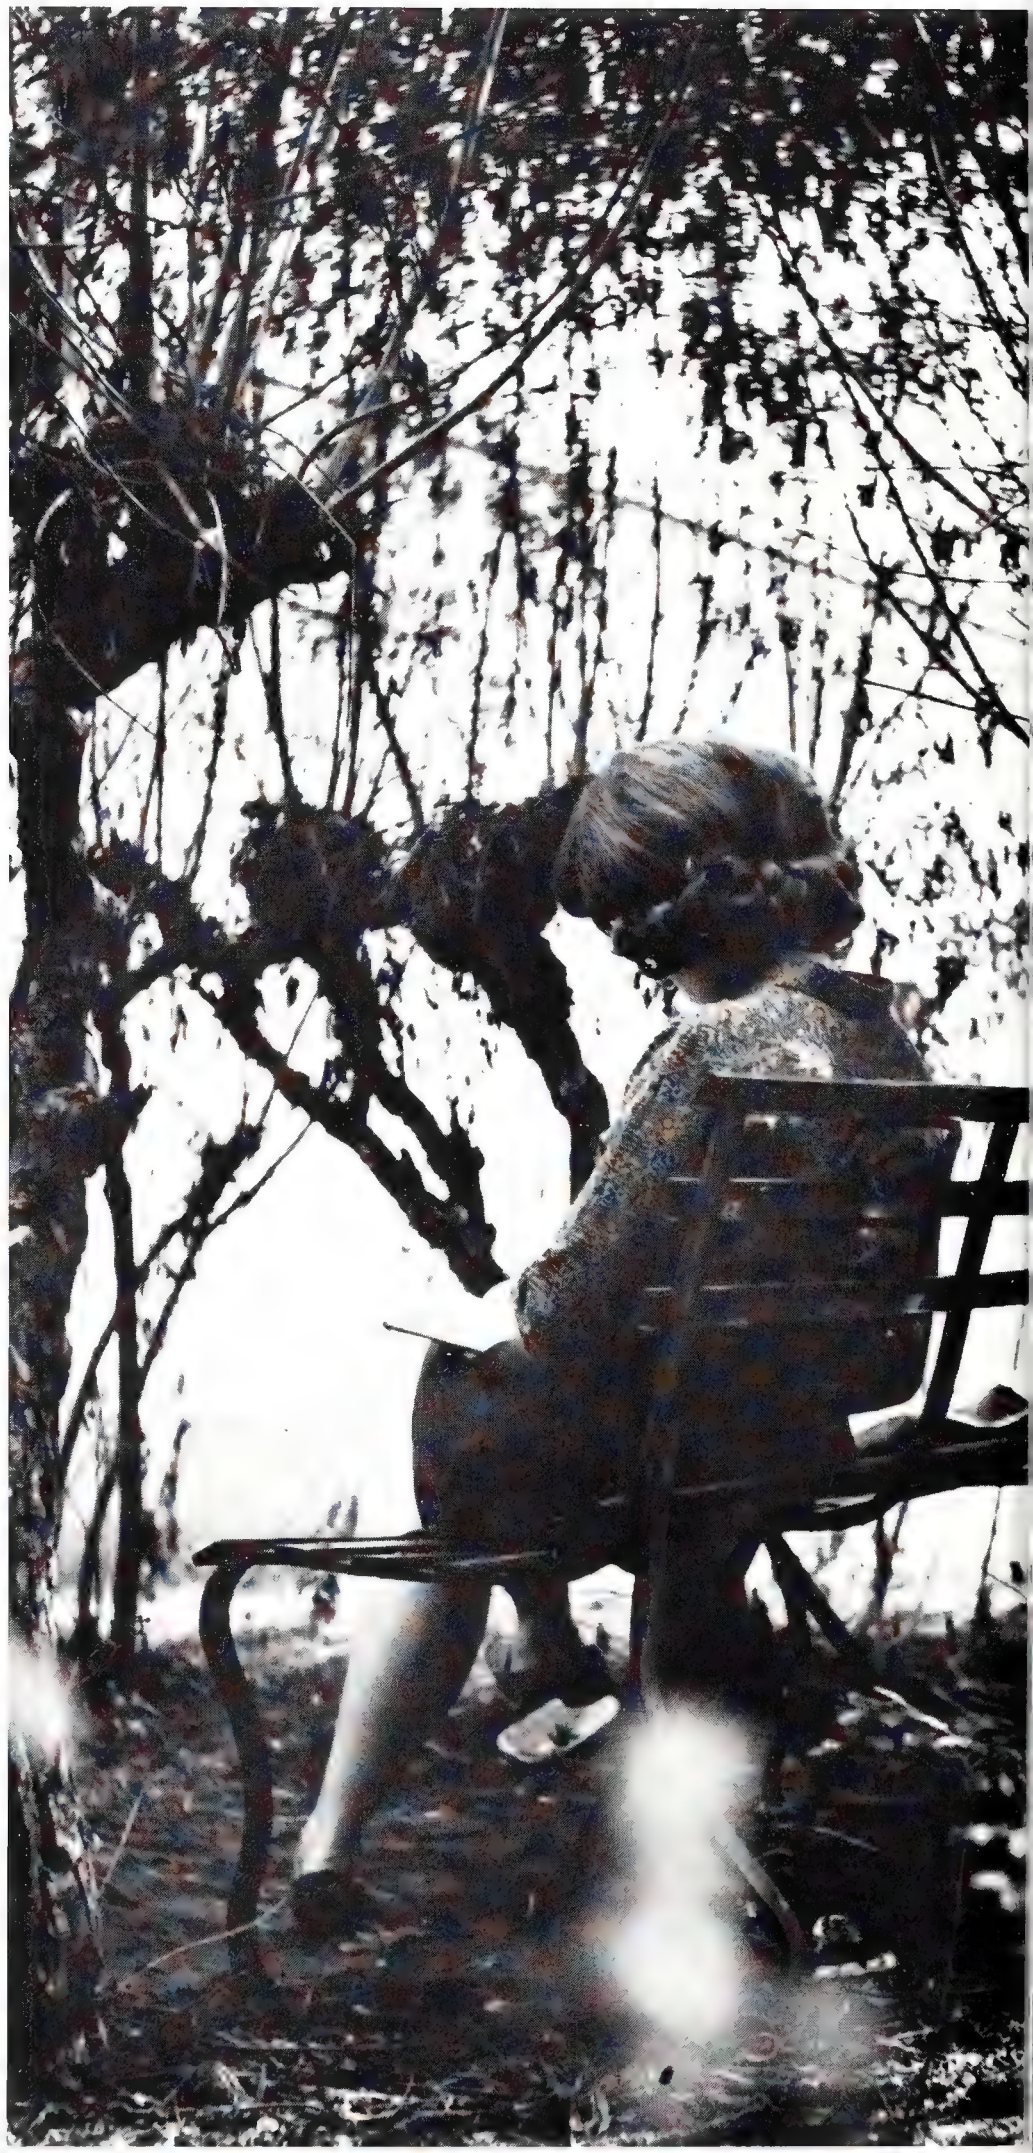

Autumn Leaves Scurried

. . . across the Indian Summer campus as shirt-sleeved students tried with difficulty to remember classes and homework. It wasn't an easy job; too often extracurricular activities looked more inviting than schoolwork. It's always like that in the fall at North Texas. The weather is stimulating and pleasant, usually until the middle of December. Many trees insist that their leaves remain on their limbs through the first month or two of winter. Very heavy clothing is hardly needed until after the Christmas holidays.

So the mild fall weather doesn't hinder North Texans when they register for classes, participate in Greek activities, make a run to Dallas or Fort Worth, elect officers or celebrate Homecoming. And there are enough short cold spells — and rough professors — to force students to study seriously.

Even though the autumn weather seldom varies from one year to the next, each fall semester's activities and events are distinctly different from the last, if only in intangible ways.

The fall semester of 1963 is a good example.

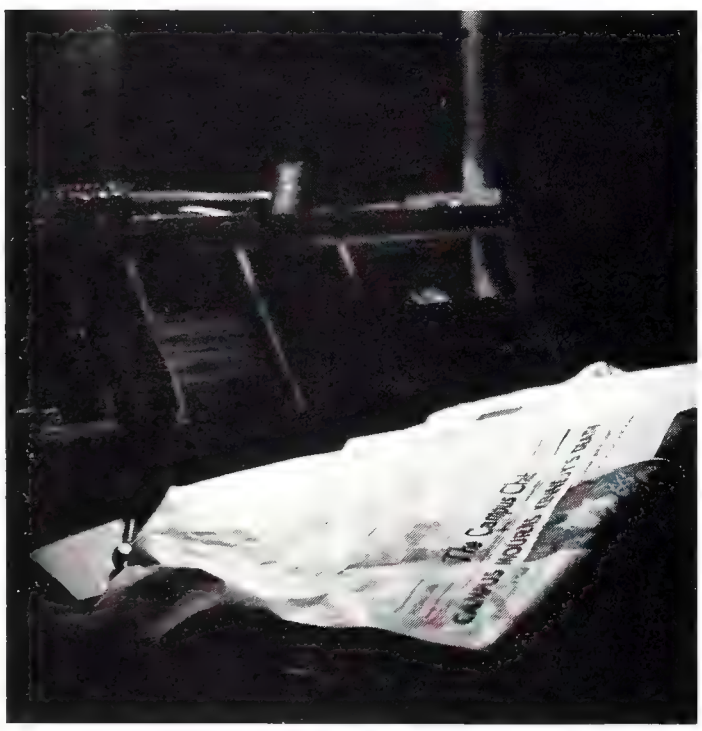

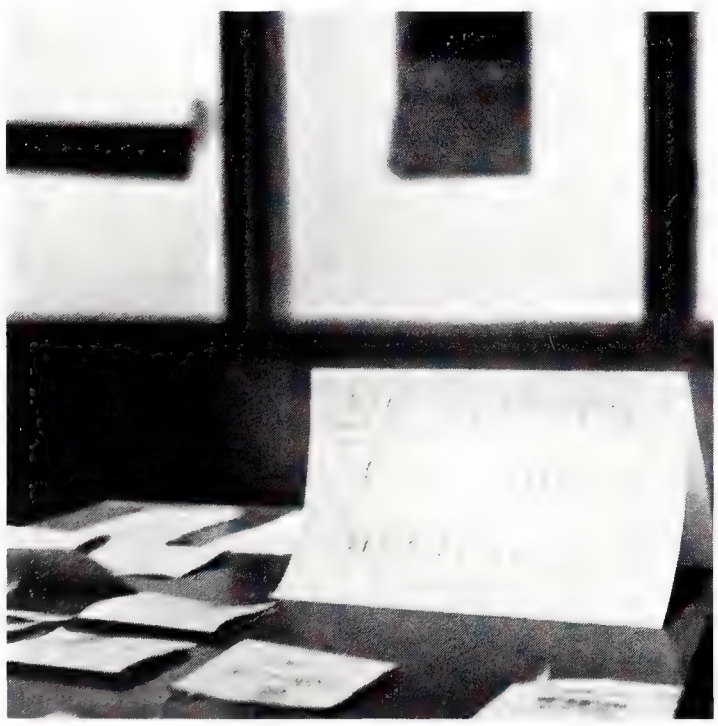

JFK

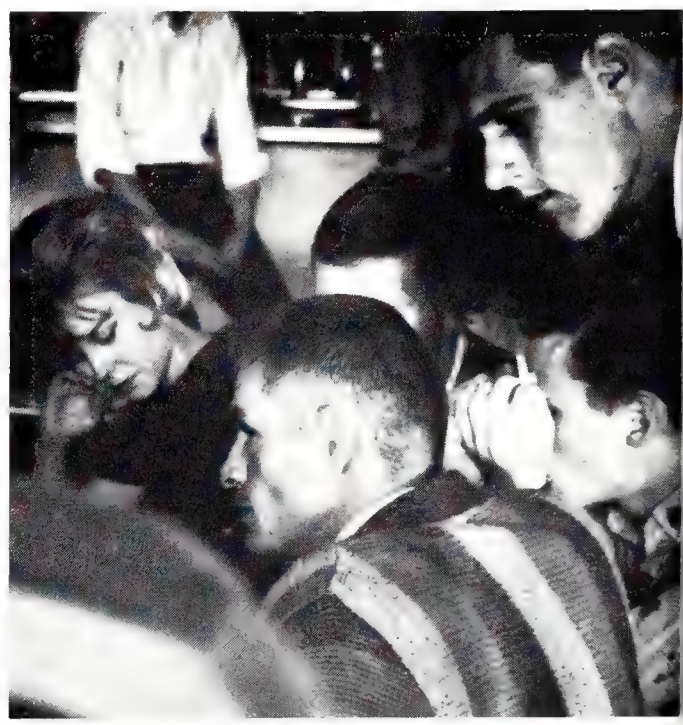

The expressive face of John Fitzgerald Kennedy (Top Right) first became famous during the televised debate series with Richard M. Nixon, vice-president of the United States under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The debates were a crucial part of the young men's presidential campaigns of 1960. Counter-clockwise, photographs taken the day President Kennedy was assassinated depict the stunned reactions of North Texas students: The Campus Chat published a rare special issue on the tragedy less than six hours after JFK died. Dejected students crowded around blaring automobile radios to hear latest news reports. Somber notes in dormitories reminded the campus that the combination Roman Catholic-military funeral would begin at noon Nov. 25 in Washington, D. C. Television, like radio and newspapers, gave North Texans thorough, surprisingly accurate, dramatic coverage.

The mist in the early-morning air of Nov. 22, 1963, vaguely suggested a somber, depressing day would unfold. There was little wind, little sunlight. But as students attended classes before noon that day, the sky gradually transformed into an amiable, cheerful blue. Sweaters and jackets were discarded, car windows were rolled down. It would be a good Friday after all.

In Dallas, just 24 miles south of Denton, the weather had been much the same.

The big city's forecast was an important factor on Nov. 22, 1963. Hundreds of thousands of people were contemplating it. They realized the unpredictable Texas autumn would affect the visit of one of the most important men in the United States and the entire world—President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 46, the youngest Chief of State the nation had ever inaugurated.

The President's stop in Dallas was part of a two-day tour covering four Texas cities. Though described as a nonpolitical visit, it most certainly had political overtones.

The previous night President Kennedy landed in his jet airliner at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth. Much to Secret Service agents' consternation, he took time to exchange a few handshakes with the curious, friendly crowd of 7,000 before hurrying to Fort Worth's Hotel Texas.

Friday morning he flew through the heavy mist to Love Field in Dallas, where he received a true Texas welcome. He joked. He grinned. He waved. He shook more hands and finally jumped in his limousine with Jacqueline and Gov. and Mrs. John Connally.

The unexpected appearance of bright sunshine boosted the already exuberant spirits of President Kennedy and the crowd. It was hesitantly decided at the President's bidding that he would travel in the motorcade to downtown Dallas in his limousine without its weatherproof top. An estimated crowd of 250,000 enthusiastic spectators stood along the preplanned route to catch glimpses of President Kennedy as he neared the Trade Mart, where a luncheon sponsored by the Dallas Citizens Council awaited him.

At 1 p.m. the President was dead.

A sniper's bullets had sprawled President Kennedy in his wife's lap and seriously wounded Gov. Connally as they waved to the excited crowd. The shots were fired at 12:30 p.m. The 35th President of the United States received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church and died at Parkland Hospital.

The stock market suffered its worst loss since Black Monday—May 28, 1962—even though it closed 30 minutes after the shooting.

On the NTSU campus, first rumors that the President had been shot came about 12:45 p.m. Students raced home, to the Union Building, to their cars—anywhere to find a radio or television. The tension gradually mounted on campus from firm disbelief to nervous dismay. A few North Texans had seen President Kennedy only a few hours before at Carswell Air Force Base. Others had welcomed him at the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce breakfast in the Hotel Texas.

Newscasters literally sobbed as they described the attempted assassination, not yet knowing if it had been successful.

It was 1:35 p.m. when radio and television made the unbelievable, frightening announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States is dead . . . "

The awful reality of the assassination took hold while a sudden wind violently whirled dead leaves across the quiet campus. Ominous clouds darkened the sky.

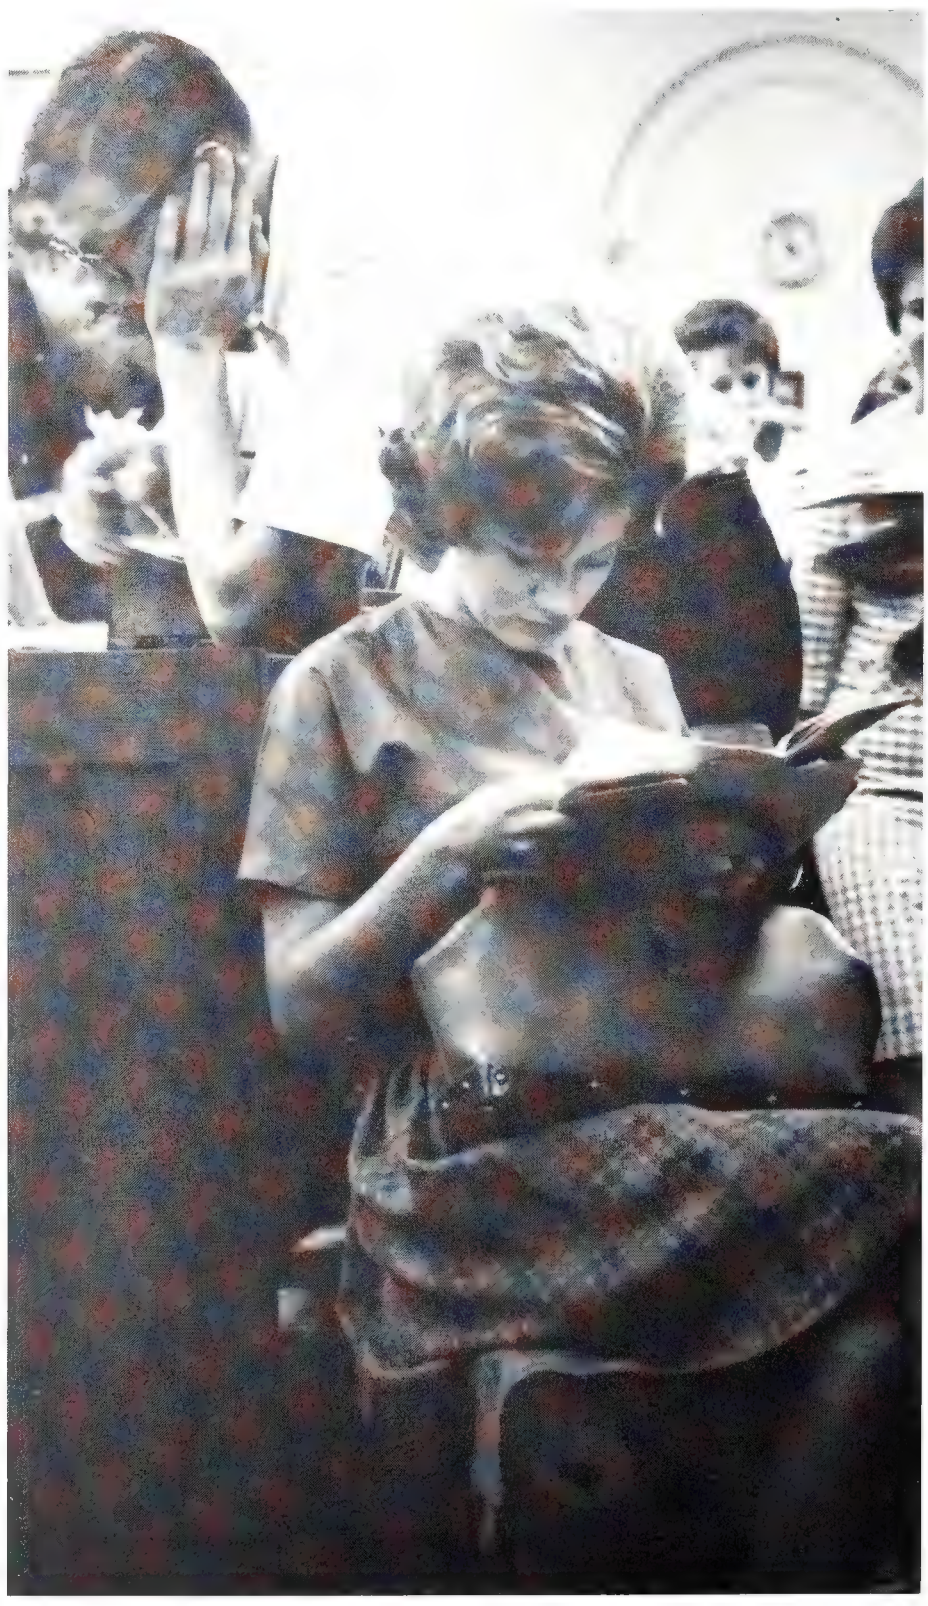

Stunned North Texans wandered limply home. It was cold that night of Nov. 22, 1963.

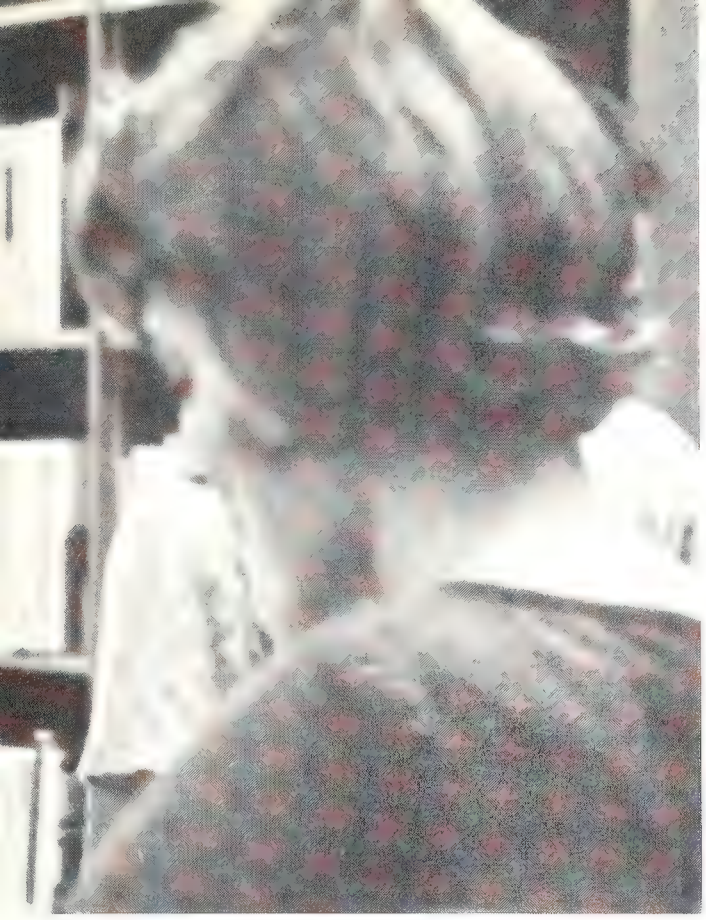

To staff photographer and top salesman Sheldon Gordon, happiness is selling *YUCCA*s. His most successful line: "Bought your yearbook yet? Why not?"

Each face the professor sees is entirely different. But always the question is the same: "Is this class closed yet?"

Two trial study lists are given each person for planning class schedules. Otherwise Denton would have an eraser shortage.

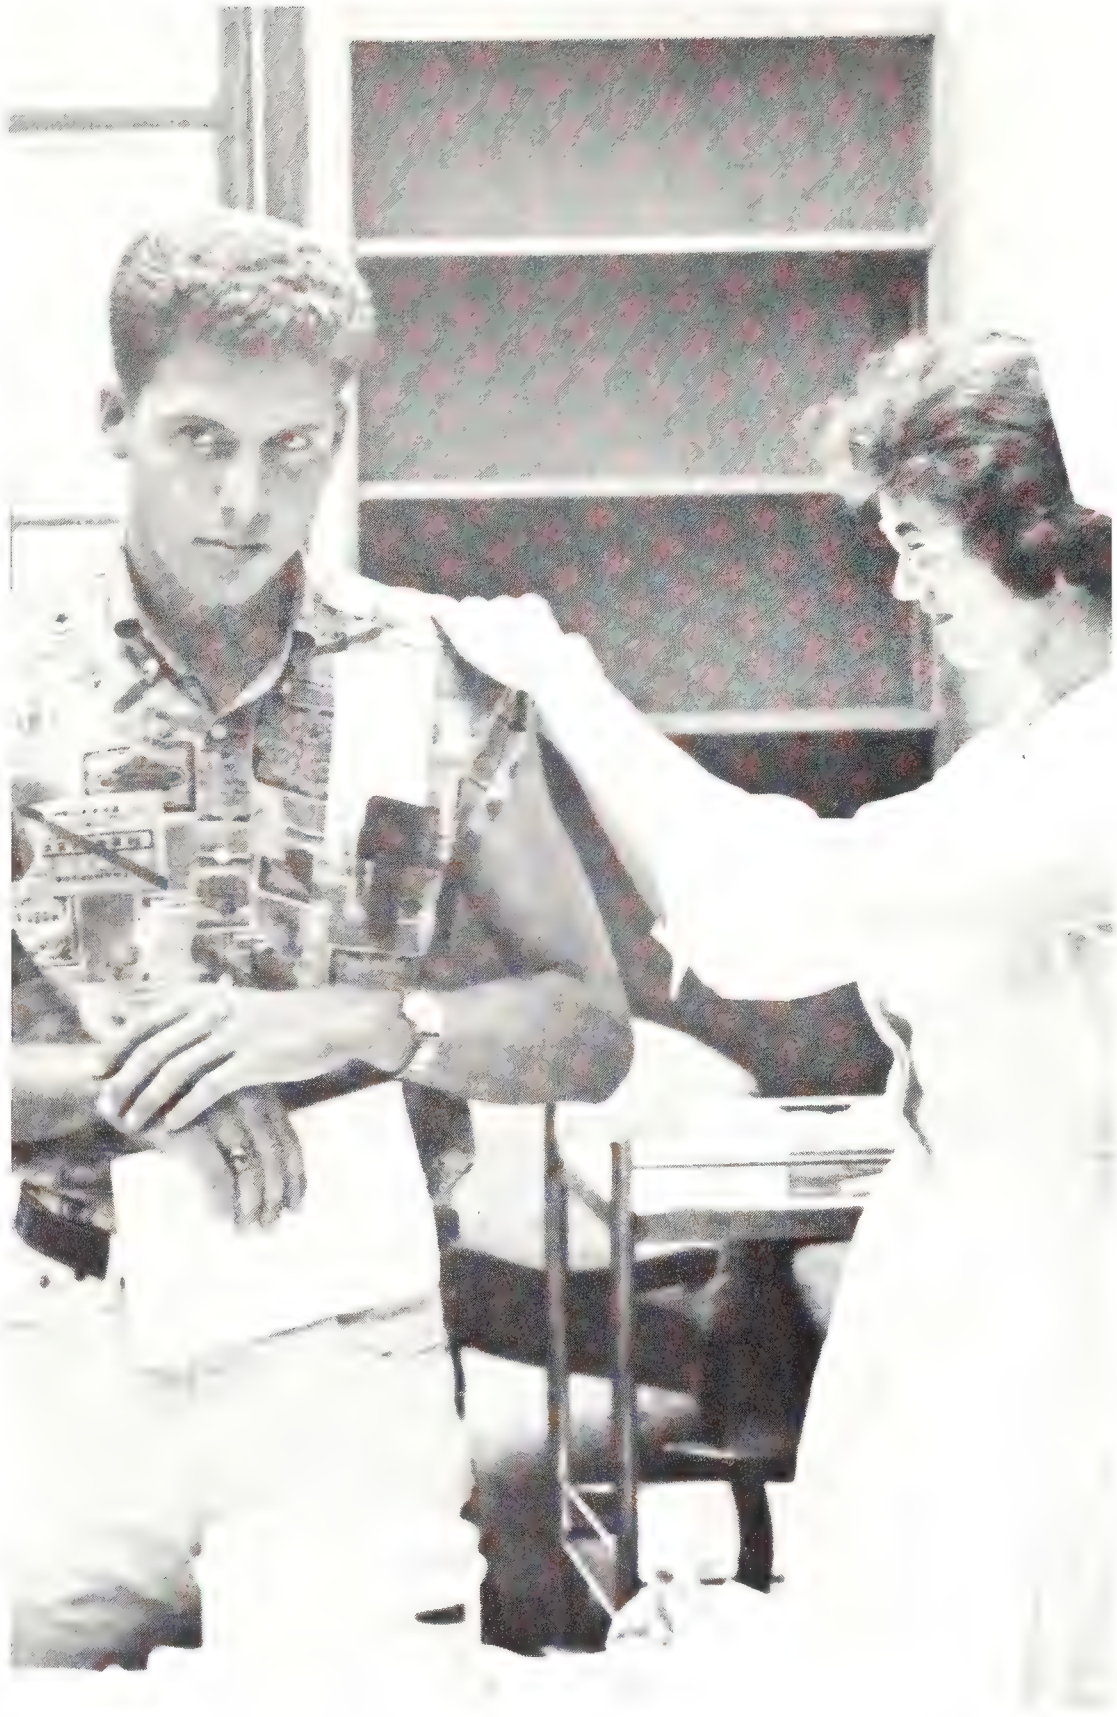

Really! Registration Isn't All That Bad

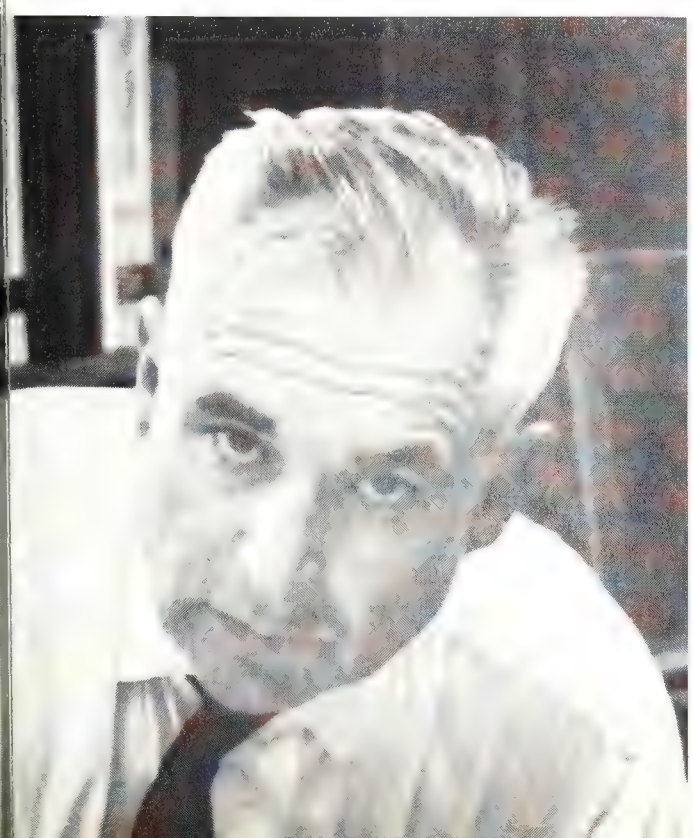

Fall registration usually makes you think of endless lines, writer's cramp, exhausted professors, sore feet, IBM cards and closed classes. But it's not really all that bad. You always manage to live through it; 10,802 other students did.

There were 881 more registrants than in the fall of '62, but they didn't have as much trouble enrolling because an improved way to process applications was used. And freshmen had it easier because better instructions were given in bulletins and special orientation programs.

There was another change, too: for the first time vehicle registration stickers were issued to all students with cars.

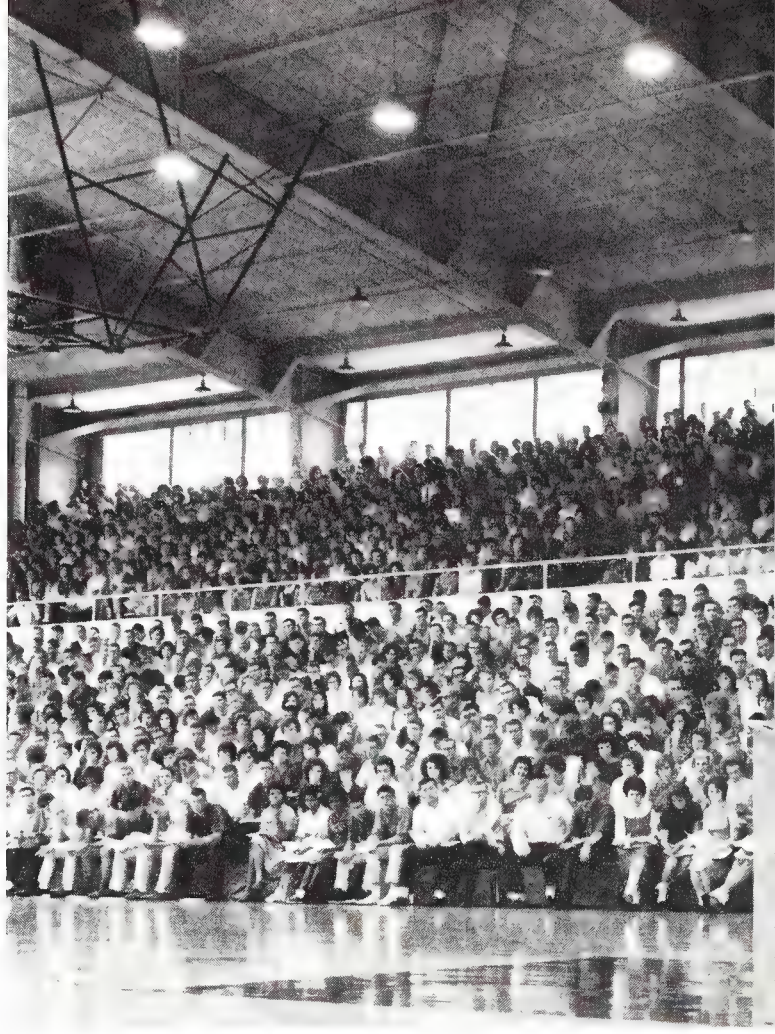

He managed to obtain a card packet, trial study list, pencils, pens—everything but proof of a successful smallpox vaccination within the last five years.

It's late afternoon and a very warm one, even in the air-conditioned library. The teacher is tired and tense. So is the student he's trying to help.

Fall enrollment figures bulged with 3,346 freshmen. In the Men's Gymnasium Dr. James L. Rogers Jr. conducts the first hour of that group's orientation.

Freshman Tom Castillon of Fort Worth, like so many new students the first day at NTSU, pauses for a second wind and a puzzled survey of his surroundings.

"Would you mind helping me out just a little bit?" this new coed seems to be asking patient Green Jackets at the Information Booth on the campus.

But She Won't Be Lonely Very Long

Upperclassmen swarmed past the forlorn freshman as she hurried toward the Union Building. She glanced at her watch: nearly 8 a.m. "Surely someone in here can tell me," she thought to herself.

She walked into the Union Building, saw the crowds of students and quickly retreated. "Too many people. I'd be too embarrassed to ask." She turned toward the Administration Building. "They'll tell me." But the lines inside that building were too long, too menacing to her.

A few minutes before 9 a.m. she saw a girl wearing a bright green jacket in front of the Music Building. A printed card on the girl's blouse read, "Ask Me."

With an attempt at nonchalance the freshman asked the girl, "Oh, say, could you by any chance tell me where I'm supposed to register? I'm sort of new here."

Much later that day the weary freshman trudged slowly back to her dormitory.

After supper she wrote a letter home. "... It's really interesting here and everybody has been just great. I can't get over how friendly all the kids are. My roommate and I get along just fine. We both bought beanies today but we don't have to wear them if we don't want to. They say the rest is easy if you can make it through registration and I did—finally. So far I'm having a swell time. Wish you were here . . . "

Look closely at those students with beanies or orientation packets. Some will be back in 1964. Others won't.

Meanwhile, Back At the Ramps

Camilla Carr isn't screaming for help. She's merely singing at an Alpha Phi rush party held in September.

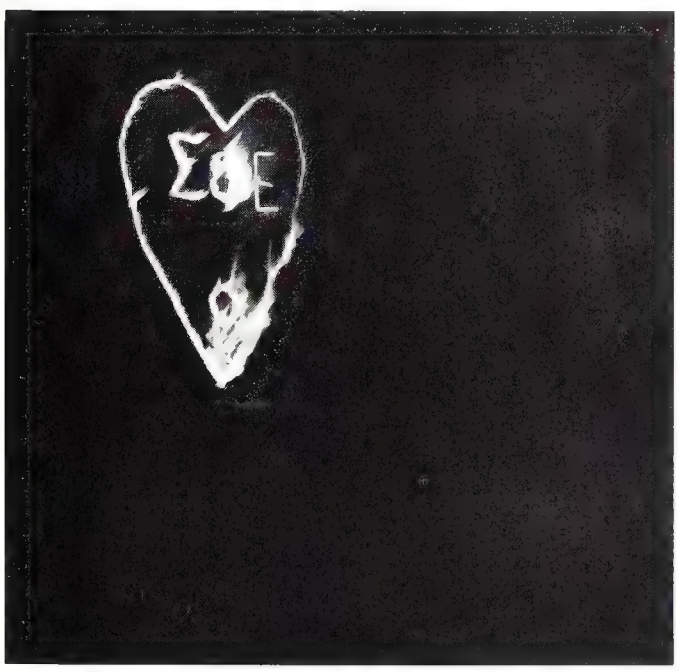

Members and pledges at Bid Acceptance encircle the Chilton courtyard, where the 1963 Sing Song winner—Delta Gamma—is the first sorority to sing. "The Lord's Prayer" is sung by the gathering after each group has presented its song.

Just clowning around, four costumed loverlies pull snickers, giggles and a few knee slappers from their sisters and rushees at a Chi Omega rush party.

Excitement, laughter and surprise highlight Bid Acceptance ceremonies on the night of Sept. 24. Members, who don't know beforehand which girls have accepted their bids, welcome new pledges at the sorority ramps.

A Sig Ep pinning of a Zeta displays the practice of burning a heart shaped like the men's pins.

The tune "Cowboy Joe" was roped into being "She's an ADPi," which Diana Person sang at a fall rush party.

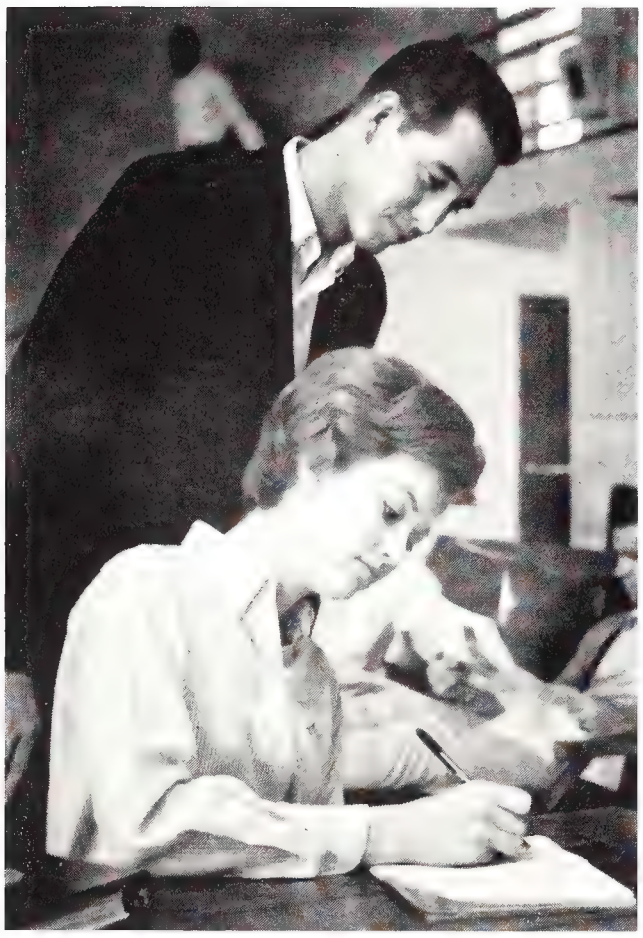

The Greek Game

In three hours Kappa Sigma pledges collected 1,400 girls' signatures—400 over required total—while calling times and temperatures from a treetop.

Quarterback James Duff Daniels calls signals in the annual Phi Kappa Sigma members-versus-pledges touch football game. The pledges were pretty smart this time. They managed to lose, 13-2.

Little black books must be filled by the end of pledgeship with pretty girls' signatures.

Pledgeship means doing odd jobs for the fraternity, like twisting hundreds of paper napkins into flowers for the Homecoming float.

Pledge acceptance, an old story to Sigma Nu actives, looks pretty refreshing to pledges.

Huge blasts from a Sig Ep rifle, a mock chase and phony tortures the day before Homecoming warned the Wichita Shockers of defeat.

Something There Is That Hates Renters

He robbed his girl friend's hope chest,
Which was full of cups and plates.
He scurried to North Texas,
Unaware of his sad fate.
Apartments stood all over,
But, alas, they were filled up.
Since dorms were not his fancy,
And commuting seemed too rough,
He ran all over Denton trying to find just one tiny room—maybe even half a room—and finally found one for 20 bucks-a-week two miles away owned by a nice little old lady who never drove her car over 95 miles-an-hour except when it was time to collect the rent. Moral: Better bring a tent to school, just in case.

When you don't care to watch the ball game or see a show, you just sit in the dorm and talk. That's the fun of college life.

A total of 350 boys can live at University City, one of the largest, most lavish apartment complexes in Denton. A pool and 129 apartments are available.

Whether a student lives in a room or an apartment, he always has to wash. Result: boredom.

Abstract art by Dutch Kepler and his three roommates is on sale at their Chestnut Street house dubbed "The ABC Art Gallery."

Each of the 10 girls' dormitories has at least one television. Every weekday afternoon those sets hum with soap operas.

TOP: Married students quickly learn the expensive problems of shopping in supermarkets.

BOTTOM: Graduate Apartments, which student couples may rent, are modern and efficient.

Uninspired Campus Straggles to Polls

Unimaginative campaign signs littered the October campus and USNT officials predicted a record 3,000 voters. A total of 173 students sought places as class officers, USNT senators, freshman cheerleaders, Women's Forum representatives and Homecoming Queen. The Independent Students' Organization created interest in the ho-hum election by sponsoring an all-candidate rally in the Howdy Room. But only 2,173 students —the worst percentage vote in USNT history—made it to the polls.

Spotlights on the BSU tennis court provide ISO President Jeff Crossland, Don Edwards and Karan Burton with enough light to stretch canvas for their enormous signs supporting ISO candidates.

Campaigners rush to erect their signs, which the USNT requires to be in constant repair.

Coeds had few qualms about appearances when making signs in support of their candidates.

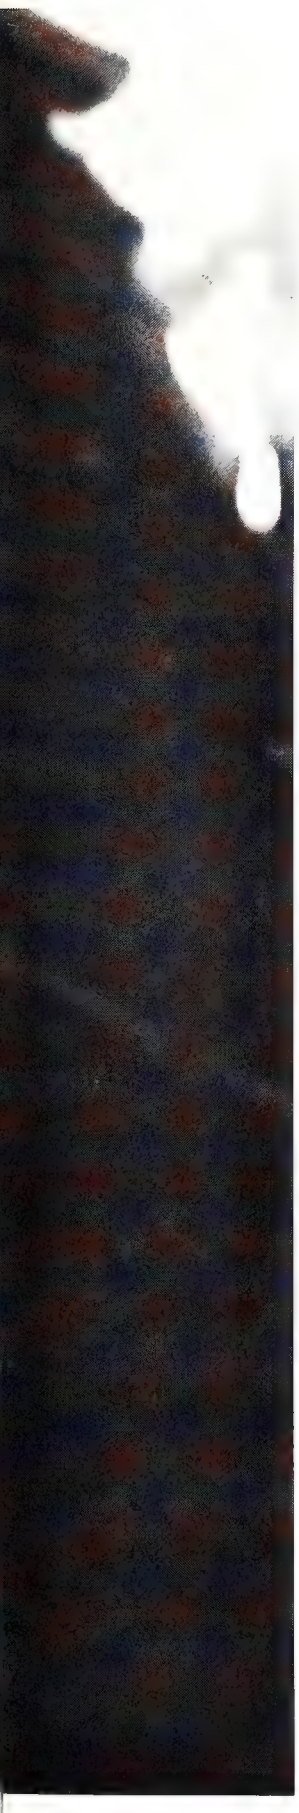

A few firm whacks and the first stake takes root. The next steps: finish building the election sign, campaign a lot and then hope.

Blazing patterns of fiery light swirl behind cheerleader Judy Philbrick as she shouts and applauds with fellow students at the 1963 Homecoming bonfire.

Bonfire Ignites Homecoming

Bonfire plans kindled some of the first strands of enthusiasm as Homecoming weekend, Oct. 25-26, glowed in the near future. A week beforehand Talons urged freshman cooperation in lugging wood to the west parking lot of Fouts Field for the rally daring the Wichita Shockers to face NTSU's Homecoming spirit. The wood had gradually dribbled in by Thursday evening, and so had a nonchalant autumn rain. Freshmen and Talons spent the night guarding the wet woodpile, which was still damp Friday. That night Homecoming Queen Carolyn Deuback had real trouble when she pitched the first torch at the soggy heap; she simply couldn't persuade the defiant pile of wood to burn.

But a sudden burst of flames finally forced the bonfire crowd away from the huge woodpile. Photographers frantically danced around the fire, happy cheerleaders squealed with the spectators, children stared in fascination and the Wichita Shocker—a straw dummy—fluttered from atop the heap in the form of lonely ashes. Homecoming had officially begun.

Saturday's events stressed the Homecoming theme, "Emphasis '63." Ex-students realized—as the Campus Chat noted—that "old NT, she ain't what she used to be."

NTSU continually changes, constantly improves. New buildings cast their shadows on the campus. More courses are offered. Enrollment surges. The school's mood shifts; its tone varies each year. But Homecoming seems always the same—exciting, friendly, exhausting, wonderful.

Flames dart skyward and collegians retreat; but younger spectators sneak another look before running from the heat.

Pedestrian Parade

Expectant spectators evidenced unlimited enthusiasm before the 1963 Homecoming parade began its long trek from Fouts Field through downtown Denton. But somehow the floats themselves failed to reflect the same exuberant spirits. The parade was planned well enough. And statistically it was impressive: 24 floats and seven bands were entered. But the crowd seemed to keep waiting for the big, elaborate float—which never appeared.

Kappa Sigma fraternity introduced some humor with its float, "Disney's World — Explosion of Knowledge," which included two pledges dressed as Donald Duck and Pluto. Another pledge wore a Mickey Mouse costume.

Aladdin's lamp, exotic colors and three pretty girls helped Delta Gamma sorority's float, entitled "Three Wishes for '63," win the award of most beautiful.

The sweepstakes award was given to Zeta Tau Alpha sorority for its float portraying a bee stretched comfortably on the petals of a bright red flower.

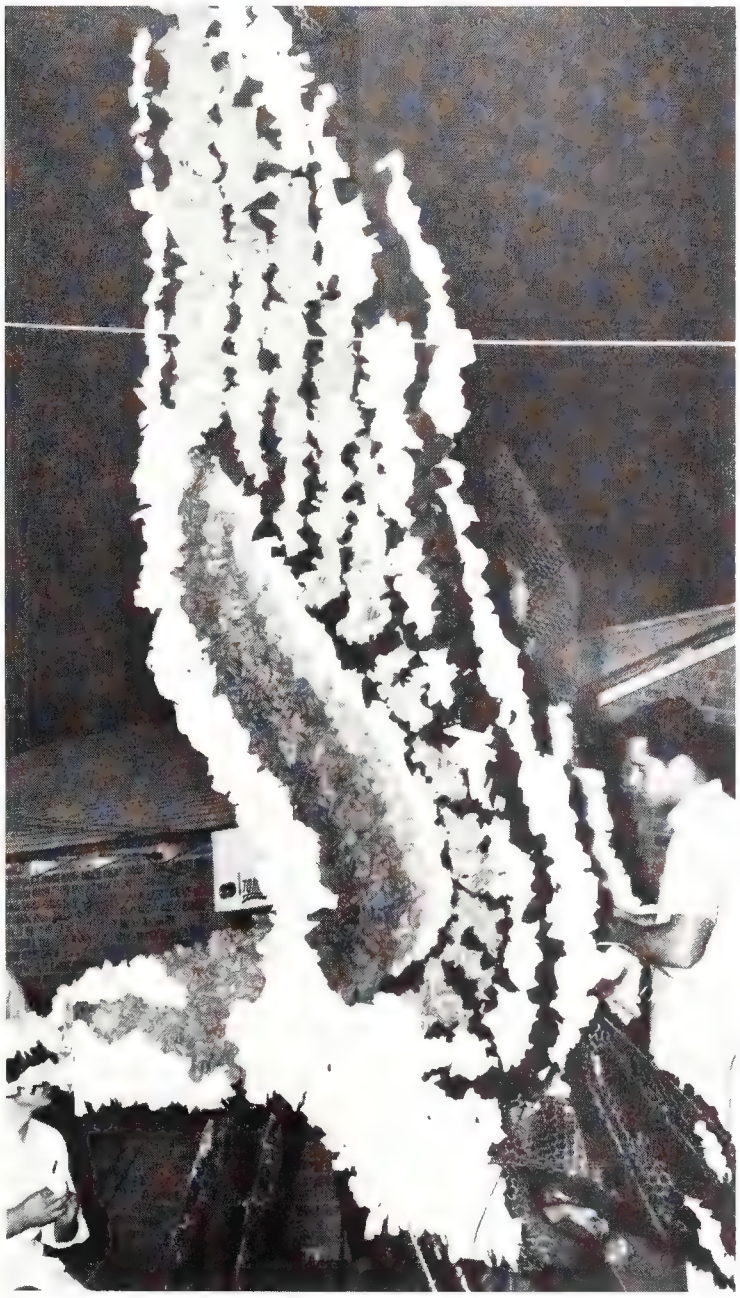

Elephant jokes hog the scene as this beast and its mousey pal add fun to Kappa Sigma's float.

Kappa Alpha fraternity's figure of a scholarly eagle feeding a Wichita Shocker to her eaglets won first place in the house decoration contest.

Cadet Lt. Col. R. D. Brookshear walky-talks before the parade, helping all go as planned.

With a few more tail feathers, Lambda Chi's eagle will be ready to enter the house decoration contest.

Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity received the honorable mention award for its decoration of a green-and-white eagle perched on a senior ring.

Maturity and youth seek the same goal: defeat Wichita. Coach Mitchell, with six straight Homecoming victories in mind, anticipates another.

TOP: When the Eagles threaten Wichita, the little girl cheers. When they don't, she looks at the cute boys sitting behind her.

BOTTOM: Boys see a football game differently, devoting all their attention to the players and seriously discussing each play.

Good Timing

The players were pretty considerate the first 50 minutes or so of the game. Wichita scored three points in the first quarter, but otherwise the teams let the crowd of 14,000 rest awhile. They probably knew the spectators wanted to relax and gossip and predict who won the float and house decorations contests.

After the half, the sun got hotter and everybody — even the players — got tense and sweaty; NT homecoming enthusiasm climbed back up its perch to its regular height. The clock only had a minute and 48 seconds on it when the Eagles decided to go ahead and win and get it over.

A radiant Carolyn Deuback is crowned Homecoming Queen by USNT President James Killingsworth. In the summer, the sophomore was in the finals of the Miss Texas Contest.

Success has relieved the tension of Coach Odus Mitchell, left. As he relaxes at the late-afternoon barbecue, President J. C. Matthews congratulates him.

Stage show talent came from all sources, and the majority was in the form of folksingers like Steve Fromholz, Patti Lohman and Mike Murphey, who sang "Man of Constant Sorrow."

Finally: Exhaustion

Even the old-timers didn't realize how tired they were until after the game. When they stood in line for the barbecue in the Men's Gym, their shoulders drooped a little, and they didn't seem quite as boisterous as before. They shook hands with other exes and reminisced a bit. "Saw J. C. Matthews while ago," someone said. "He was a sophomore when I graduated . . ."

A few hours later, exes and present students viewed 'Fessor Floyd Graham's stage show. Guitarists and folk singers monopolized the show, but a magician and a ventriloquist sneaked onstage between bursts of music.

For some exes and many students, a dance and a few parties were the next projects. Exhaustion and heavy sleep followed.

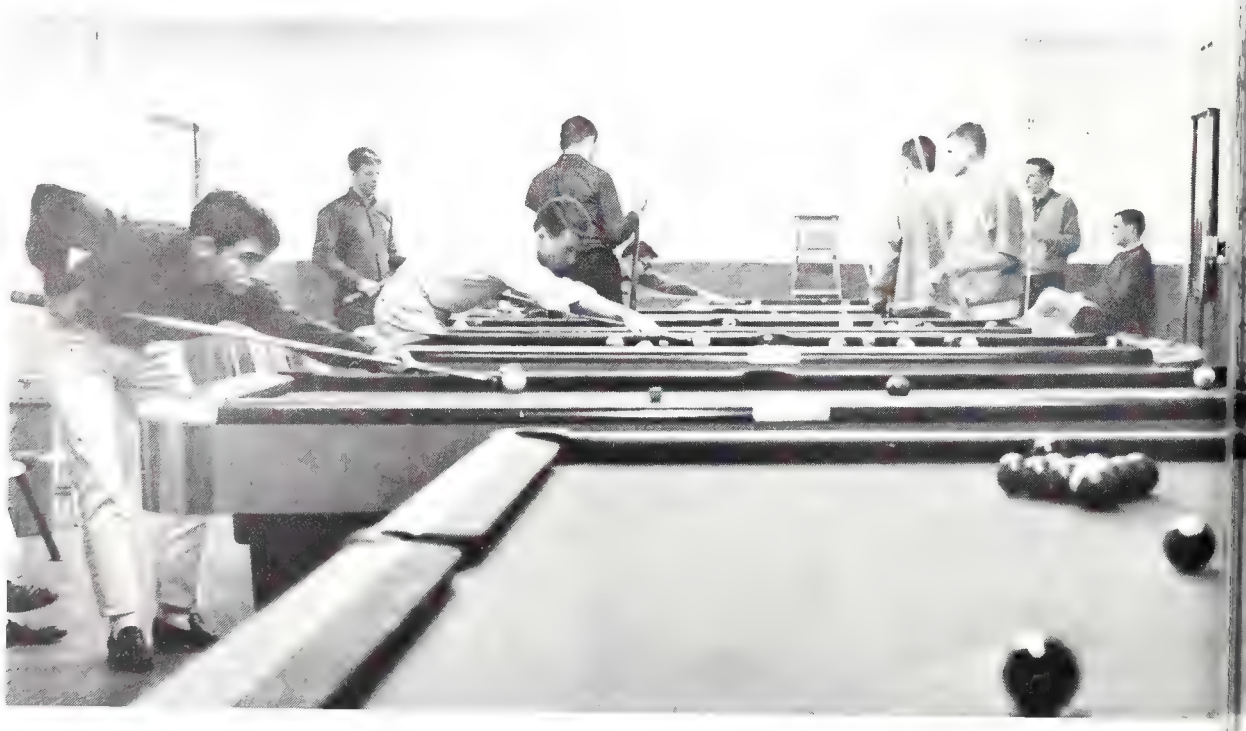

Banjo strings glisten in the glare of the spotlight as folksinger Joe Downs presents a lusty "Rock Island Line."

"He's the woodenhead in this crowd," Baylor University ventriloquist Lee Dean's dummy confides to 'Fessor Graham, left, and the snickering audience.

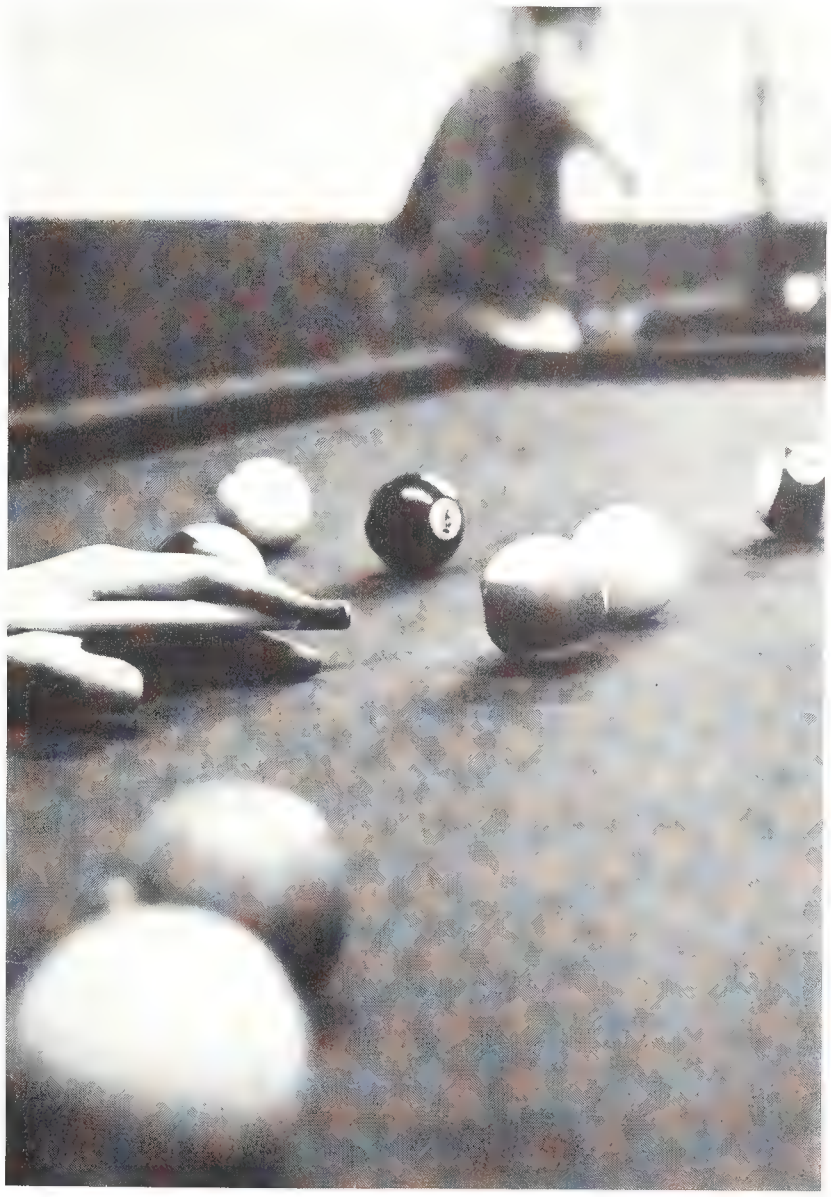

A sudden explosion rips across the mint-green table when the balls are "busted." Pool halls are inspected regularly by local police for gambling, alcohol, persons of low character and players under the 16-year age limit.

The clack and clatter of pool balls — heard each day except Sunday from 8 a.m. until midnight — filled local halls even during the week of final exams.

Body English and concentration may help the female beginner hit the "cute white ball with the funny-looking stick" she found in University City's I Cue. Coeds remark they are amazed that pool halls can be really neat and clean.

Pool and snooker have hustled their way into the public eye, finally erasing the social stigma once attached to them.

How About Pooling A Few Resources?

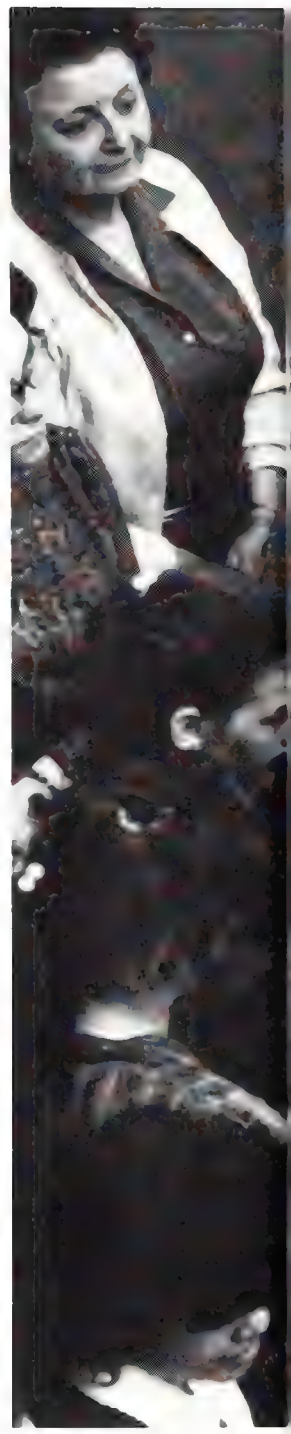

So it's Friday night, you don't have a date, you want to get outside awhile but it's too cold to go anywhere but inside, you can't find anyone who likes to bowl and you've lost the keys to your car. Well, you can always go shoot pool.

It wasn't always that simple. Until Sept. 10 you couldn't chalk a stick anywhere except at TWU. But at last an ordinance scratched out that problem, providing for the licensing, control and taxation of pool halls in Denton. Businessmen soon took the cue, installing tables everywhere, even in a local washateria.

It's surprising how much the halls have added to the more collegiate atmosphere that North Texas has finally racked up. And it's interesting to watch girls play pool. Now, you can look at that situation two ways: (1) It's a definite sign that women have taken over everything; or (2) a surprising number of girls don't have dates on Friday night, they don't care to bowl, they don't own a car, they want to get outside but it's too cold to go anywhere but inside . . .

The tune "Dixie" is hidden in a Swiss music box disk which Mrs. Mabel Kingsbury, assistant in charge of the Historical Collection, shows Mrs. H. G. Shands' sixth graders.

While viewing an old-fashioned printing press, the Sam Houston Elementary School students exhibited varying degrees of interest. Few yawns were heard.

An African harp is the subject of Mrs. Kingsbury's speech. In the display case the class found a Bolivian battle horn and Oriental flutes and violins.

A Visit to the Museum Through Children's Eyes

Hi! My name's Donnie. I'm in the sixth grade at Sam Houston Elementary School. My teacher's name is Mrs. Shands and one time we were studying the Orient and she decided to take us to the museum at North Texas. We saw an awful lot of old things from Japan and China and we saw some old stuff from other places too, even Texas, like an old spinning wheel. This nice lady named Mrs. Kingsbury works in the museum and she showed us some dolls from all over the world. I didn't like the dolls too well but the girls sure did. I guess the best thing to me was this suit of armor. I still don't see how you could ever get up if you fell off of a horse with that thing on.

And Then Came Winter

. . . with hints and murmurs of wind-torn days and snow-dabbled weeks. Premonitions of an unusually energetic winter became reality to North Texas as it settled to sleep the first night of the 12-day Christmas vacation. A thin layer of snow chilled a few relentless tree leaves, painted sprigs of mistletoe and frosted the nearly deserted campus grounds.

Memories of the holidays barely had time to fade before a second snowfall dashed into Denton. This time the white fluff piled higher, packed better, lasted longer, looked prettier. It tasted good, too. Between snowball fights, imaginative students here and there made snow ice cream.

After the traumatic week of finals, those on campus between semesters probably slept late in the morning, wore light sweaters in the day and ambled downtown at night to view Cary Grant in Charade.

The following three days of registration meant little sun, too much drizzling rain and very little warmth. Some saw the weather as a foreboding sign: It looked like a rough semester ahead.

Suddenly bobby socks, tennis shoes and even good old loafers were old hat. Boots stepped in and gained footing as important accessories to coeds' clothes.

Some people never learn. Like this fellow. He may not want to admit it, but sometimes a golfer must give up his game.

Art students discover in snow a rare opportunity to be snow woman sculptors.

Students were pelted in one way or another — either with light snowflakes or hard snowballs.

Simple outdoor Christmas ornaments chilled by icicles epitomize winter's beauty.

Winter Surprises

The soft surprise of early snows accented the winter moods, tones and peculiarities. As the new UB lost its skeletal appearance, students became increasingly conscious of classwork.

Collegiate fads brightened the campus and gradually faded: Sleek boots became the feminine vogue, and Tom Swifties and elephant jokes were forgotten.

While students became aware of the Campus Chat's new offset press, they read about plans by NT and four other Denton-Dallas-Fort Worth universities to coordinate higher education and graduate work and research.

The university's image was strengthened in mid-January when its basketball game with Wichita was televised and later that month when the A Cappella Choir, sponsored by the State Department, began its tour of Europe.

And campus nicotinites chain-smoked through the surgeon general's report on cigarettes.

Popular underclassman-like games include "See How Many Car Windshields We Can Splatter" and "Let's Try To Hit Everyone Who Wears Glasses."

The cigarette scare soon burned out, apparently affecting few students.

Sonia Heros, sophomore from Cuba, and Bill Aslan, graduate student from Iran, spoke to Baptist Student Union members in the fall. Miss Heros reminded her audience Cuba is under the complete dictatorial power of Fidel Castro. (Miss Heros and her family slipped out of Cuba in 1959. Guerrilla fighters now use the Heros' home for a training camp.) Aslan compared the American public education system to his native country's, noting that in Iran school is conducted throughout the year.

It's A Thing Called Religion

It always floats into the conversation unexpectedly, taunting the group until someone boldly attacks it. It's a thing called religion, an intangible something one feels compelled to contemplate. In a single small group of students, one may find an agnostic, a deist, an atheist, a semihedonist, an existentialist. He may find a Catholic, a Jew or a Protestant. And occasionally will be found an individualist who claims he doesn't bother to worry any more about religion, who says his philosophy is that of having no philosophy.

At NTSU, the general attitude toward religion appears to be fairly liberal. Opposing opinions are discussed freely and objectively. The more intelligent, mature student isn't offended when someone begs to disagree; others' views are respected.

Spasmodically, the vague line between religion and philosophy stimulates collegiate minds: Is religion a philosophy? Is philosophy a religion? Self-styled concepts are expressed and amended, affirmed and disputed. College students begin to wonder, to doubt, to question. They consider a great variety of thinkers, which may include Plato, Christ, Sartre, Nietzsche, Suzuki, and perhaps even Salinger and Golding.

They have learned to compare, reject and carefully accept. They have learned they must decide for themselves. They have learned the time has come.

To celebrate the beginning of the Epiphany season, members of the Canterbury Association participate in a Feast of Lights.

Bright tree lights on campus and in Denton symbolize Christmastime.

On their way to evening worship services, North Texans may have paused to admire the Nativity scenes at local churches as the snow sifted earthward, providing an interesting contrast to the sands Jesus knew.

Some Even Manage To Attend Classes

Though it may surprise the less perceptive individual, the university sanctions more than homecomings, campus elections and new UBs. Spaced throughout the year are periods commonly known as classes. This is one of the finer points of university life which somehow is seldom understood.

Another fine point concerns the effectiveness of attending classes. Many insist they learn much more through "discussion" in the UB than through note-taking in classrooms. But that's why we have schools in the first place: Too many others — not just college students — tend to feel the same way.

If classroom attendance is combined with what teachers affectionately call homework, learning should increase. And if a student has enough initiative to complement this homework in any possible way with practical experience, he may find himself learning (and remembering) something valuable.

The serious jazz major must combine class theories and homework with constant practice. He cannot forget about his instrument.

Even the campus night classes are finished. But the science student, oblivious of the late hour, continues his work. Perhaps he may not sleep tonight.

Practical knowledge is gained by the speech and drama major who participates in theatrical productions.

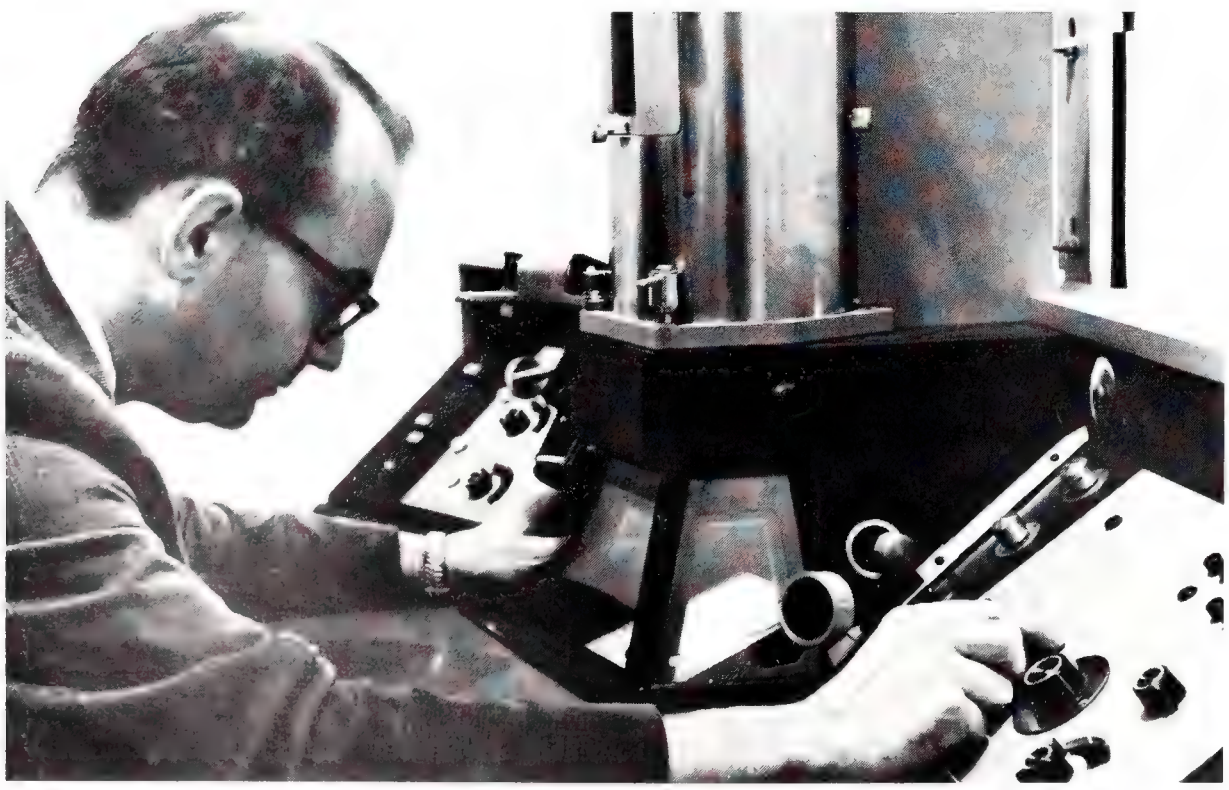

Stacks in the Main Library provide the English, education, history or government major the opportunity for research work — if he has the initiative.

Perceptive photographers capture expressions that remain unnoticed by instructors conducting classes: (TOP) distraction and concentration; (BOTTOM) perplexity and pensiveness.

Soon advanced students will use the $30,000 electron microscope which Dr. Vernon Scholes of the biology faculty is operating. The new instrument magnifies objects 20,000 times.

Nobody likes tests — not even the teacher, because he has to grade them.

Early-morning sunlight filters into the Women's Gym to reveal the graceful movements of students in a modern dance class. The long mirror allows the dancers to see themselves at work while providing the onlooker a three-dimensional effect.

Student organists are doubly exposed to superior teaching methods in weekly lessons and organ literature classes.

Will the University Spoil Ol' What's-His-Name?

"Found out the difference between freshman and sophomore English today," Grover smirked, pushing aside his empty Coke bottle. "In freshman English the teacher comes in and says hello, and you say hello to him. In sophomore English the teacher comes in and says hello, and you write it down."

"Which reminds me," his friend said. "How did you do on the theme you were telling me about?"

"Stingy little runt gave me a C minus."

"Well? What's so bad about that? You said yourself you'd probably get at least an F on it."

"Forgot about that," Grover replied sheepishly.

"You know," the friend said as they left the UB for class, "I was just thinking about my little brother. Just now in high school. You remember how it was back then. Couldn't read Wolfe without causing a national disaster, and if you disagreed with the teacher you were expelled practically and —"

"Yeah, I guess so," Grover interrupted.

The two said so long and Grover shuffled away. The friend watched Grover leave and slowly shook his head. "That old band jacket of his looks like a neon sign," he muttered. He shrugged his shoulders, then sped expectantly to his next class.

As many times as the pins are attacked by NT bowlers each night, it seems they would shatter. But they seldom do. Somehow they always pop right back up for more punishment.

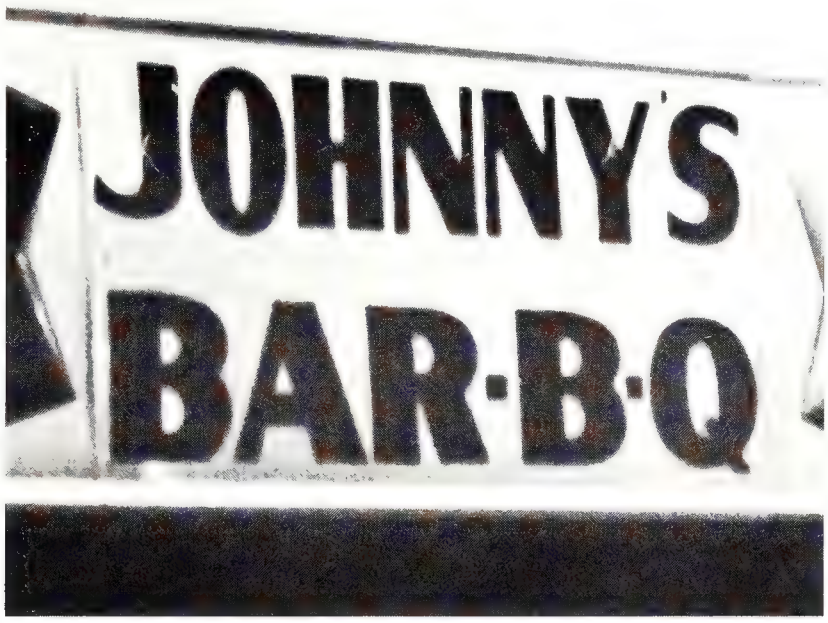

During the day, most students only have time for a quick trip to the UB Snack Bar.

Jazz pianist Dave Brubeck chats with Lab Band Director Leon Breeden and munches chicken at the Char Bar, a local cafeteria, before his concert.

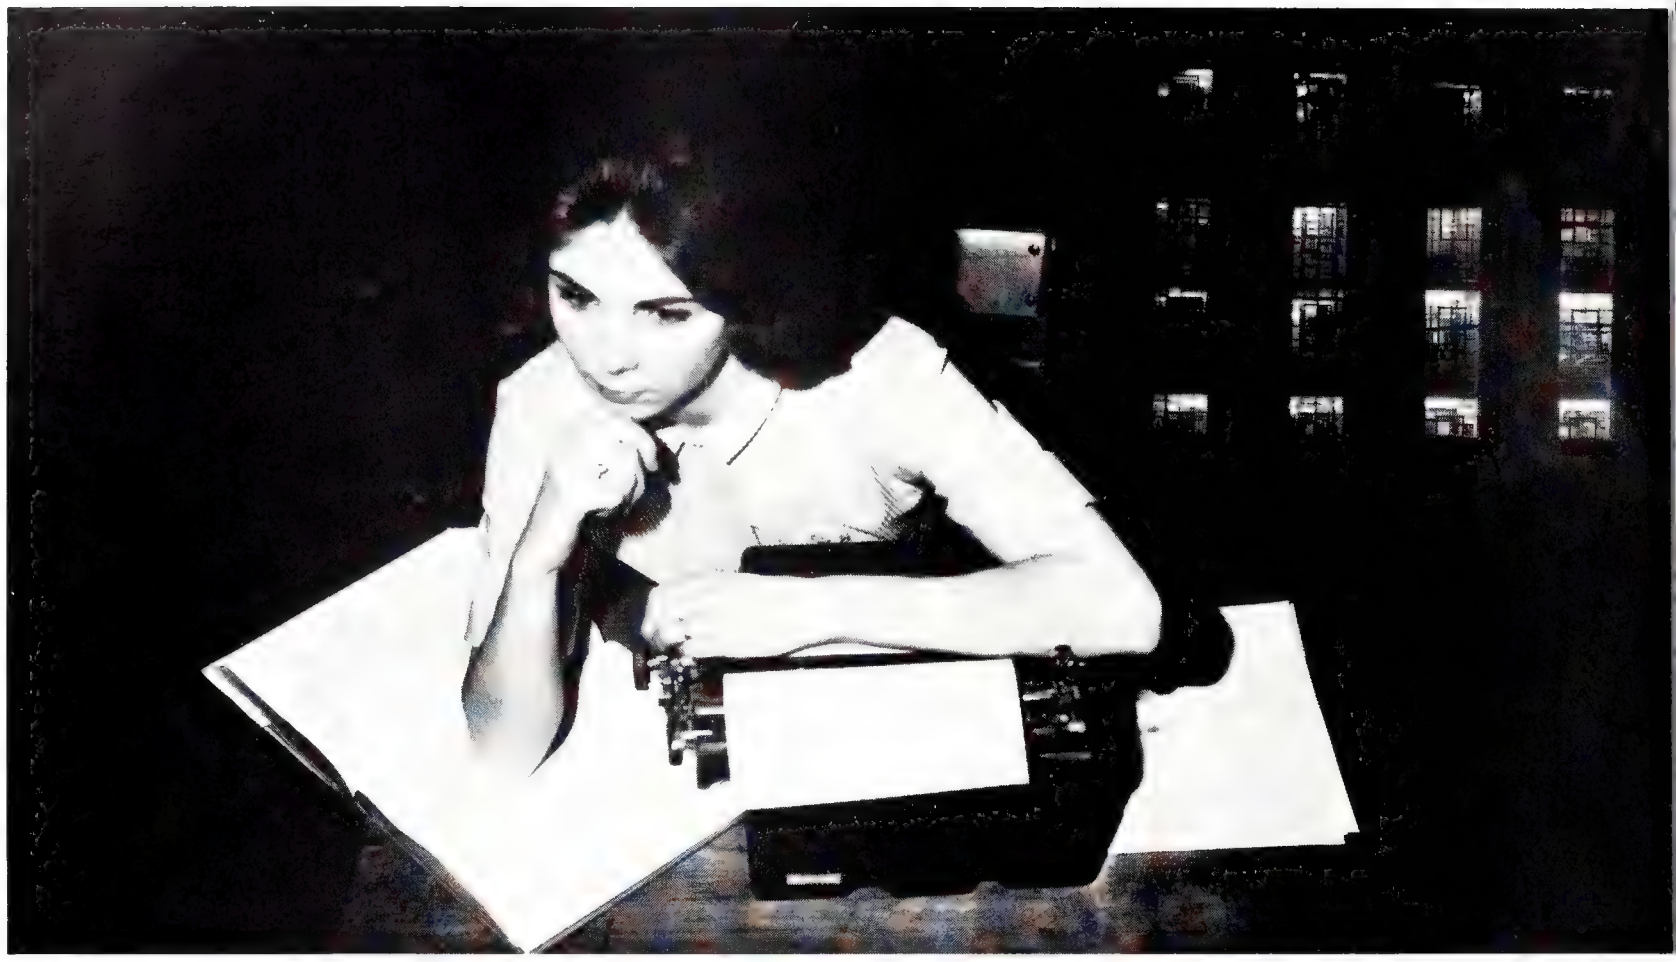

One of the most popular student hangouts is Johnny's, a nearby cafe which is famous for its barbecue and atmosphere.

The Hangouts

Though not as popular as in former years, all-school dances still interest many North Texans as a pleasant way to relax. The Aces play for the Wednesday night dances, which are held in the Lab School Gym.

Visions of library lights dance in her head as Joan Hart of Saskatchewan, Canada, studies for exams. The coed, who has a slight accent, plans to teach home economics in a "collegiate" (Canadian high school) after graduation.

Only a tiny handful of lights brightens the dorms late at night, except when residents — mostly freshmen — are studying for finals.

Movement in the background suggests the difficulty of studying in the noisy UB Snack Bar.

Angel Flight members pin lieutenant bars on AFROTC Cadets to symbolize Air Force commissions — a final part of graduation.

Spring Semester Reveals Exams' Deadly Impact

You could easily tell when the January final exam plague had struck its victims. Fewer traffic jams appeared at 10:50. Light bills soared. Television plugs were pulled. Grocers merrily discovered coffee shortages. The Chat temporarily ceased publication. The library increased in popularity.

The deadly impact of the plague was especially obvious when the spring semester arrived; enrollment decreased significantly. Of course, part of this decrease was due to those who suddenly found themselves alumni: 374 bachelor's degrees were awarded on Jan. 28. There were five doctoral recipients and 56 who obtained master's degrees.

In his commencement address, President J. C. Matthews noted that those returning to campus in as short a time as five years will find students better prepared and more able than they are now. He didn't bother to tell the 435 collegians if he thought they had prepared themselves sufficiently. He probably figured they would discover that soon enough on their own.

Cap leveled on his head, tassle floating behind him, the senior and his friend enter the Main Auditorium for what may be the last time. Unlike high school graduation, the following ceremony is invaluable. This is a time to be remembered.

Spring's Freshness Enticed

. . . winter-weary students to the park, the lake, a stream, a pond — anywhere the pressure of classrooms could be temporarily ignored. They tried to make the weekends their own. Sometimes it worked; often it didn't. Though they had safely made it through the rough fall semester, they still could hardly afford to shun their courses. They probably found a subtle reminder of this fact in the slightly relieved parking situation — a direct result of fall semester dropouts and failures.

The first weeks of the spring semester, which opened during the unusual onslaught of cold winter rain, glistened sporadically with sunshine and cloudless skies. In March, only a couple of weeks until spring's official entrance, a rare snowfall pestered the campus. To many, the snow probably symbolized the fickleness, the unpredictability of Texas springtimes. Some may have watched the snow and wished for summer or even next year's spring. Others may have mused fondly about the past few semesters of college and realized, finally, that they've had a great, unforgettable time.

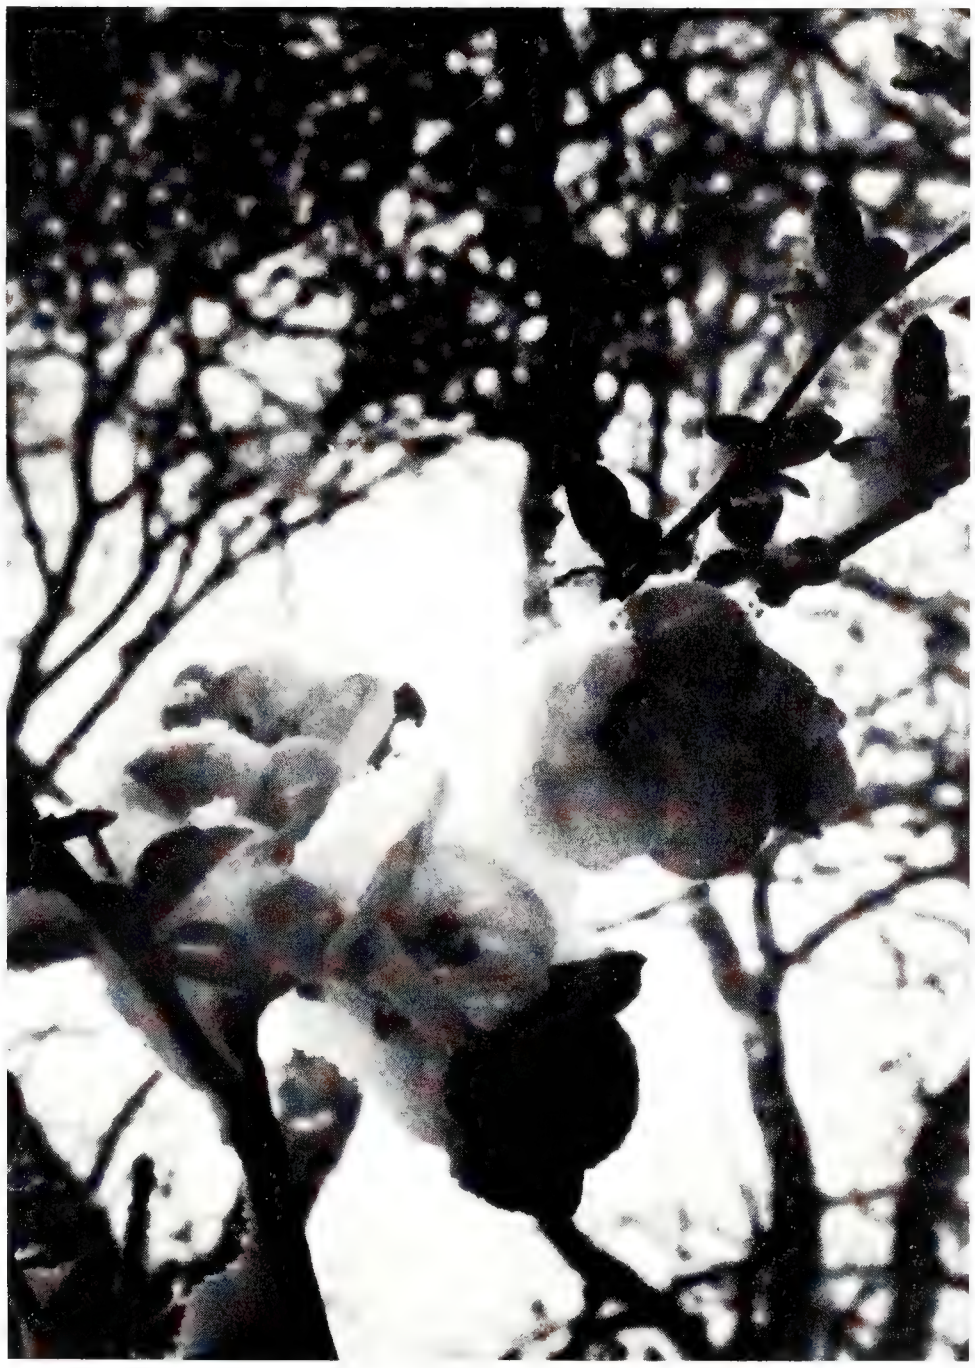

TOP: Coeds amble obliviously past the first hints of spring. BOTTOM: The fragile beauty of a clump of flowers contrasts with the homeliness of a sewer.

"I'm the greatest!" shocked boxing fans in the spring semester as they listened to radio coverage of the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay World Heavyweight Championship Fight. Clay won on a TKO when Liston failed to enter the seventh round.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the spring semester was snow, which fell on the morning of March 9 and disappeared a few hours later.

Sneaky Semester

Good grief, suddenly it was spring. Everyone glanced up, saw fresh blossoms and green leaves and decided right then to face it: another school year was about to sneak away. With slight pangs of panic, they wondered where all the time had gone. They knew what had happened to a lot of it, of course; they had memorized new faces, become accustomed to special ones, made new friends and lost old ones.

Some of the most unusual faces encountered in the spring semester belonged to a British singing group called the Beatles.

Another face, though not so unusual, became familiar to North Texans when Dr. James L. Rogers was appointed assistant to President J. C. Matthews.

Regional and national news was of major concern. Students followed the Dallas trial of Jack Ruby, charged with the murder of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. President Johnson began his campaign, and Republicans wondered who his opponent would be: Rockefeller, Nixon, Goldwater or Lodge?

"Should a woman be elected president?" is argued with jabs and jokes by Jebby Prindle and Curtis Loveless in the spring's first Debate of the Month.

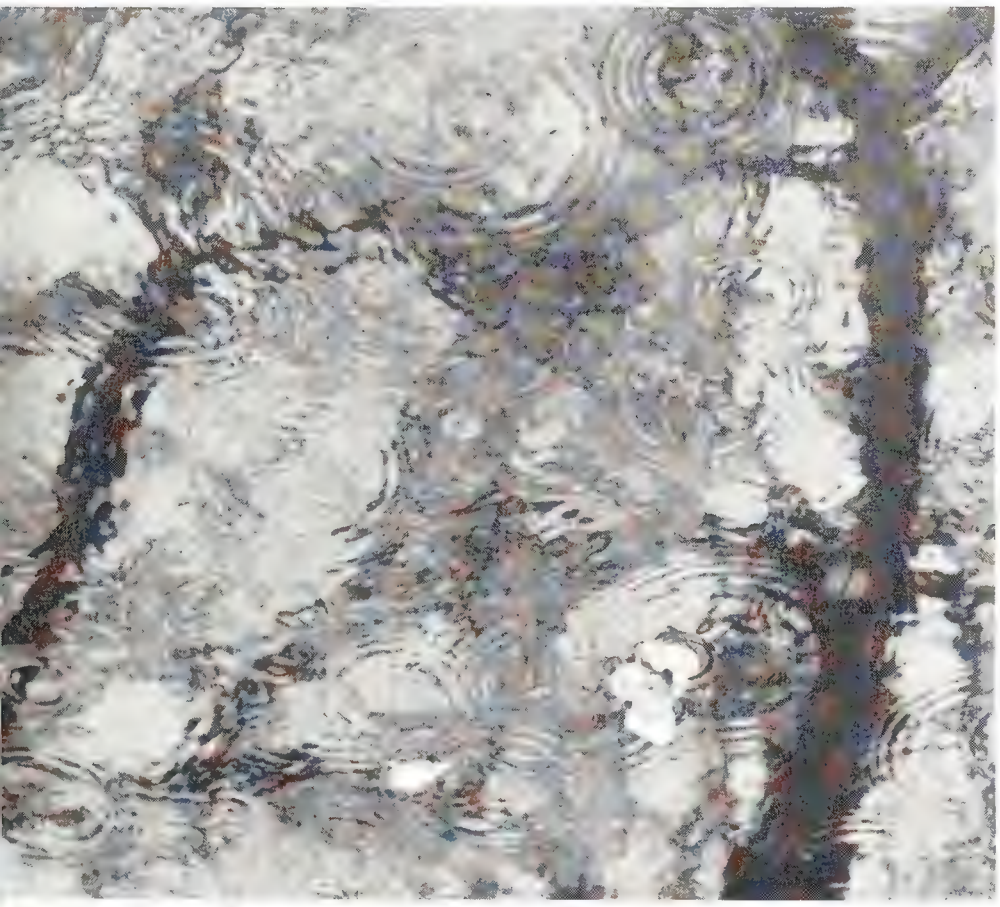

LEFT: A couple savors the springtime solitude of Lake Dallas. BOTTOM: Sunlamps were shoved inside closets and replaced with warm sunshine.

March winds toyed mischievously with coed's skirts and shook fresh petals into ponds and streams. Then the soft spring rains began.

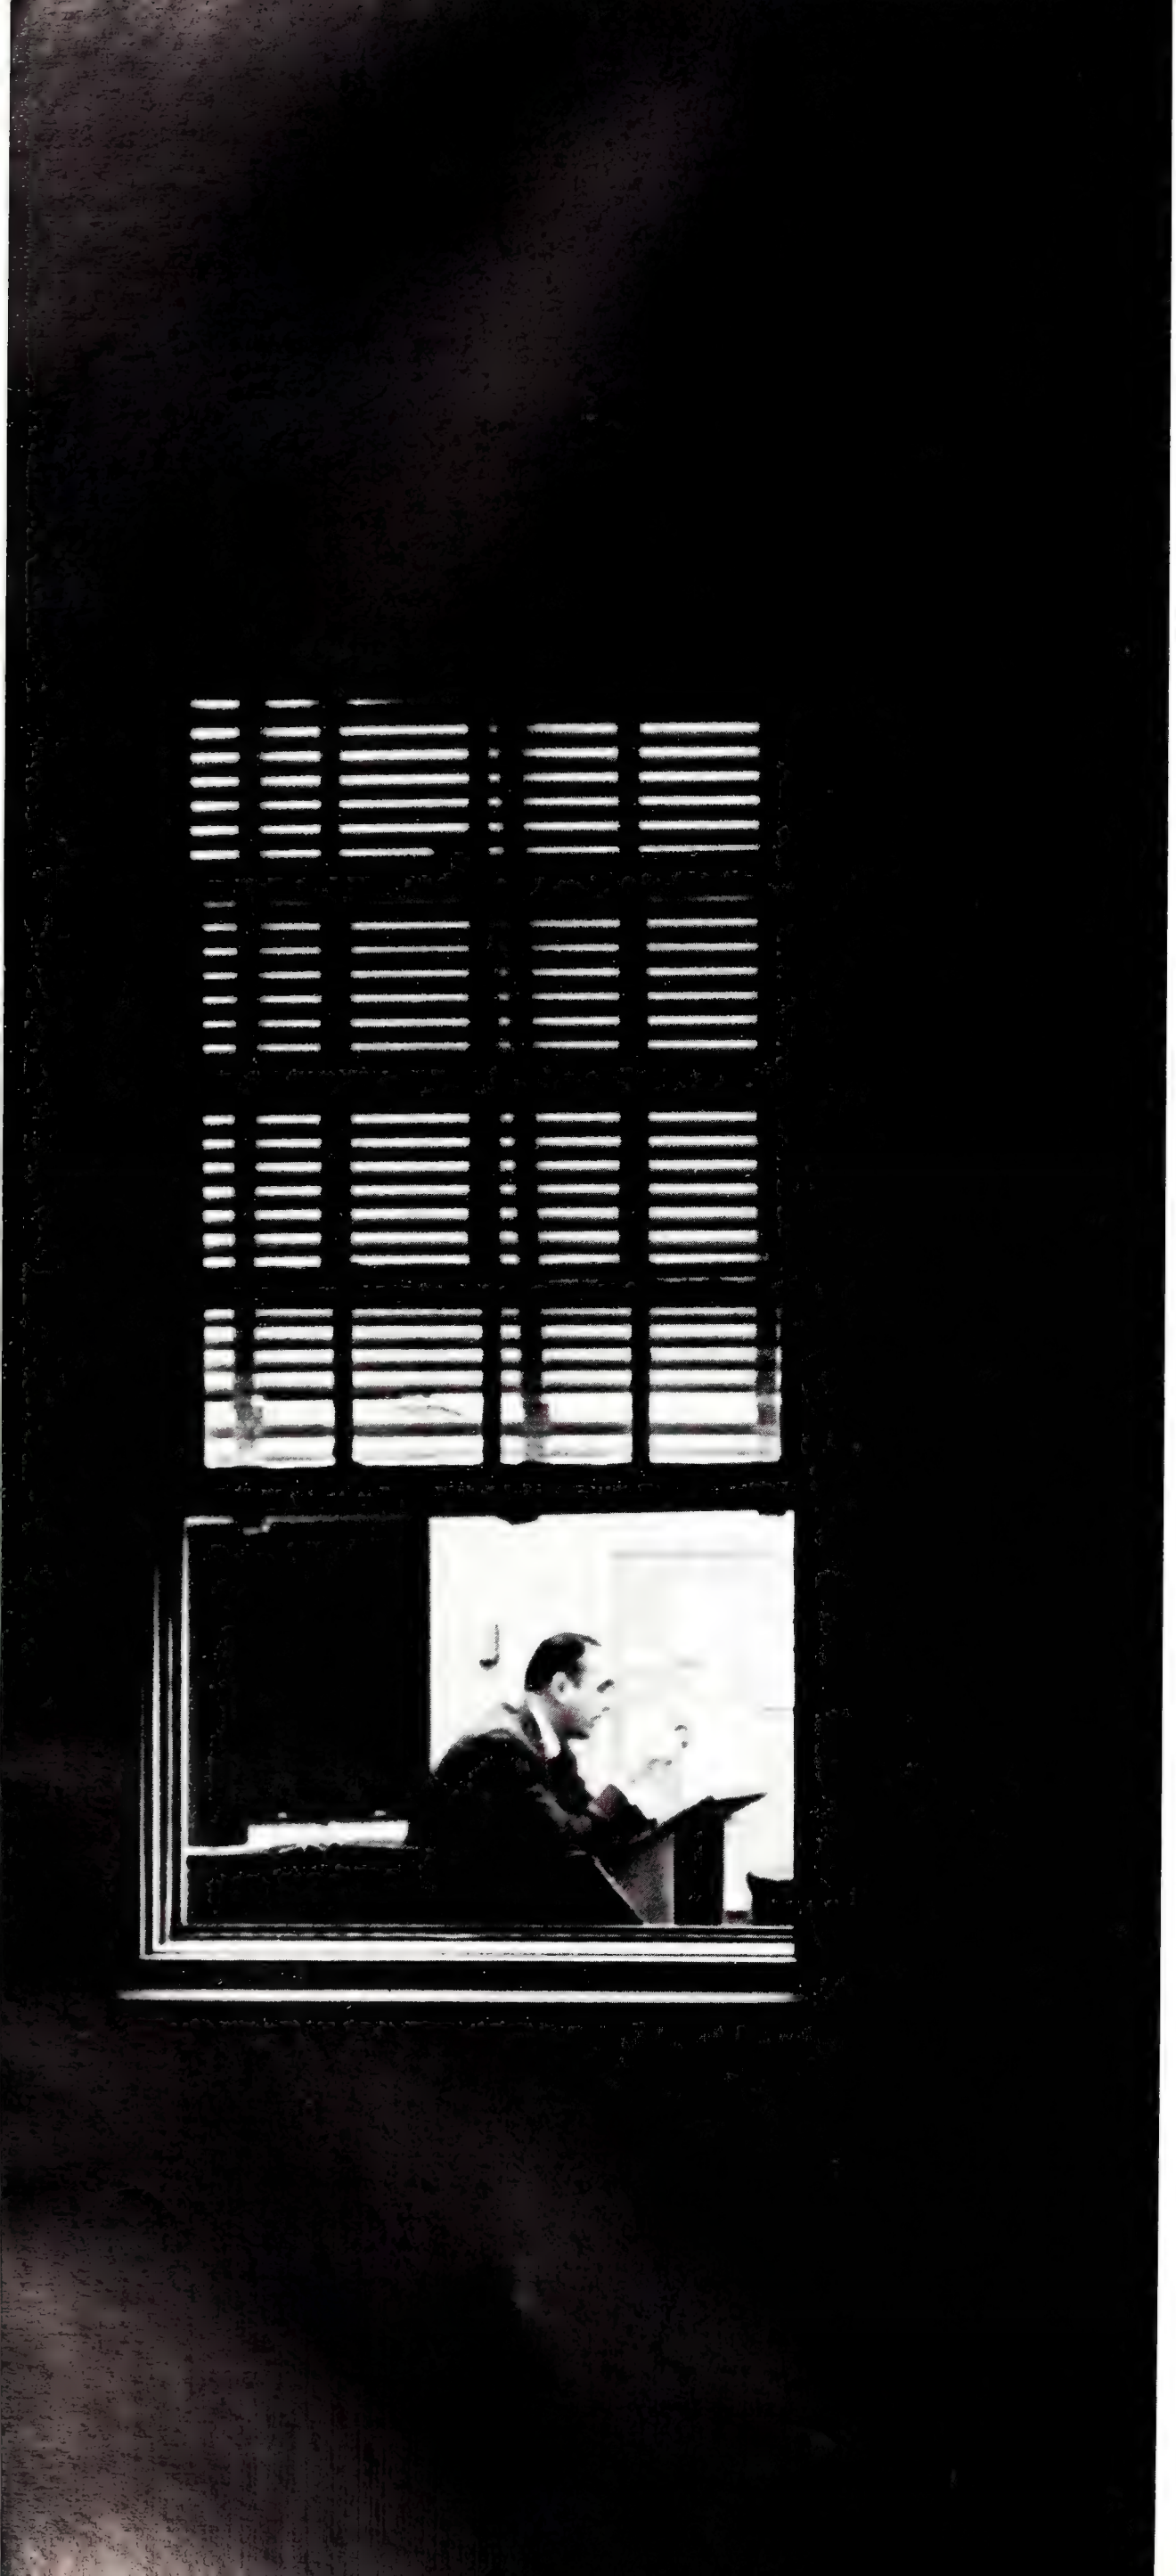

Whoosh!

Though the spring semester scampered from winter to summer with little regard for time, the university still found enough opportunities for advancement.

As usual, the student population decreased; however, the figure of 10,036 represented the school's largest spring enrollment.

NTSU's name was again spread favorably to other schools by the debaters: The sweepstakes trophy won at the Gulf States Debate Tournament at the University of Mississippi was the sixth such trophy of the season.

And pleasant news came with the annual financial report, which showed a jump in NTSU's value to $27,819,084 — more than $1¼ million over 1963.

Observations

He probably curses a little more now, smokes more heavily than he used to, parties a bit more often, studies a lot longer, thinks more seriously, sleeps less than he thought possible; hopefully, he's changed in countless ways since his barely forgotten high school years. He used to joke to others, "What do you think you're doing?" Now in more serious tones he often asks himself the same question. On first glance he resembles all the others, but he's very much an individual.

He calls himself The University Student:

I

Chimes from the Administration Building announced the birth of a new hour. "Up late again tonight?" the junior asked.

"Looks like it," answered the campus leader, one of the few unaffected BMOCs. He paused. "You know, sometimes I wonder. Is it all worth it? I mean, studying all night all the time, and all the extracurricular stuff besides? Sometimes I think maybe it's not going to do us any good. So how come we keep at it?"

The junior smiled but didn't answer.

"Well," the BMOC resigned with a yawn and a grin. "Here we go again." He opened his book and began carefully reading.

II

The bass violin slipped to the floor with a loud crack. The bass player closed his eyes momentarily, casually tossed his cigarette to the UB floor and strolled to his broken instrument. He didn't ask how it fell down. His fellow jam sessionists idly watched him as he inspected his bass. "Too bad," someone said.

"Yeah, well," he replied, biting his lower lip. Then he laughed. "It'll be OK in a couple minutes. I'll just look at it and say, 'Get fixed, man.' And, magic! It's like fixed!" He picked up his instrument and nonchalantly walked away.

III

Except for the deserted desks and the graduating senior, the classroom was empty. The night class was over; next week exams would begin. The senior leaned out the window and watched the campus lights die away. He wondered where he would be a year or two from now. When the night watchman entered, the senior jumped.

"Lights out, son. Time to go."

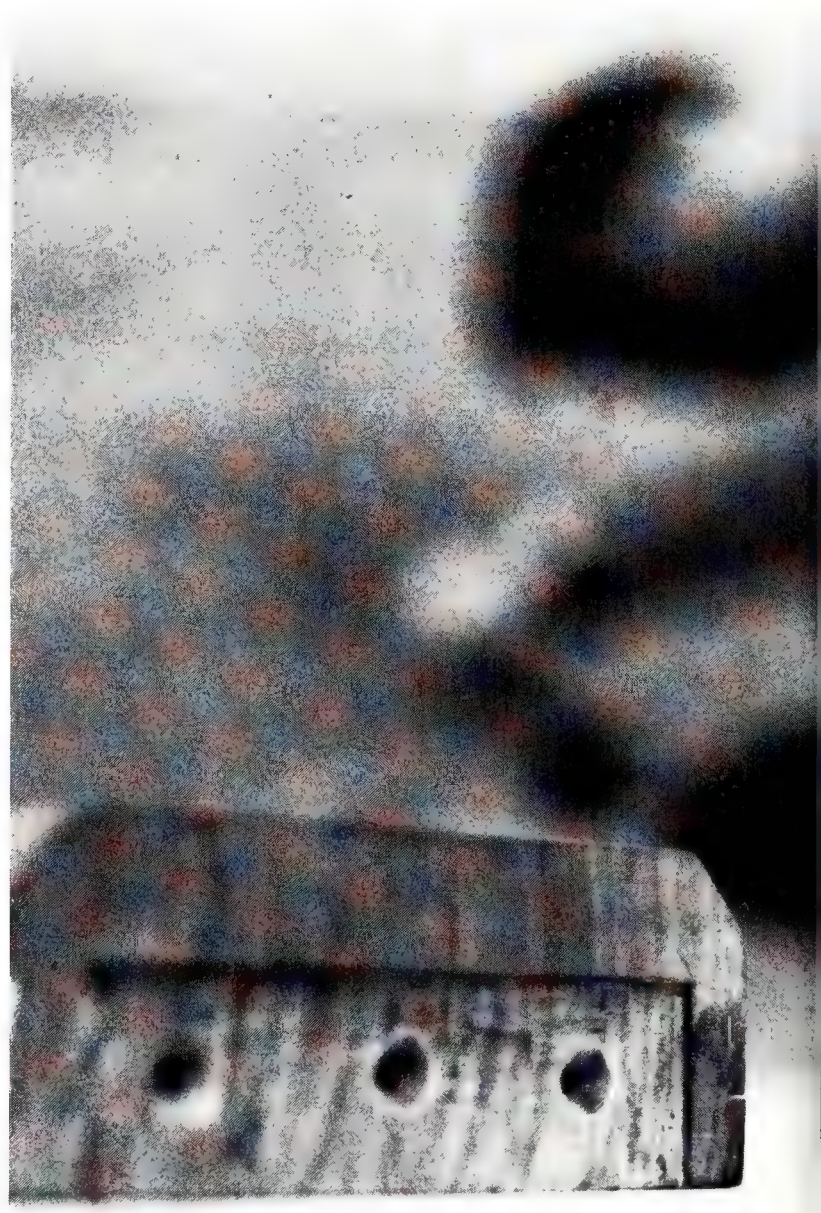

"Yeah," the senior said. "I know."

White pine is soft and easy to work with. In a beginning woodshop class, an industrial arts student uses a band saw to cut this wood into parts for a project. As the course progresses, the student will gradually be introduced to the many technical aspects of woodworking.

I. A. majors must develop basic skills: (TOP) grinding chisels develops use of the hands; (RIGHT) hammer and wood frame a boy sanding a bookend.

'Don't Bother Me, Buddy--I'm Busy'

From outside, it resembles any other new building on campus. But late in the afternoon, strange mechanical sounds burst from somewhere inside—sounds strange enough to make one wonder why he's never been in the Industrial Arts Building before.

So take a look inside; enter the east door for the best effect. Rooms look clean, efficient, well-equipped. Machines, many very complex, catch the eye. Intent students look like the don't-bother-me-I'm-busy type. One of the largest in the state and nation, the IA department moved into its new building in 1959.

Ford Motor Company generated enthusiasm among power mechanics students in April by donating to the department a 289 cu. in. V8 automobile engine equipped with an automatic transmission—to be tinkered with and tested in Texas by Texans.

At first it was just an octagon-shaped bar of steel; now it's a cold chisel, smooth, shiny, tapered and ready to be tempered by the beginning metal shop student.

Snaggletoothed Dunner McClellan of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity pauses to model his mangy-looking beard and oversized overalls.

It may be an unpatriotic attitude, but it's best to ignore the Howdy Room during Dutch Week; otherwise you'll be attacked.

Ugliness is an overstuffed and barefooted farm boy like Tommy Owens, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Bearded backwoodsman Bob Porterfield collected 38,777 pennies to win the UMOC title.

Mirror, Mirror On the Wall...

If you weren't at least homely looking the second week of March, you just weren't in. Downright ugliness was the style and the Women's Forum sanctioned it under the title of "Ugliest Man on Campus."

Five motley Greeks sought penny votes for the honor in the UB Howdy Room, collecting $727.38, which was put into the National Defense Student Loan Program.

In conjunction with the UMOC contest was Dutch Week, also sponsored by the Forum. It was the coeds' turn to treat the boys. The annual Dames-United-to-Catch-Husbands Week ended with a dance in the Women's Gym. As generally expected, the Sigma Phi Epsilon-Delta Gamma candidate, Bob Porterfield, was named UMOC.

Ellen Moss, vice-president of Women's Forum, crowns a clean-shaven, quietly dressed Porterfield the new Ugly Man on Campus.

At the end of the clamorous week, an amorous couple enjoys the calmness of the Women's Forum dance.

And Most of Us Won't Be Around to Enjoy It

"Ball and crane . . . Are breaking up . . . That old slab of mine," quipped the first issue of the 1963 summer Chat. The Slab (Union Building Terrace) was unceremoniously attacked on May 28 in preparation for the first wing of the new $1 million UB. In a few weeks the Slab was replaced by an indifferent, unphotogenic, downright ugly hole.

The Slab, site of Wednesday night dances and roller skating classes, was built with the old UB, which was completed in 1949 as a memorial to North Texas exes killed in World Wars I and II.

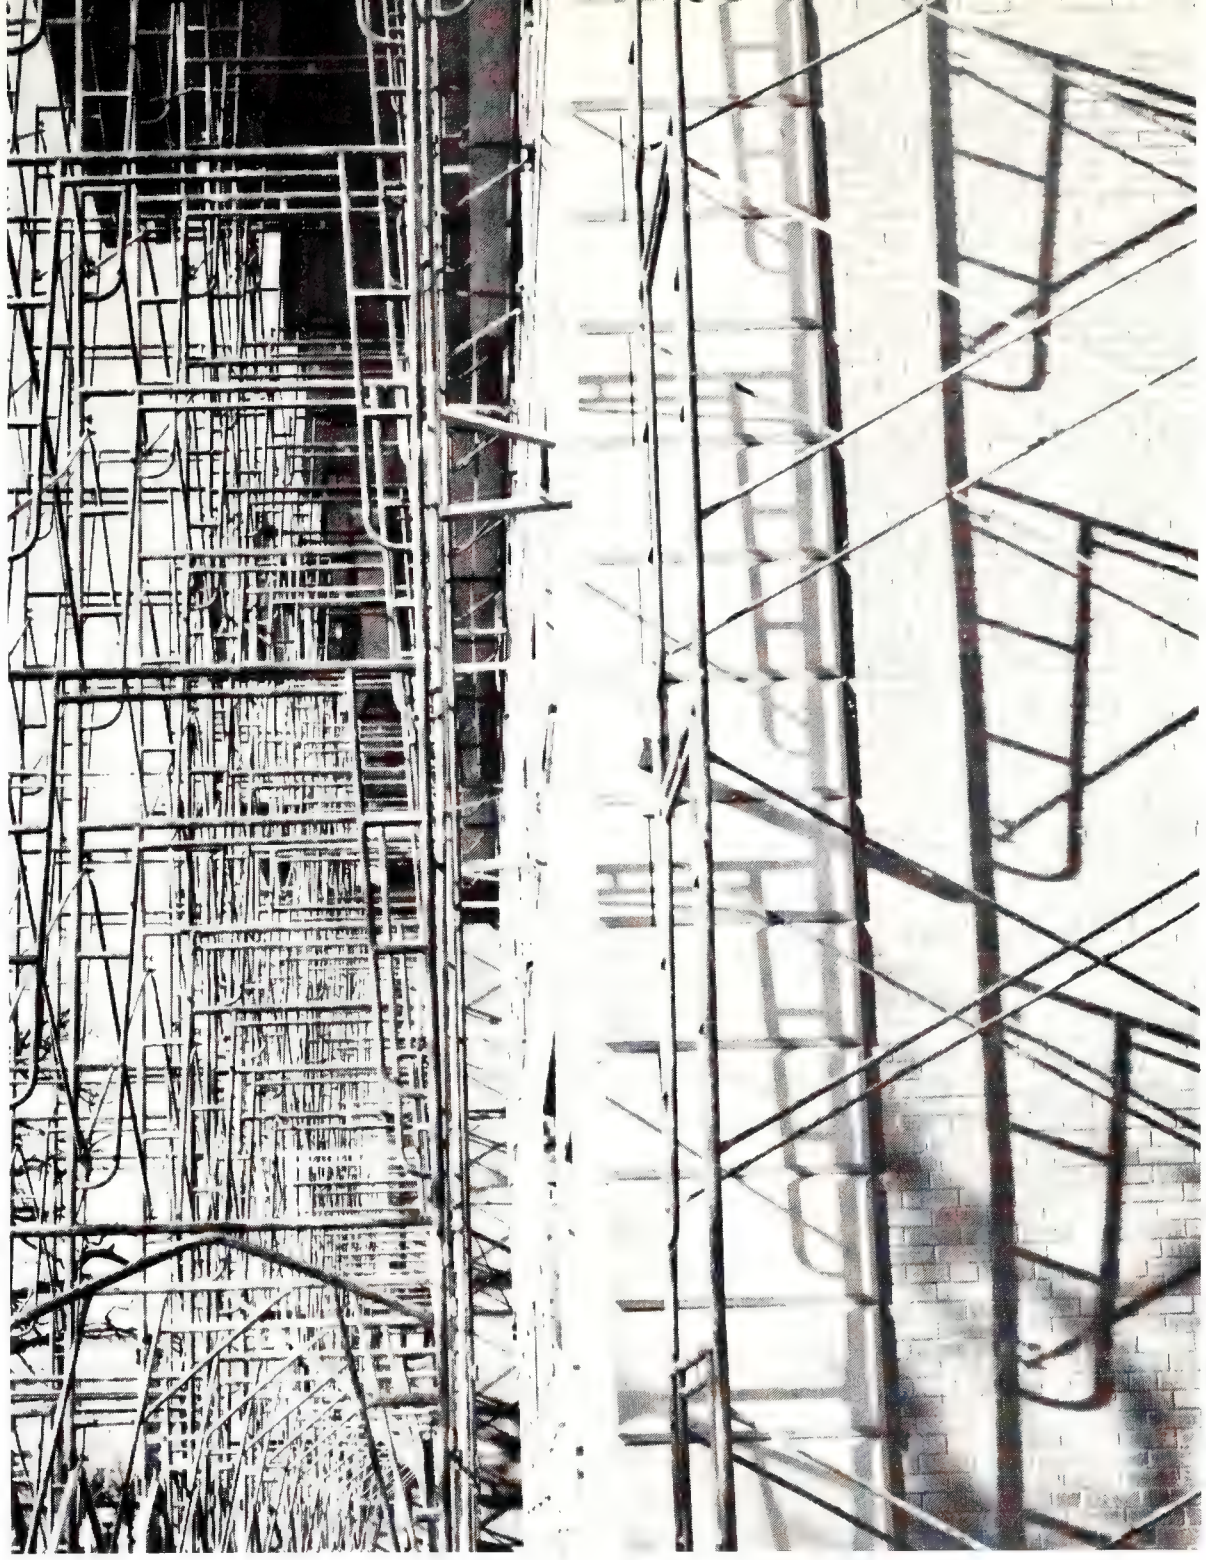

In the fall of 1963, the hole was transformed into a foundation for the three-story UB wing. For awhile, it looked as if the wing might stretch to the front door of the Journalism Building, but it stopped expanding at last and began its skeleton-like jerk upwards. Though a harsh winter delayed construction, the first wing was to go into use in the summer of 1964. Next strategy: Move everything into the new wing and demolish the old UB, along with a memory or two here and there.

All Seriousness Aside

Past volumes of the YUCCA have occasionally received criticism for being too serious, too academic, too dull, too uncollegiate, too unCampanile, in short, not funny enough for the average reader.

Accordingly, the coffee cup rabble of the Journalism Building, commonly called the UBG (aliases: NT Yellow Journalism Society, Upsilon Beta Gamma, Union Building Gang), has officially designated two pages of the YUCCA as a let's-show-them-that-journalism-majors-at-least-look-funny spread.

The UBG, by the way, is nothing but a clique which anyone may join if all members approve him by pointing their thumbs down. So far only one soft drink machine (our official drink is coffee) and a collie dog have been refused membership.

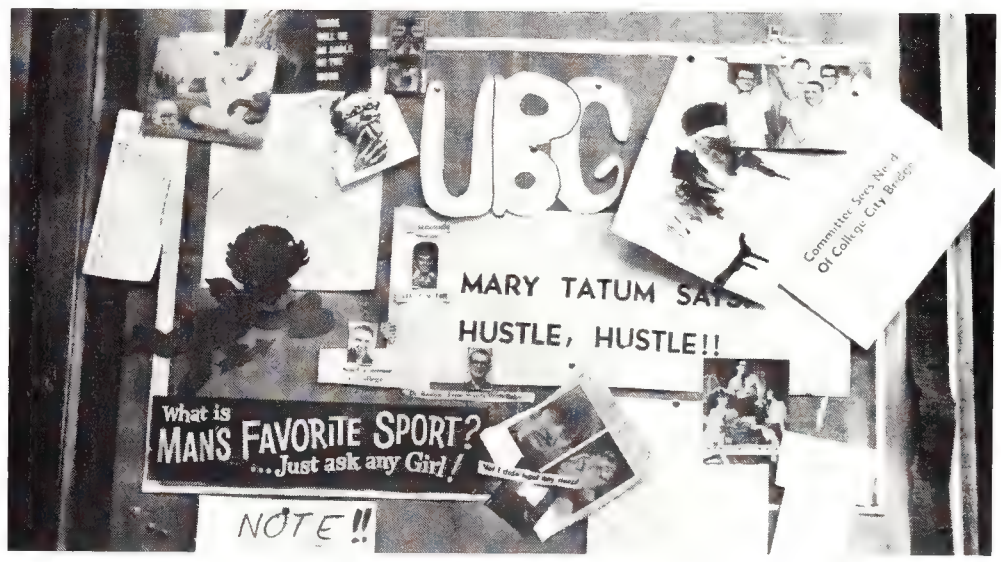

According to the bylaws of the UBG, officially established in the fall of 1963, "a member is in session any time he is in the Union Building. The conditions for calling a meeting vary with the number of those wanting such items found in the snack bar and those whose personal beliefs limit the number of Pommacs allowed into the meeting."

Official activities of the year included Hustle Tom Boone Month, Bill Hobbs Meekly Asks, "Isn't This Dutch Week?" Month, We're Stopping Smoking Day and Ferndoc Queen of May Contest.

Ever civic-minded, the UBG followed USNT's example when that group stressed the need of a college-city bridge: The UBG announced plans for a "huge college-city bridge to extend from the corner of Hickory and Avenue A on the NTSU campus to downtown Denton Square. The concrete and steel structure is expected to cost about $1 billion—slightly more than the proposed Trinity River Canal. Cragg Hines, who writes upside down, was elated. Jerry Bennett, new assistant to Beatle Booster Quinn, told a joke. Thousands of lives are expected to be saved by the new pedestrian walkway."

Of major concern to the UBG was the official coverage of the new Sigma Delta Chi (Professional Journalistic Society) member's encounter with pledgeship. He was required to hang from his neck a lead slug like those used to print newspaper headlines. For three months the pledge thought he was dropped (or maybe engaged) to a Linotype machine.

The official UBG scripture is Gen. 11:14.

HONORS

HONOURS, LIKE IMPRESSIONS UPON COIN, MAY GIVE AN IDEAL AND LOCAL VALUE TO A BIT OF BASE METAL; BUT GOLD AND SILVER WILL PASS ALL THE WORLD OVER WITHOUT ANY OTHER RECOMMENDATION THAN THEIR OWN WEIGHT. —— LAURENCE STERNE

15 'Top Coeds' Win Awards At Theta Sig Matrix Table

Epitomizing the ultimate in scholarship, activities and service at NTSU, 15 girls were presented as Top Coeds On Campus.

Named at the Matrix Table of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national honorary journalism fraternity, the coeds were selected from a field of 75 by a panel of four faculty members. Nominations were submitted by teachers throughout the university. Five girls were chosen from each of the sophomore, junior and senior classes by Dr. Lee W. Miller of the English department, Dr. Dwayne Kingery of the School of Education, Mrs. Margaret Campbell of the physical education department and Dr. Imogene B. Dickey, dean of women.

Also presented at the pie-and-coffee supper was the Top Woman Journalist Award.

Dan Eddy, public relations man for the Salvation Army in Dallas, was speaker for the annual event which was held at the Ramada Inn. Eddy emphasized the importance of women in today's society and how they have advanced from being merely followers of men to leaders of men.

"Every man that travels the highway of success is led by a good woman," he said.

Newly named Top Coeds on Campus wait as the remaining outstanding women students are recognized for leadership in scholarship, activities, service.

Brenda Russell, News Service assistant and Chat activities editor, was honored as Top Woman Journalist.

Seventy-five nominees, outstanding women of the university, are served pie and coffee prior to the announcement of the 1964 Top Coed awards.

Meritum Activities Planned for Service

As evidenced by its activities, Meritum plans its year around service to the school.

In the fall, the local honor organization for senior women sponsored the student life orientation panels and the Big Wheel Dance, both designed to welcome incoming freshmen. A Junior Tea for prospective members was held in April at the home of Dean Imogene B. Dickey, sponsor. At Christmas Meritum joined with Blue Key, men's honor fraternity, in giving a party for Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home.

Meritum annually coordinates the all-school Honors Day Assembly in May.

Blue Key Honors Meritum with Tea

Blue Key, national honor fraternity for men, honored sister organization Meritum at a seated tea in March. The afternoon tea was held in the Community Room of the Denton County National Bank during Scholarship Emphasis Week.

At other meetings during the year, the fraternity heard two speeches by faculty members. Dr. Chester A. Newland, director of the government department, spoke on "Prohibition," and Dr. Gerald Kirk, sponsor of Blue Key and a member of the English faculty, discussed the "Morality Code of the Century."

A spring picnic was held at the farm of Bill O'Brien, president. Earlier in the year, he showed slides of his European trip.

Officers E. Kuehn, secretary; B. O'Brien, president, E. Bacon, treasurer.

Alpha Chi Gives Support To New Scholarship Week

"The true scholars are those who take such a delight in their field that you can't stop them from studying," Dr. Ralph D. Eberly of the English faculty remarked during Scholarship Emphasis Week in March.

Alpha Chi sponsored North Texas' first Scholarship Emphasis Week, which was supported by four other honor fraternities—Blue Key, Phi Eta Sigma, Alpha Lambda Delta and Meritum. The special week included a panel consisting of three North Texas professors—Dr. William R. DeMougeot of the speech and drama faculty, Dr. Harold Schlichting of the biology faculty and Dr. H. W. Kamp of the government faculty—who discussed "Diversity in Scholarship."

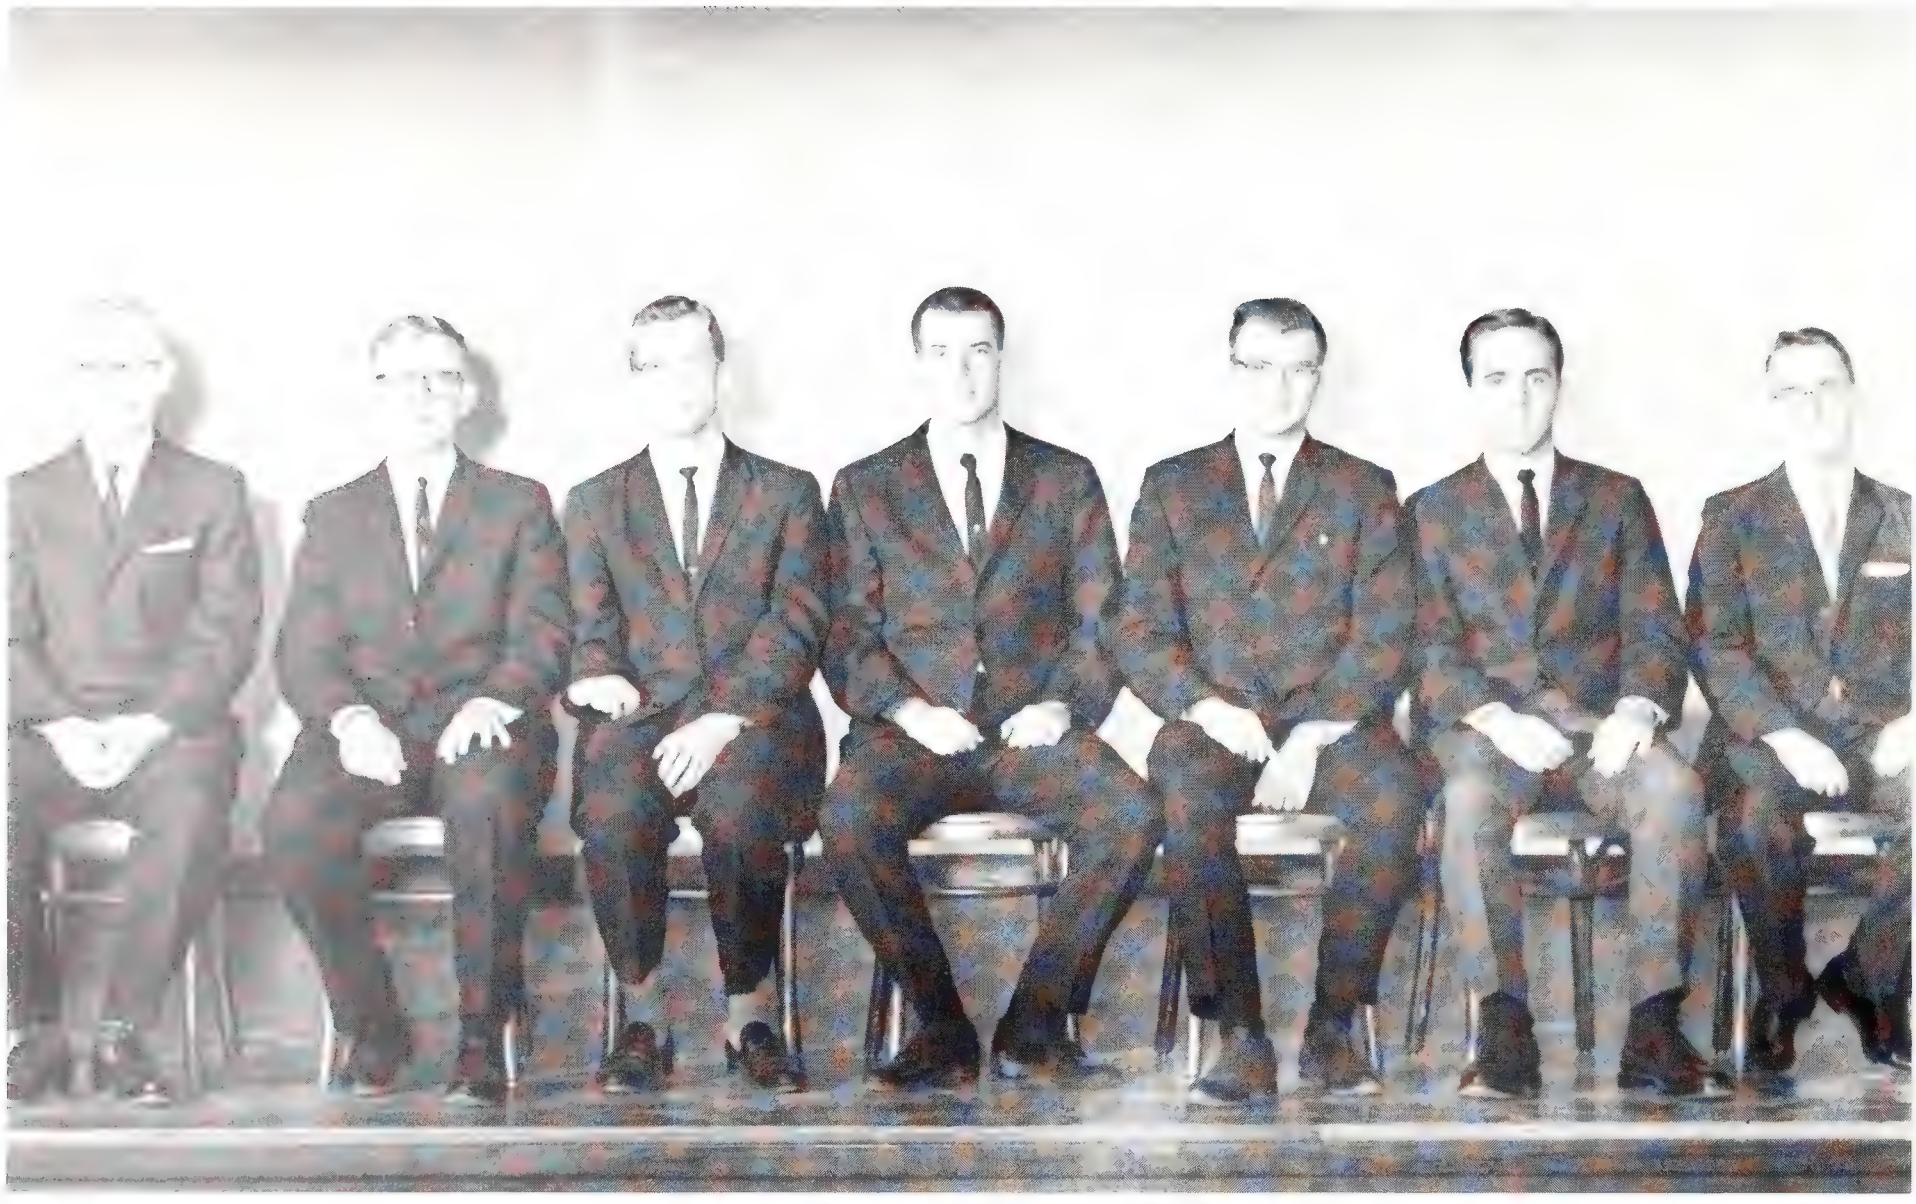

A tutoring service for students unable to afford private tutors was another project in which members of Alpha Chi participated. The service was begun by Alphi Chi, Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma.

Officers J. Killingsworth, president; P. Callaway, corresponding secretary; W. Lefler, recording secretary-treasurer; E. Kuehn, vice-president.

Phi Eta Sigma Open To Top Frosh Men

Freshman men who earn at least a 2.5 grade average their first semester in college receive more recognition than being listed on the honor roll in the Chat.

Such outstanding students are granted membership in Phi Eta Sigma, national honor society for freshman men.

Scholarship is emphasized by the society, which each year presents an award to the sophomore member of the club with the highest grade point average.

With honor societies Alpha Chi and Alpha Lambda Delta, Phi Eta Sigma began a free tutoring service in the spring. Those in need of this service could go to their department directors, who had a list of available tutors from the three clubs.

Alpha Lambda Delta Presents 2 Awards

Membership in Alpha Lambda Delta is one of the highest scholastic achievements that can be attained by freshmen and sophomore women at North Texas.

The organization, whose members must have a 2.5 grade average, strives to encourage scholastic achievement. As one way of doing this, the club presents a scholarship to the outstanding senior woman on Honors day and presents a book to the Alpha Lambda Delta member who has attained the highest scholastic record.

Fall pledges heard Miss Ruth Priddy of the English faculty speak on the activities and honor of being a member of the club.

38 North Texans Listed In National Who's Who

Names of 38 outstanding North Texas students will appear in the 1964 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

This select group is comprised of superior graduate, senior and junior students who have excelled in leadership, scholarship and service. A faculty-student committee, representing all the schools and the divisions of the College of Arts and Sciences, evaluates the students nominated by the faculty.

Names and qualifications of the honored group are forwarded to national headquarters to be included in the published book.

Changes Appear Again As Yucca Beauties Now Number Ten

The Yucca beauty nominees arrived at the Social Fun-and refreshments. Next came the actual judging. As the names were called the girls walked to the judges' table, smiled and was served. The judges then moved to the lobby, the girls lined the stairway and came down individually for an interview damentals Room to take part in an almost relaxing contest. First on the program was a reception with the student judges returned to their seats. Twenty-six finalists were chosen. The finals three days later was more formal. A pie-and-coffee supper and the last judging round of the 1964 Yucca Beauty Contest.

Changes appeared in the Yucca Beauty Contest this year — again. Since 1942, when a Queen of the Yucca was selected, the yearbook-honored beauties have varied in number, the selection method and qualifications.

Ten North Texas coeds were named Yucca Beauties this year; twelve winners had been standard since 1952. And to remove much of the tension from the contestants, the beauties were selected in a series of two private, rather than public, contests. Nominees were for the first time required to be sophomores or higher and have posted a 1.5 grade average the previous semester.

Campus organizations nominated 67 girls for the title. Judged on general appearance, the field was narrowed to 26 finalists who were interviewed by professional judges. Four seniors, three juniors and three sophomores won.

Although contest regulations were altered, the honor and tradition remained the same.

Dancing Into the Spotlight

. . . with music, drama and humor, a promise of a stimulating succession of events tugged at the curtain for the theatrical season. Preparations by the University Players, Supper Theater, Fine Arts Committee and School of Music turned dates on the calendar into dramatic actuality.

Long hours of rehearsal, tedious planning and detailed scheduling preceded all presentations. Periodically, crises occurred. But as evidenced by the Candida stage crew, who determinedly made last-minute repairs to the satire's sets which had been damaged in an unexpected downpour, the curtain always opened.

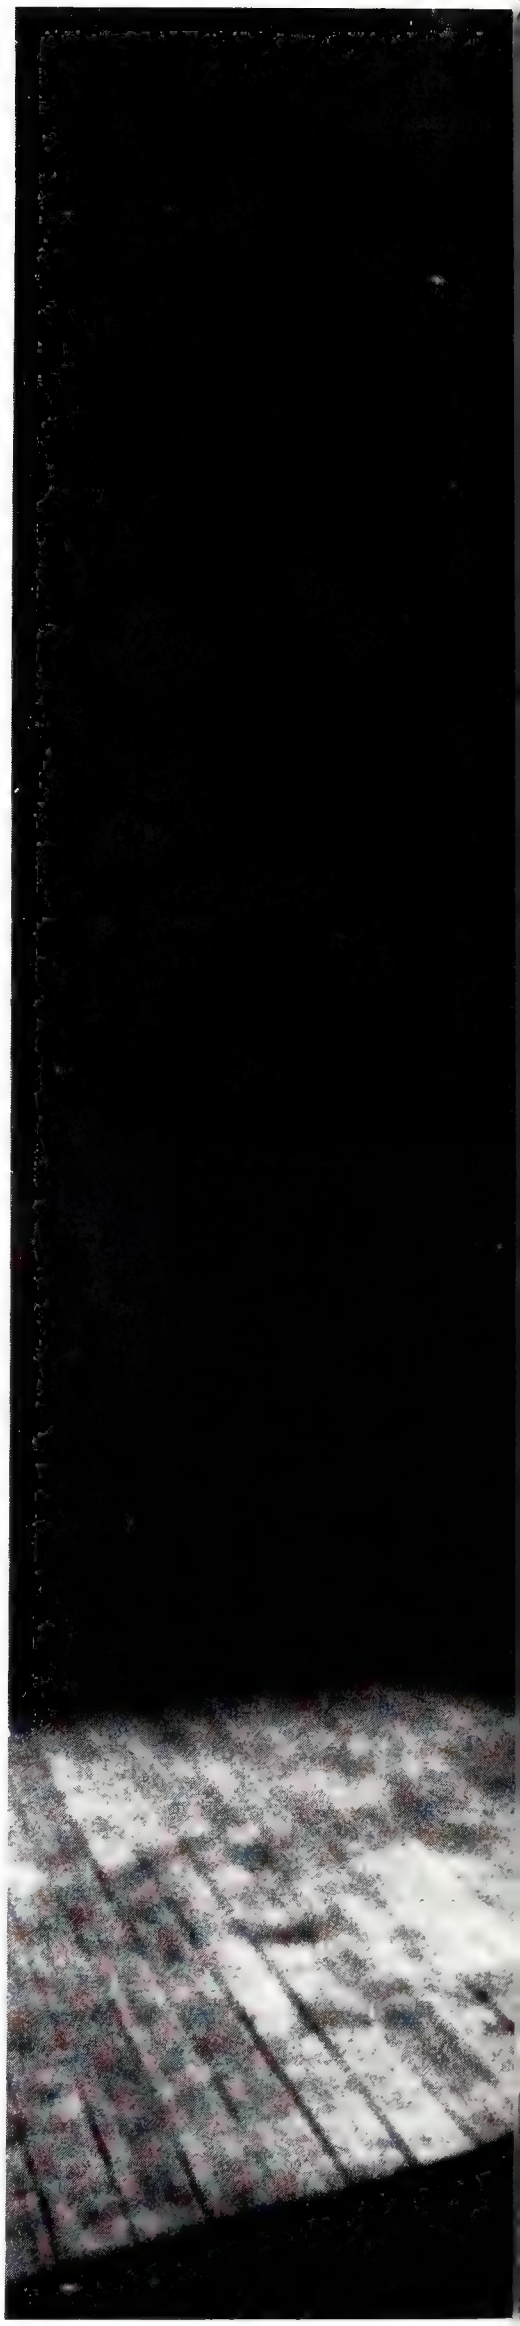

Across the boards, the year sparkled with well-known plays and entertainers: the Mary, Mary touring company, Dave Bruebeck, University Players' presentation of Othello and Peter Nero. Also the Fine Arts Committee originated the University Lecture Series, which featured outstanding speakers from various fields of interest to North Texas students.

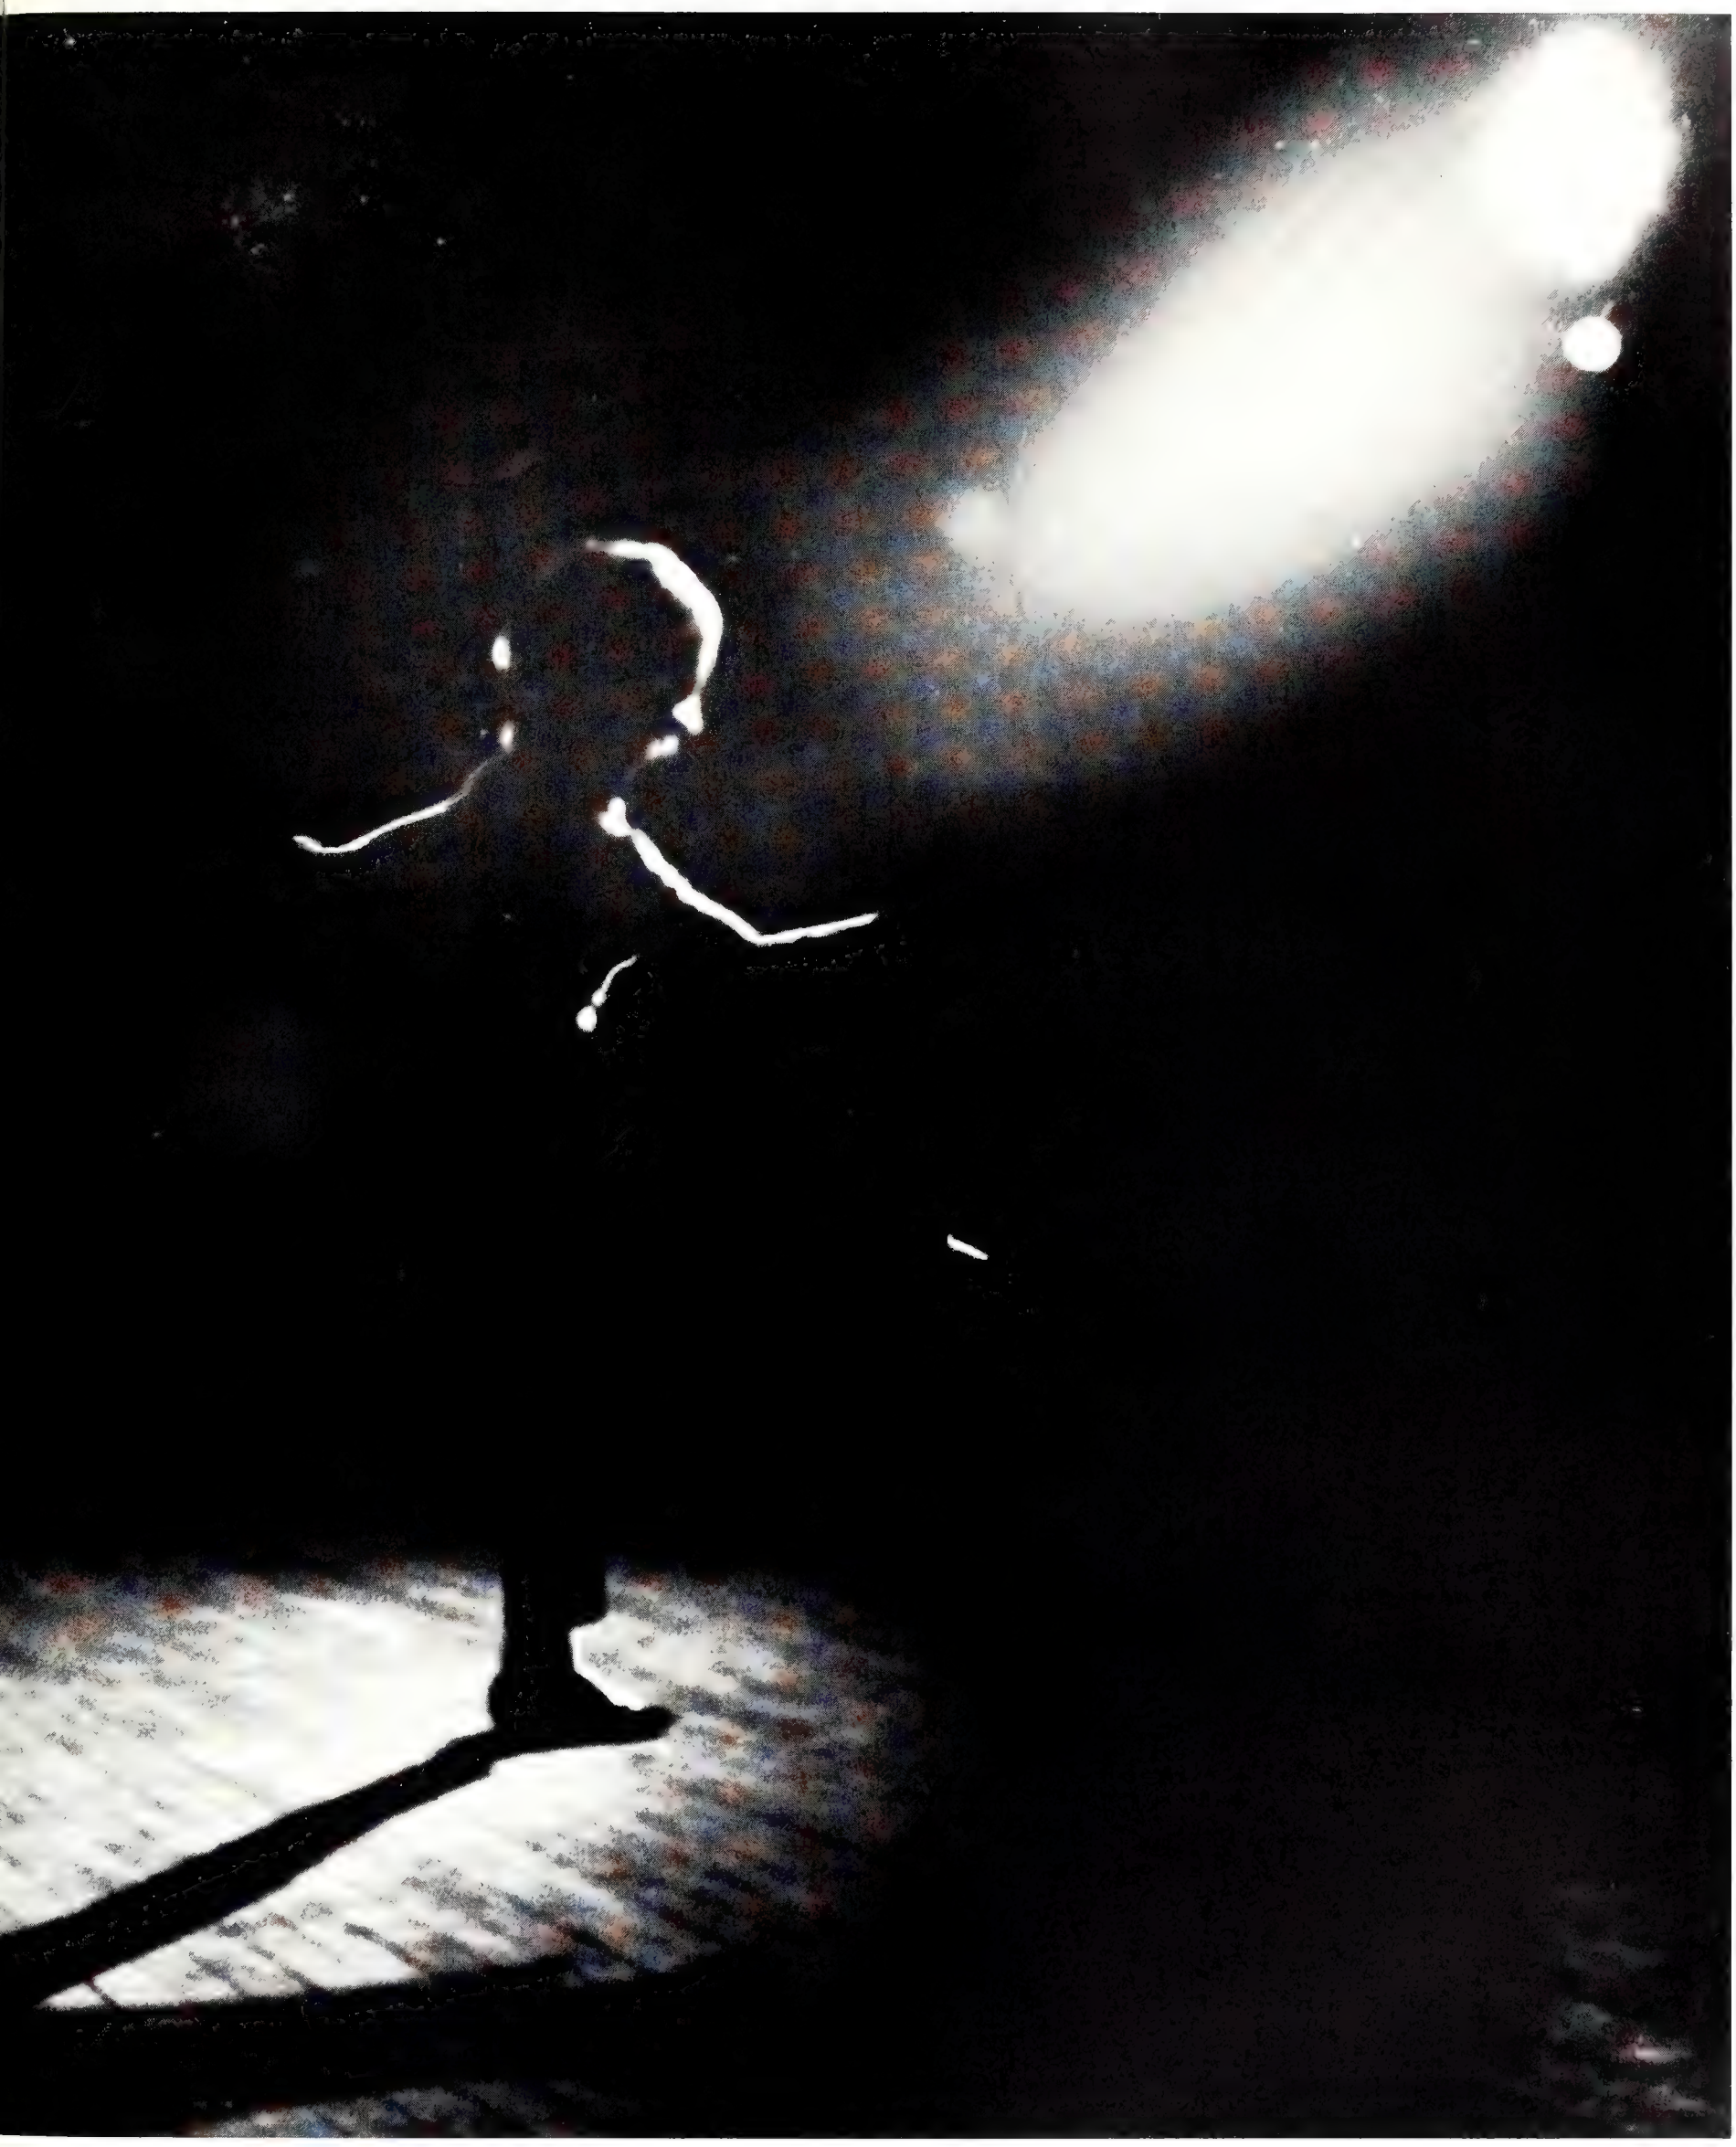

And the A Cappella Choir, willing even to undergo 7 a.m. calisthenics during the fall semester for a spring tour of Europe, traded theory books for sight-seeing maps and left the country in January for a cultural exchange program sponsored by the State Department.

So the year progressed with each presentation and event special in its own way. Possibly the most significant contribution to onstage performances was the pooling of school-wide talent by the USNT and University Players for Dickens' holiday favorite, A Christmas Carol. Set to music, the delightful drama wreathed the stage in an aura of yule spirit.

Onstage, the actors, musicians and singers lost themselves in the intensity of expression; backstage crews supported the performance.

On the dark side of the footlights, a collegiate audience applauded, yawned, or politely listened.

"$500??" — Bob asks Mary how she could spend so much money and not remember where. "There's a check made to L. Bernstein. The only L. Bernstein I know is Leonard Bernstein — I don't even know Leonard Bernstein," Mary mutters.

Hilarious Kerr Play Presented as Merry Arts Series Opener

Opening the Fine Arts Series with a bang, the Roger L. Stevens production of Mary, Mary was presented Oct. 22.

Playing to a full house, the actors merrily romped through the Jean Kerr comedy as the audience sweated out the laughs.

Mrs. Kerr's humor is more sophisticated than slapstick and the evening's cast well fulfilled the script's requirements.

Especially excellent in the role of Oscar Nelson, tax attorney, was veteran actor Clinton Sundberg. Nightclub singer Mindy Carson was an excellent choice for scatterbrain Mary. When interviewed, Miss Carson noted that the heat and need to project to such a large audience was a strain, but that it was worth it when the cast was so well received.

The Chat reviewer stated that the actors just didn't stand on stage and recite jokes, but portrayed their amusing parts realistically.

The company had completed four successful weeks in Los Angeles before bringing the Broadway hit to North Texas.

TOP: Obviously hanging around for two acts, the hat and coat belong to the owner of the stockinged feet — Mary's ex-husband. LEFT: Mary's male trio discuss money, marriage and Mary in the delightful Kerr comedy. The characters are seen in the National Performing Arts, Inc., production as they relax after a tiring verbal bout with Mary.

A darkened orchestra pit frames the action of Goldovsky's production of Puccini's Tosca. Set in Rome, Mario (right) attempts to hide a political prisoner who has escaped from confinement and is being sought by Scarpia.

Preparing his young charges for worship, the Sacristan instructs the choir boys to make ready for the service.

Former NT Student At Helm of Show

After its success two years ago with The Barber of Seville, the Boris Goldovsky Grand Opera Company was rescheduled by the Fine Arts Committee for a Nov. 5 presentation of Giacomo Puccini's Tosca.

Tosca's failure to measure up to the previous production was a disappointment.

Former NT student Edward Alley, serving as tour director, conducted the opera.

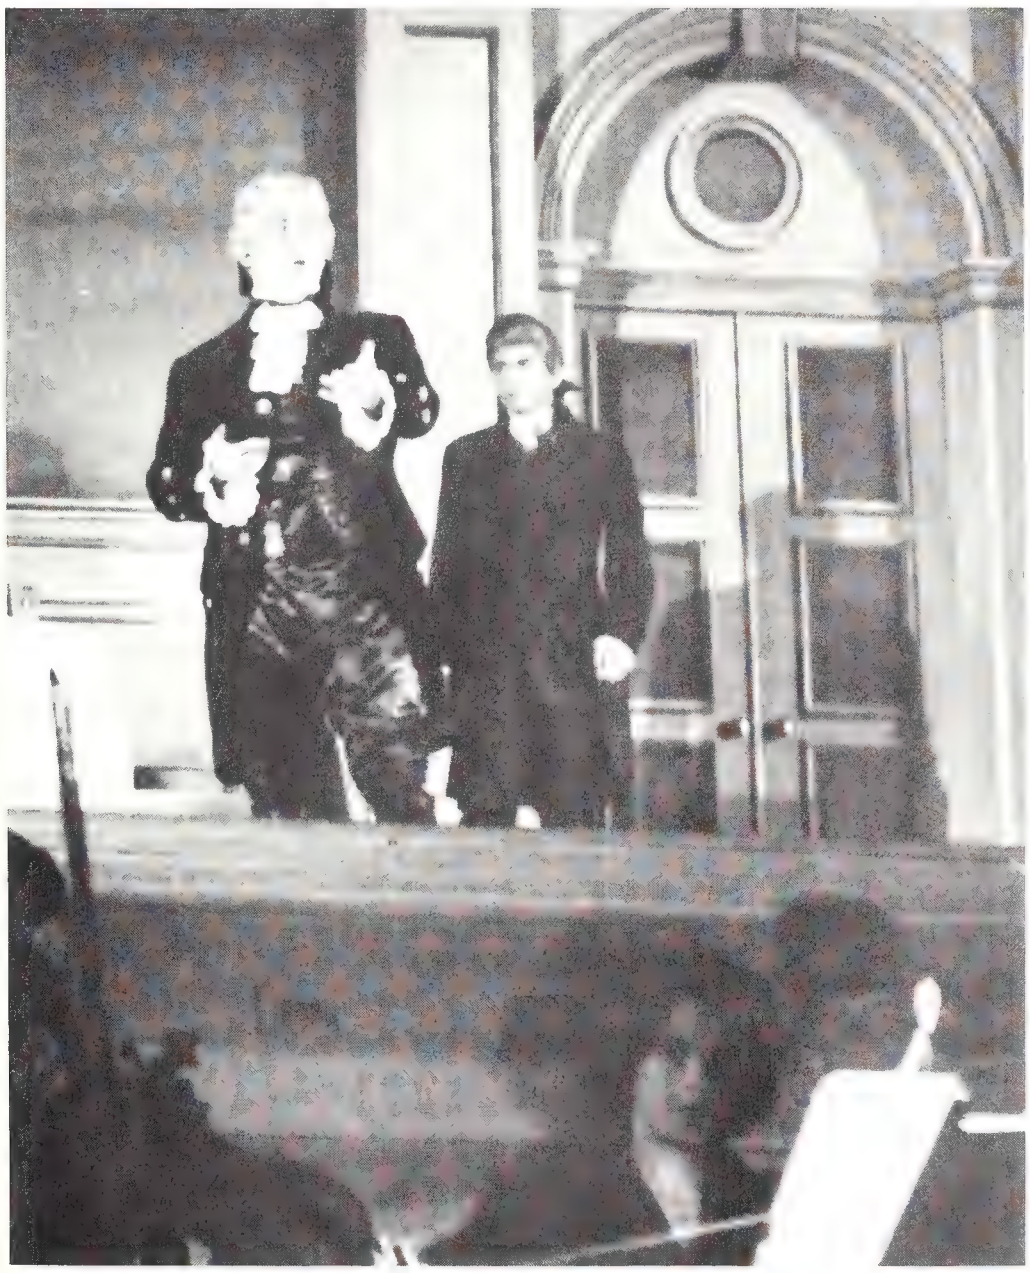

Although the production was viewed with varied emotions by the audience, the consensus indicated that it was a weak production.

Like the tour's producer, Boris Goldovsky, composer Puccini was a pioneer at a crucial point in opera history. One of the chief exponents of producing operas in English, Goldovsky uses both literal and free translations to arrive at a more workable libretto.

Goldovsky's technique of planning action to the minutest detail is also an innovation to the opera world.

TOP: Scarpia produces a fan which he says was left in the church by Mario's secret admirer. By changing Tosca's love to mistrust, the police chief feels that he can seduce the noted singer. LEFT: Later, the Baron sings of his plot and growing anger at Tosca's resistance and Mario's elusiveness.

Singer, Dallas Orchestra Honor Wagner's 150th

In honor of the 150th anniversary of Richard Wagner's birthday, the Fine Arts Committee presented the Dallas Symphony Orchestra and soprano Eileen Farrell in an all-Wagner program.

The program, which included selections from two of his operas and three of five songs from a Cycle, was conducted by music director Donald Johanos.

The matinee audience almost filled the Main Auditorium to hear the stirring music of the native German.

Miss Farrell, who debuted only three years ago at the Metropolitan Opera has also branched into the jazz and popular music field. The selections she presented were both lyrical and fiery.

Beginning her section with the lilting and expressive "Wesendonck Songs," she returned after intermission and sang the final aria from the last of the "Ring" operas.

Attempting an artistic nuance, Conductor Johanos tries to enhance the viability and zest of the "Overture and Bachanal" from Tannhaeuser.

Playing with its full complement of members, the orchestra performs the majestic "Siegfried's Funeral Music" from Wagner's Goetterdaemmerung.

Miss Farrell sings the "Immolation," as the tragedy ends with the "Redemption by Love" theme.

Expert on Universe Featured in Series

Earth is only one planet revolving around millions of planets in one galaxy amid millions of galaxies, said Dr. Harlow Shapley, the first of six speakers in the University Lecture Series begun by the Fine Arts Committee this year.

The former director of the Harvard College Observatory posed a question concerning possible life on other planets. Since water is necessary for life, he said, any planet too close or too far from the sun cannot sustain life without water in liquid form.

Dr. Shapley expressed doubt of a successful trip to the moon. He felt money spent on space exploration could be used more constructively on earth for the sake of humanity.

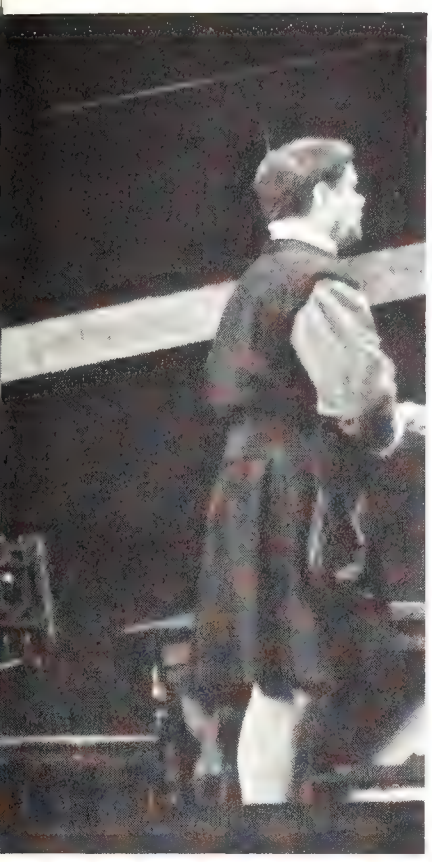

Gestures periodically lighten Dr. Shapley's talk. He delights the audience as he laughs with them, thoughtfully pokes his eye, gleefully scratches his head and factually holds attention.

Shaken Audience Views 'All Seasons'

The stage props stood as innocent bystanders — immobile, silent, ignored.

Onstage the actors from National Performing Arts, Inc., identified themselves as characters in Robert Bolt's play A Man for All Seasons. But the action was brought to the audience through the narration of the Common Man. By portraying several roles, the Common Man depicted the weaknesses of ordinary people in their pursuit of personal gain.

A single spot penetrated the dark stage revealing the executioner's silhouette — and his lethal weapon. Although the audience anticipated the death of Thomas More, a shock was felt when the hack of the executioner's ax ended the hero's life.

An uncommon man is Bolt's narrator who guides the audience's attention throughout the evening in the drama.

Faculty Artists Distinguish NT In NYC' Poland

Two North Texas resident artists, both women, have distinguished themselves this year for both the campus and the international audience. Margaret Kalil, resident soprano, and Carroll Glenn, new resident violinist, made concert appearances in New York and Poland, respectively.

Debuting at Town Hall, home of Concert Artists Guild, Miss Kalil was called a "comer" by the New York Herald Tribune, and the New York Times noted that "Miss Kalil's voice is remarkable for its instrumental purity and for concentrated vibrancy that on certain high notes is exciting." She gave a concert preview of her New York performance here on Oct. 29 (See Bottom Picture).

Miss Glenn, sponsored by the State Department, toured Poland and appeared with the Warsaw Philharmonic, Lodz Philharmonic and the Pozman Philharmonic. The remainder of the tour was spent in television, radio and recording sessions.

Miss Glenn's first fall solo appearance on the NT campus was with the University Symphony during the Composers Workshop.

Progression eliminates tradition in the original selections as presented by the Lanny Steele Trio.

Jazz Band in Session; Progression Unlimited

The all-American spirit of growth and freedom expressed itself in the form of jazz Dec. 3 when the lab bands presented their annual fall concert.

Amid the enthusiastic surge of rhythm rose a mournful tribute, "The Inhuman Slaying of John F. Kennedy," composed by Toby Guynn especially for this concert. The Lanny Steele Trio presented the somber eulogy in four movements: Parade and assassination, requiem, protest and dirge.

Guest soloist Don Gililland, a North Texas graduate and twice winner of the best guitarist award at the Notre Dame Collegiate Jazz Festival, exhibited his original "Three for Two" in addition to accompanying Steele's trio.

In keeping with the tradition of individualism, the 1 O'clock Lab Band, directed by Leon Breeden, played its versions of several popular pieces, "Our Love Is Here to Stay," "Take Five" and "Easy Livin'."

Rhythm on four hooves could be interpreted from the 3 O'clock Lab Band's presentation on "Blue's in Hoss's Flat" directed by Joe Davis.

Originality in composition and arrangement was shown in the three pieces played by the Bill Farmer Quintet: "Look for Me in There Too," "For Carl Perkins" and "Free Flight."

Opera Workshop Presents Verdi's Tragic 'Rigoletto'

As court jester, Rigoletto amuses the court and tempts the Duke with new conquests of amorous adventure.

In her tavern, Maddalena enters the plot as a passing fancy of the Duke and takes the place of Gilda who dies so the Duke may live. The setting, darkly mysterious, lends an air of intrigue to the final act of one of Verdi's favorite works.

As a laboratory, Opera Workshop offers a study of production methods and by means of the final performance is able to simulate "professional house" conditions.

Such was Rigoletto as presented Dec. 11 and 13. Leonard Eureka, Denton Record-Chronicle reviewer, acclaimed the Friday night production as ". . . perhaps one of the finest presentations of the Opera Workshop."

The production director was Eugene Conley, resident tenor and head of the opera workshop. Assisting Conley were two music faculty members: Miss Margaret Grubb, musical preparation, and Dr. Edward A. Baird, chorus master.

The scenery and costumes were handled by Joseph Tessmer of Universal Productions, Inc.

Accompanist for chorus rehearsals was Ellan Smith. Accompanist was Dick Whitten.

Gaily bouncing fortissimos and quietly sustaining the more subtle passages, Harris molds the 76-member University Symphony into a single unit. The contemporary shell of the Music Recital Hall lends its modernity to the vibrant dissonance of the conductor's work.

Visitor Harris Leads His 'Fifth'

Drawn by both violinist Carroll Glenn and conductor Roy Harris, a receptive audience in the Music Recital Hall applauded the University Symphony's first concert of the year during the Composers' Workshop in November.

As though they had not accomplished enough during the first half by performing Harris' Fifth Symphony inspired by the composer-conductor's genius, the group returned after intermission and with resident violinist Glenn played Strauss' Violin Concerto in D Minor.

Harris, who offered critiques on student compositions during the week, also conducted the Chapel Choir. The choir performed a vocal work of Harris' in conjunction with a piano recital by his wife, Johana. Time has called Harris "America's leading symphonist whose music is like the American continent rising up and saying hello."

At the Texas Music Educators Association Convention in February, the Flute Ensemble of the orchestra was presented in concert. Also at the Houston convention, Miss Glenn played accompanied by piano faculty member Jack Roberts.

Intermission: Empty chairs, silent instruments and vacant podium. A hushed audience awaits the Concert Band's appearance.

Sonorous cellos drone as Harris helps the orchestra polish its performance. The conductor asks for an artistic embellishment during the casual rehearsal.

Band Season Begins With Concert Success

The brass horns reached a sudden climax. Cymbals crashed. The audience strained to retain its emotion as the Concert Band presented "An Irish Tune From Country Derby" as a tribute to the late President John F. Kennedy. Punctuating the mournful silence following the number was the meager applause of a few naive children.

Guest soloist Jack Rumbley, a part-time instructor at North Texas, stirred the listeners with an active number by Adolph Schreiner, "The Worried Drummer," involving the use of eight percussion instruments.

TOP: Director Maurice McAdow leads the 85-member band in its first public concert of the season. LEFT: The performance prompts applause requiring four encores.

OneandTwoandThreeandFourandOfftoEurope

Muscles and lungs got into the act as the A Cappella Choir spent the fall semester preparing for a concert tour, sponsored by the U. S. State Department, through nine European countries.

Rehearsing numerous extra hours each week, the choral group also turned to physical exercise. A volunteer calisthenics class, designed to build up resistance to illness during the tour, was offered three days a week at 7 a.m. A cold gym floor (Top Left) and sore muscles (Bottom Left) didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the singers as they planned the prospective trip.

Wedged between practicing two extra hours per week as a group and four in sections, the 40 students attended to such incidental trip preparations as applying for passports with the Denton County District Clerk (Bottom Right).

Not only practicing (Top Right) but performing, too, the choir taped a 30-minute television program and previewed its tour repertoire at a concert Jan. 6 in the Main Auditorium.

Approximately 1,500 home fans gave an enthusiastic standing ovation as a sendoff for the choir. The program had three elements: sacred, traditional, American.

Raving Critics Roar In Ranting Reviews

The A Cappella Choir left for its three-month tour of Europe from Dallas Love Field on a dreary Jan. 30.

The weather was, however, no indication of the success of the tour. The critics raved, the crowds were enthusiastic and as ambassadors the choir well represented its university, Texas and the United States.

Billed officially as part of the International Cultural Exchange Program, the choir toured Portugal, Spain, Denmark, Finland, Sweden, Iceland, Luxembourg, Belgium and Switzerland.

From three prepared programs, it presented works by Roy Harris, Bach, Dello Joio, Poulenc, Copland, Richard Rodgers and Beethoven.

. . . Yesterday's concert showed us the NTSU choir as an instrument of quality and an intensity far above normal with student or university groups of this kind . . .

Diario de Noticas (Lisbon)
Feb. 4, 1964

A complete success for the choir, the director, the soloists and the instrumentalists, all of them greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Diario de Noticas (Lisbon)
Feb. 4, 1964

. . . The musicality of all the members is unquestionable.

O Primario de Janerio (Oporto)
Feb. 7, 1964

. . . We do not hesitate to declare that this is one of the most important and remarkable choirs we have ever had among us, and it is equal to the best German choral groups that have visited us . . .

O Comercio Do Porto (Oporto)
Feb. 7, 1964

The splendid choir from North Texas university showed, together with a splendid technique and an excellent quality of their voices, a remarkable ability to interpret with equal perfection a baroque Bach and a romantic Bruckner, as well as a classic Victoria and a neoclassic V. Williams . . .

Diario da Manha (Lisbon)
Feb. 6, 1964

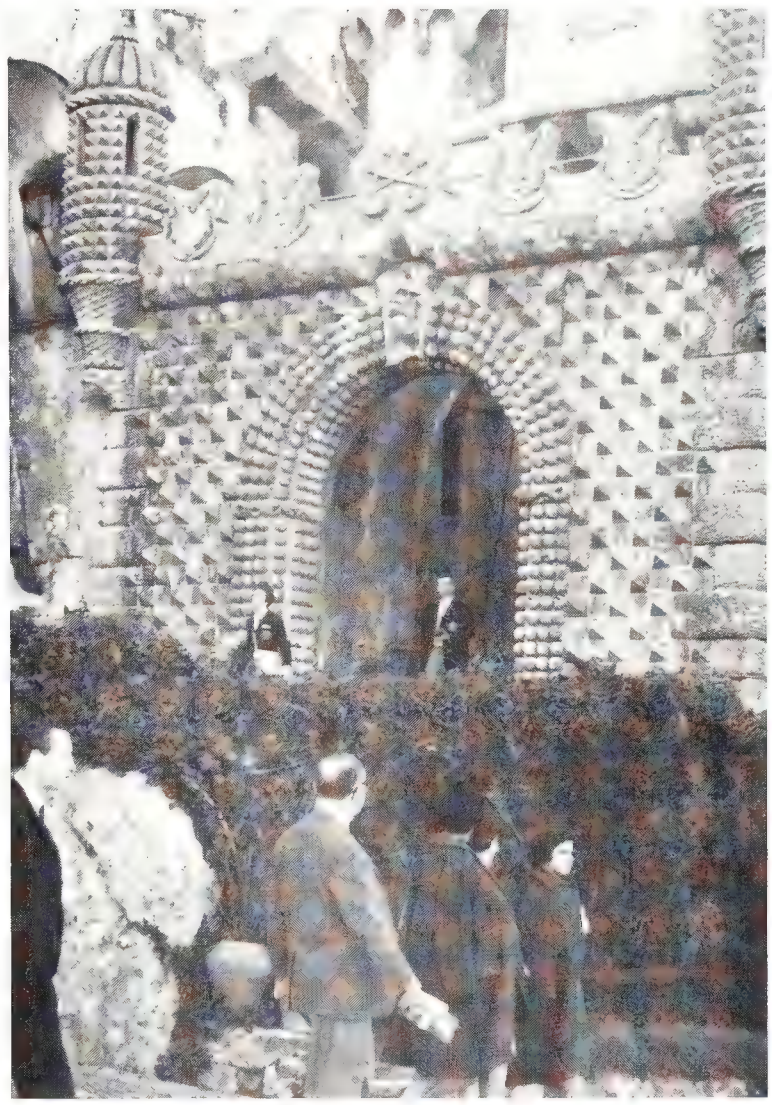

The voices are well trained and give the impression of extreme ease. With such a choir there are no difficult works; everything is possible . . .

Journal de Noticas (Oporto)
Feb. 9, 1964

The numbers ranged from a "Magnificat" and Mass to "Navajo War Dance," "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair" and "St. Louis Blues."

Perhaps the most laudatory statement concerning the entire tour was made by a diplomatic official in Portugal who called the choir the "most noteworthy" offering of the exchange program which his town had seen.

Unique Evening Offered By Collegiate Thespians

During the day the UB Coffee Shop is filled with light pouring in the windows and students chattering. By night it is dark. Four times during the past year, the Coffee Shop has had its share of lights and action, when Supper Theater sets up shop.

A unique institution, Supper Theater is one of the more cultural and collegiate offerings on campus. Begun in the late 1940's, the group first appeared off-campus in a downtown cafe. In 1952 the Theater moved to North Texas as part of the speech and drama department and was the first college supper theater group in the Southwest.

The group offers the players a chance to perform for a different type of audience. In most other drama or theater groups with which they work, the audience is mainly students. Supper Theater, however, plays to a more mature group of patrons. The productions attract people from off campus as well as faculty and students. The arena drama also puts the actors in closer touch with the audience.

Gilbert and Sullivan's satirical Trial by Jury and Samuel Beckett's searching Endgame were presented.

The theater also offered the work of a young student playwright. Sophomore English major Ransom Jeffrey's play, Tenfold Laughs and a Few Tears, was selected from entries in the original one-act play contest.

The fourth selection was Tennessee Williams' Twenty-Seven Wagons Full of Cotton.

SRO Crowds View Gilbert-Sullivan Satire

Enthusiastic response to the Supper Theter's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Jury forced its holdover for two extra performances. The boom for tickets forced unprecedented Saturday productions in the Studio Theater.

The operetta, which played to a standing room only audience, is a spoof on the British court system of the 19th Century. The case in question is a breach of promise suit.

TRIAL BY JURY

Judge	Bob Foard
Plaintiff	Angela Mitchell
Defendant	Don Edwards
Counsel	Bob B. King
Usher	Steve Larner
Foreman of Jury	John Peninger
Bridesmaids	Pam DeGroot, Jamie Dyess, Suzy McCue, LaNell Heizer
Jury	Jan Short, Dick Downs, Bill Breaux, Michael G. Smith, Daniel A. Currie

The plot revolves around the defendant, a bachelor, who claims that the breach of promise was misconstrued and was merely his last plea for pursuit. The breath-taking accuser insists that she has been jilted.

The judge, a pompous old magistrate with an eye for the ladies, and an all-male jury see that justice is done, somehow.

Our defendant is a sly fellow according to his counselor who is attempting to save his client from having to marry the lovely accuser.

Our swooning plaintiff is overcome during proceedings where she is suing for breach of promise. Her bewigged counselor comes to her aid.

LEFT: The jury which is trying the case is in merry disarray as they judge the fate of our villain. The Victorian spoof on the judiciary is full of satire and irony. BOTTOM: "Dearly Beloved," we are gathered here to watch this man and this woman fight it out. For you see he really doesn't want to marry her. Can you imagine?

'Endgame' Opens Season

Theater of the absurd combined with the clanging of pots and pans provided the impetus for Supper Theater's presentation of Samuel Beckett's Endgame, Oct. 10-11.

The disturbing and tense play in the modern theater form stresses the inability of man to communicate and the absurdity of seeking a higher being in a world as it is.

The production was accompanied by music composed by graduate student Gerald Warfield. Warfield's music employs pots, pans, an oboe, piano and trombone. Three tape tracks were intermixed for the music to blend. The volume was then either raised, lowered or the tapes were played backwards for varying effects.

Mrs. Rita Black who is business manager of Supper Theater directed the production.

Enthusiastic Audience Greets Players' Gift on Bard's 400th

To one of the most responsive audiences of the year a hearty Othello opened March 11 for a three-night run.

A University Players presentation, it marked the annual Shakespearean production and was in honor of the bard's 400th birthday anniversary.

The show was presented in traditional form but was accompanied by incidental music of the modern school. Scoring was by Gerald Warfield.

OTHELLO
Othello	Bob King
Desdemona	Rita Thomas
Cassio	Tom Donald
Iago	John Peninger
Roderigo	John Moody

The small ensemble was under the direction of Jim Cuomo.

As a student production, it was a showcase for the talent of the leads, with the supporting actors trying to communicate through the old drama.

As the drama draws to a close and Iago's plot is beginning to be made clear to Othello, the Moor questions the derelict schemer.

The over-affectionate Amelia, wife of Iago, never misses a chance to make love to Cassio.

Dense Roderigo peers aimlessly into space (the audience) as he becomes part of Iago's vicious plot. In the end Roderigo becomes a victim.

Alas, here we have the poor Cratchits. But they are poor only financially. In their hearts they are happy, because they have the Christmas spirit. God bless them every one.

Players, USNT, Madrigals Unite

Uniting three areas of North Texas student life, USNT, University Players and Madrigal Singers joined forces Dec. 17-19 to present Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol.

"The production was a good idea," said Dr. Stanley K. Hamilton, University Players director. "It's good for the whole student body — they can get into the spirit of Christmas before they leave the campus for the holidays."

CHRISTMAS CAROL

Scrooge	Bob King, John Peninger
Bob Cratchit	Bob Foard
The Spirit (Christmas Past)	Kathleen Ormsby
The Spirit (Christmas Present)	Brad Bowles
Mrs. Cratchit	Jan Short
Christmas Future	Dan Currie

Chat critic Bill Perkins noted that "pooling the talents of several NT schools proved highly successful." He further remarked that "there were more hums than bugs in the production, as the Madrigal Singers performed as brilliantly as ever, brightening up the street scenes with their infectious carols."

The effective lighting techniques combined with the well-designed and executed costumes added to the production which may have set a precedent. The enthusiasm shown by the students may result in a pageant becoming an annual event.

God rest ye merry gentlemen/Let nothing you dismay/Remember Christ our Saviour was born on Christmas Day/To save us all from Satan's power/When we are . . .

For Festive Holiday Show

"Yes, now you're getting it," encourages Dr. Hamilton as Cratchit sweats over his ledgers in preparation for one of the leads in Dickens' cheery play.

As the program progresses so does the tempo and rhythm. As the quartet begins to get the feel of the auditorium, they take off: Morello, drums, in 3/4; Gene Wright, bass, in 4/4; and Brubeck and Paul Desmond, piano and sax, in either or neither.

Jazz Quartet Goes Wild, Takes Tempo With Them

The quartet played. The curtain opened. The audience applauded. The quartet played.

For North Texas it was a night of praise. Dave Brubeck, with the realization that he was playing to a musically aware school, presented a daring program: 11/4 and 10/4 time signatures; even into a counterpoint with 3/4.

The crowd was boisterous. Many had waited since 5:30 p.m. for the doors to open. The house was packed by 7:30 p.m. There was no disappointment. They got Brubeck.

Drummer Joe Morello put himself through the paces with an original composition, "Shimwah."

As he left Dallas Love Field, Brubeck called Lab Band director Leon Breeden to say, "Commend your students for their courtesy and the way they received our music. That's one of the greatest audiences we ever played for."

Backstage With Brubeck

BRUBECK ON FUTURE OF JAZZ:

My brother has written a composition called "Dialogue for Combo and Symphony Orchestra." The form is most unusual — the orchestra score is written, but the combo part is improvisation. . . . We recorded the number with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic and will play the "Dialogue" with the Berlin Philharmonic on our European tour next year. . . .

Other jazz-symphony fields are also opening. . . . The newest is the arrangement in which the symphony plays a standard repertory work and the jazz musicians, either solo or ensemble, improvise on the theme. . . .

Foreign groups should follow their own national or ethnic groups' musical heritage, and come up with a new angle for jazz. . . . Jazz is like any art form. If nothing new is added, it becomes stale and dull. . . .

The quartet never rehearses for a show, only LPs. . . .

Jazz festivals sometimes accomplish what they set out to, sometimes not. . . . The two outstanding festivals are those at Newport and Monterrey. . . .

The jazz mass was a good idea — more will be heard of it. . . .

. . . ON COLLEGE AUDIENCES:

We don't change the show too much for a college audience. . . . We changed the show tonight because of the place we were playing. . . . That's the reason I was nervous. . . . The North Texas audience is aware of musical trends. . . . At some schools we have to spend the whole night educating the audience. . . . Some schools have more 'hip' faculties than student bodies. . . . We played for a Lutheran girls school once, and I thought we were in for a dead night. They loved it. It was a school for religious music; they had studied counterpoint and fugues, but they had never heard them in jazz. They were amazed and made a tremendous audience. . . .

We played in New Orleans before here and stayed in 4/4 a little longer — you're a little scared to go too far out down there. . . .

. . . ON ROCK AND ROLL:

We are getting back what we send out, only it's worse when it comes back. . . .

USNT: Killingsworth Era Ends

The Killingsworth era has ended.

James Killingsworth — often affectionately dubbed JK and, more rarely, JRK — has left a decided mark on NTSU's student government, USNT.

This energetic young man arrived on campus as a freshman the year Denton's "teachers college" achieved university status. At the student government level, he began a purposeful individual campaign to make the school a university in spirit as well as name.

Coming up through the ranks, Killingsworth occupied the posts of freshman president, vice-president of ISO, vice-president of USNT and finally the climax to a three-year college career, president of USNT.

Not satisfied with mere political fame, Killingsworth earned membership in Phi Eta Sigma, Talons, Blue Key and the presidency of Alpha Chi. As a result he was cited as Outstanding Freshman Man and Outstanding Junior Man.

Killingsworth has used his political acumen and sound judgment to draw together the branches of student government — senate, class officers, executive committee and supreme court.

The personable college man has led the NT government to such apparent successes as the formation of a Missouri Valley compact — an association to promote inter-campus activities and scholastic advancement.

Of the Killingsworth era we say:
"REQUIESCAT IN PACE."

Green Jackets

Active Coeds Keep Up On Events

They are always there.

Whether it is befriending a lost freshman, eliminating some of the confusion of registration or helping out during the frenzy of Homecoming, one of North Texas' most active organizations — the Green Jackets — can be counted on to make an appearance.

Visible on almost every scene of campus activity, these coeds — numbering 45 strong — strive to maintain harmony and unison at North Texas. At the beginning of each semester, a special information booth is set up on the Campus Green to ease some of the early semester problems. During football season, the Green Jackets see that the goal posts are decorated. Then for each of the home football and basketball games, this group makes a special effort to attend each contest en masse.

These energetic coeds make it a habit to keep up with the campus events.

Four smiling members direct lost students to their proper destination during hectic days of registration.

Talons

Service Group Boosts School Spirit

Boosting school spirit at North Texas is nothing new for the Talons — they've been doing it since 1959.

And those green-shirted North Texans are seen at almost every campus-wide activity as they engineer projects to promote school spirit and preserve traditions.

The Talons handle the responsibility of preparing the Homecoming bonfire, as well as other Homecoming activities, guarding the Victory Bell and ushering at Fine Arts Series productions. Throughout the year, it is not uncommon for the Talons to be called upon for various special services.

Spirit is their forte. During the basketball season, members of the fall pledge class were responsible for the introduction of a large copper eagle mounted on a staff as an additional victory symbol to match the Victory Bell.

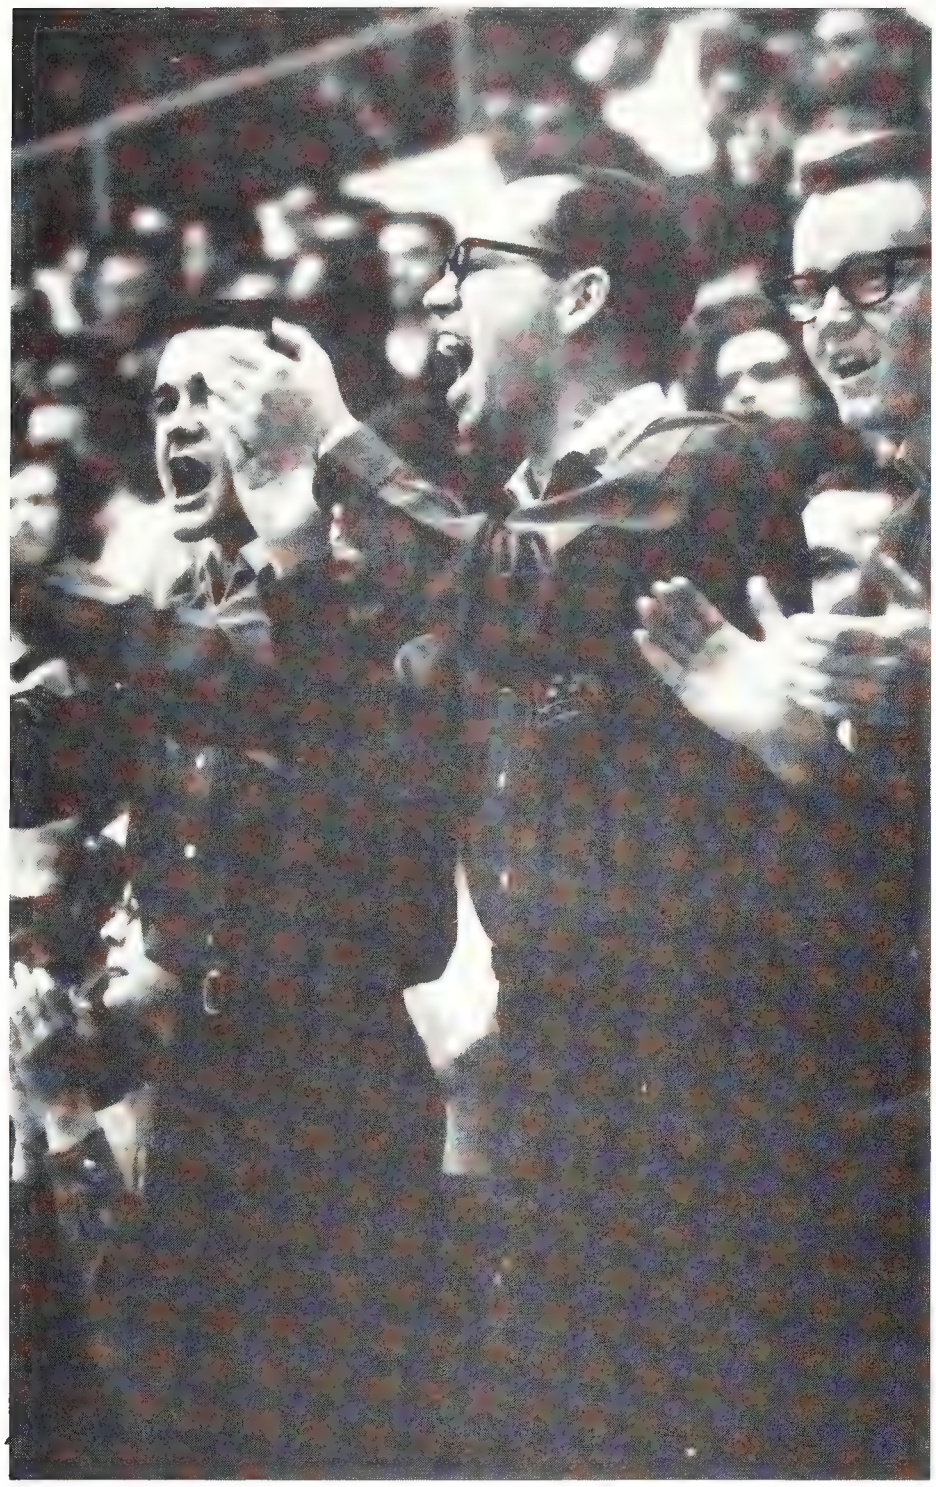

Membership is no problem. This year, the group was limited to 36 of the campus' top men. These men — in order to be eligible candidates — must display a high interest in serving NTSU and have grades equal to the overall male average.

W. D. A.

Dorm Elects Sweetheart

Residents of West Dormitory, largest men's dormitory on the NTSU campus, find participation in North Texas activities nothing unusual.

A Homecoming Queen nominee, a Yucca Beauty nominee, intramural teams, Homecoming House decoration contest entry, participation in the torch parade promoting an NTSU road trip, a Denton State School party and various informal parties are only a few of the activities that West Dorm Association members enjoyed this year.

At both football and basketball games, the WDA proved again this year that its organization could hold its own in displaying school spirit on campus.

This year membership rose to 450.

Exec. Council

Women's Forum Votes For New Constitution

Just ask any new coed at NTSU how nice it is to have a "big sister" to "show her the ropes."

She'll tell you it's a fine feeling and that she was adopted by her upperclassman big sister at the Women's Forum annual Big-Little Sister Adoption ceremony.

The Women's Forum, under the leadership of an executive council composed of officers, dorm representatives and class representatives, is open to all North Texas women.

In addition to helping new coeds feel more at home, the Women's Forum sponsors many activities for North Texas women.

This year the Forum approved a new constitution, the first written one in four years; told fortunes at the Halloween party; danced to the music of the Bill Adamson Quartet at the autumn formal; did the twist at the Valentine's Dance.

The Forum also sponsored Dutch Week and the Ugliest Man on Campus competition and dance and presented on Honor's Day the Woman of the Year Award to a senior woman.

Avesta Publishes Campus Talent

Creative North Texans are afforded an opportunity to display their talents in the campus magazine, the Avesta.

Published each fall and spring semester, the Avesta contains the efforts of many students. Be it the timid first offering of a freshman or the fourth or fifth appearance of an upperclassman, talent is welcomed by Avesta editors. Prize money is awarded to the top contributions in fiction, nonfiction and poetry.

The literary magazine is an eight-time winner of All-American honors.

Campus Chat Prints First Special Edition

With the death of John F. Kennedy just miles away, the Campus Chat put out its first known special edition on Nov. 22, 1963.

Soon after the President's death was confirmed, members of the Chat staff called to the office or came by to get assignments. While some reporters interviewed faculty members who had attended the presidential luncheon in Dallas, others began to write what had been brought in or phoned in to the office. By 6:30 p.m. the paper was off the press. Photographs of Kennedy taken by a Chat reporter at Carswell AFB the night before his death were used along with an editorial tribute and a summary of the known facts and campus reaction.

The extra was printed on the old flatbed press, which was replaced in December by a web offset press.

The new press speeds printing of the Chat, improves the quality of picture reproduction and in some cases allows the use of one color in addition to black and white.

New Format Adds Life; Staff Provides Content; Result - - - 1964 YUCCA

Thumb through a yearbook — any yearbook. You'll find pictures, captions, copy, headlines, art work and layouts. And the YUCCA? More of the same.

But behind this story of a university year carved out in words and pictures is a staff. Seven section editors, an adviser, four photographers and eleven assistants enthusiastically began a job — working much, sleeping little, playing practical jokes to relieve monotony. And in May, the same staff members smiled nostalgically at students who received the spanking new books off the press. They smiled because it was done, but wished there was just one more deadline — it couldn't all be finished!

The YUCCA had a new look. Pages began to breathe with the adoption of a new format — lots of white space and strict inside margins. Pictures looked black; it was a new printing technique. The YUCCA had changed, but the staff hadn't. There had still been the same long hours of work, equally lengthy coffee breaks, fun parties and neglected studies — this was 1963-64.

And from this year, 512 pages were compiled which had begun as ideas and ended as the 1964 YUCCA from North Texas State.

Publication Committee

Students Help Name NT Publications Editors

Unlike some universities whose publications editors are elected campus-wide, North Texas depends on the Student Publications Committee to choose editors on the basis of their qualifications.

The committee is comprised of editors, sponsors and senior staff members of the Chat, Yucca and Avesta and special appointees of the university president and USNT.

To the Avesta editors, the committee makes available prize money to be awarded each long session to students contributing the best poems, essays and short stories.

Independent Students' Organization

Uniting of MVC Schools Studied

"ISO is a service organization for the entire campus," stated Jeff Crossland, Independent Students' Organization president.

Independent thinking channeled toward promoting better student government, a unified student body and better student life is the aim of the organization.

Following this aim, ISO nominated its first candidate for Homecoming Queen, held all-candidate rallies and supported qualified candidates, regardless of the candidate's affiliations.

Resolutions were passed pledging the organization to better freshmen orientation, to promote a stronger alumni association and to promote better understanding between the administration and the students. A Missouri Valley Student Association, uniting MVC schools, was also investigated.

Young Republicans

Graduates Now Serving Senior Party

The political tempo naturally picked up on campus as national and state elections drew close. The Young Republicans heard Tom Kirkland, managing editor of the Denton Record-Chronicle, speak on the fairness of political reporting at the club's first spring meeting.

Joe Kindred, an NT ex and now regional field director of the Republican Party, was joined by club members John Weekly and Charles Boyd in a discussion of the present position of the Republican Party in the fall. Weekly is executive director of the Denton County Republican Party and Boyd is a Denton precinct chairman.

The club invited interested students to a non-partisan party in Dallas in November with music by the Arthur K. Adams band.

The campus proved to be the campus bulletin board for the YRs as the club made extensive efforts to publicize their meetings.

Young Democrats

Club Urged to Work Politically

Members of the Young Democrats Club, not unlike their fellow students, felt themselves fall into a vacuum of despair and uncertainty after the death of President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

A group of YDs led by club president Pat Noon rushed to Carswell Air Force Base the evening before the assassination to greet the President's plane. Grins and excited conversations dominated the group, which waved lighthearted signs and pushed close to the fence that enclosed the landing area.

Earlier that week, editor Penn Jones Jr. of the Midlothian Mirror spoke to the YDs, urging them to organize in each hometown, accept discipline and get out and work. After the events of Nov. 22, 1963, YDs realized the importance of that advice.

Frat Council, Panhellenic Gear for Progress

Social fraternities on the North Texas campus are geared towards progress through the functions of Inter-Fraternity Council, Panhellenic and Junior Panhellenic.

Representatives of the ten fraternities constitute the membership of the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC). In an effort to improve rush functions, fraternity-administration relations and Greek activities, two North Texas IFC members attended the National Inter-Fraternity Council Convention in New York. Greek Week and Sing Song are two of the traditional IFC-sponsored activities.

Panhellenic and Junior Panhellenic (pledge class representatives) are the sorority equivalents of IFC. Its members meet regularly with the council sponsor, Dean of Women Imogene Bentley Dickey, to discuss and absolve sorority problems. All rush functions are sponsored by Panhellenic. Raising money for charity is the annual philanthropic project of Junior Panhellenic.

ADPis Play Sister To Filipino Child

One daughter and 25 sisters were added to the Alpha Delta Pi chapter at NT in the fall. The foster child, Bernadita from the Philippines, was adopted by the sorority as its full-time project. The 25 sisters made up the '63 fall pledge class.

The big event during the autumn season was the Hawaiian Luau party at the Kap 'n Kid Club, where the fall pledge class was presented to the members.

An English fish 'n chips restaurant was the motif for the pledges' "Oliver Twist" party at the First State Bank.

ADPi members Judy Philbrick and Nancy Filippone were elected varsity cheerleaders by the student body.

Alpha Phi Actives Sport Senators, USNT Officers

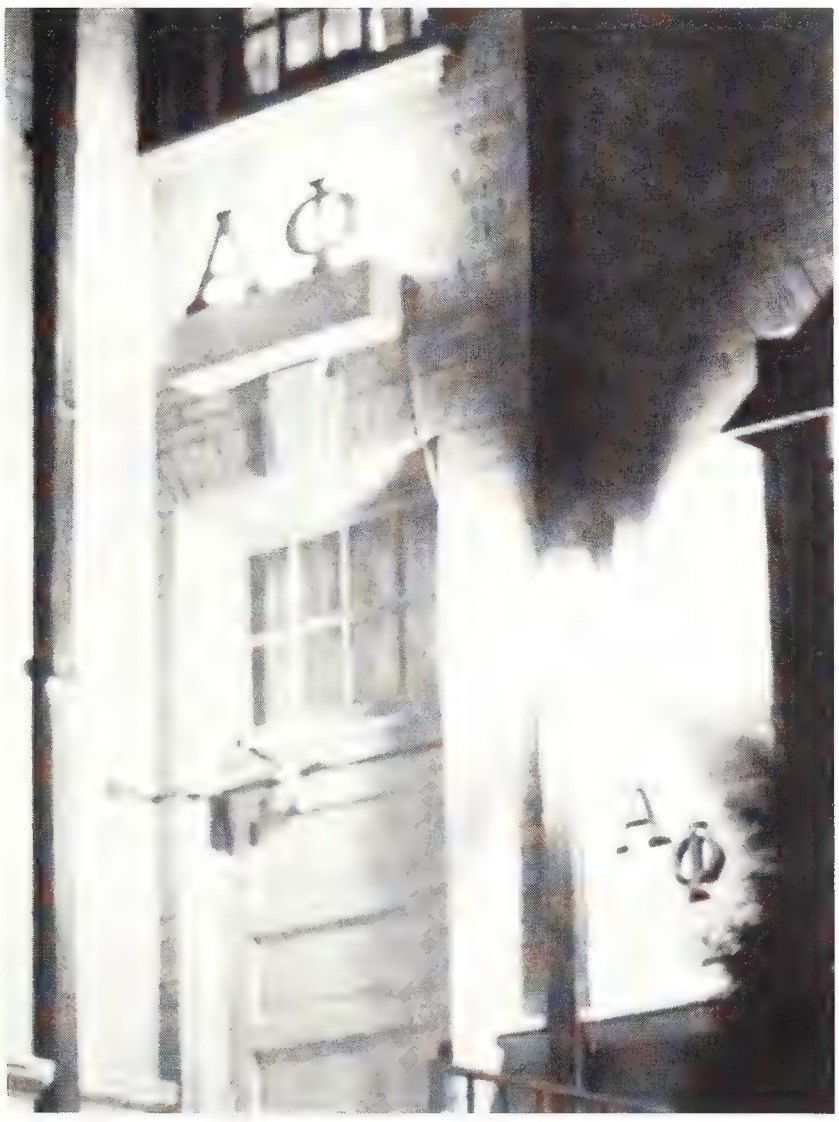

"Race for the Hill Begins," the theme of the third-place winner of the Homecoming float contest, gave Alpha Phi a new trophy for its display case. The float emphasized the coming 1964 elections.

Wicker baskets of greenery now adorn the walls of the Alpha Phi ramp to complement its new color scheme of blue and green.

Alpha Phi members were active in student government and intramural athletics. Alpha Phi active Sherrill Dickeson served as USNT secretary and four Alpha Phi members were elected senators. The sorority won the women's intramural volleyball championship.

Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Phi provided refreshment and entertainment at a Christmas party for the Dallas Juvenile Home.

The fall pledge class went way out with a Beatnik party for members. A pledge quartet, "Peter, Paul, Mary — and Dick," entertained. At Christmas, a buffet supper and dance for members was held at the American Legion Hall.

Chi Os Offer Aid To Children, Aged

The bonds of Chi Omega reached far beyond the North Texas campus this year.

From Chilton Hall to the Denton State School the sorority reached a hand of friendship to adopt a child as its annual philanthropic project.

During the Christmas season the Chi Omega pledge class set aside six afternoons to visit the aged residents of the Denton Manor. The children at Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home were given a Christmas party by the ChiOs and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity presented the busy coeds with the annual activities trophy. The ChiOs were well represented at the Greek Bowl when Suzanne Williamson was presented as the Greek Bowl Queen.

"Record School Spirit" gave Chi Omega first runner-up honors as the most original float in the Homecoming Parade. Susan Beyette served as one of the four Homecoming princesses.

Can Can girls dance into the circus spirit of Chi Omega's Period II rush party. A live monkey, a circus wagon and peanut carts also entertained.

Float Named Most Beautiful

Winning the Most Beautiful Award for their Homecoming float was the highlight of the year for the Delta Gammas. Another trophy was added to the DG display case in 1963, when the Sorority won Sing Song. The trophy may someday become a permanent part of the Delta Gamma ramp since 1963 was the third straight year the sorority received the award.

A musical skit of the "Wizard of Oz" provided entertainment for the DG's at their fall pledge class party. Also during the year, the DG big sisters took their little sisters to dinner at the Holiday Inn. Members, alumni, pledges and friends picnicked in the fall.

At Christmas, the Delta Gammas and Sig Eps cosponsored a Christmas party for the children of Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home at the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity house. Throughout the year, Delta Gamma developed such philanthrophy projects as aid to the blind and aid to the students at the Denton State School.

Spring activities included Founders' Day Banquet, Spring Formal and participation in Greek Week.

Secret KD 'Peanuts' Perform Daily Deeds

Celebration of Peanut Week was one of the many activities of the Kappa Delta sorority this year. Each KD was responsible for doing a good deed daily for her secret "peanut."

The week was climaxed at the annual Christmas party when gifts to the secret pals were placed in a basket for a needy Denton family.

The KDs received the achievement award for over-all chapter improvement at the biannual national convention.

Founders' Day was celebrated at a tea Oct. 22. Two national officers, Mrs. Leona Good, province president, and Mrs. Mattie Ruth Gallagher, national director of membership, were honored at the event.

The mood is serious at Kappa Delta's preferential party in the First Presbyterian Church. Members and rushees listen intently as the ceremonies begin.

Zetas Win Sweepstakes

An enormous black bee nestled inside a red blossom. The Homecoming parade moved along the streets of the North Texas campus as proud Zetas watched their sweepstakes-winning float capture "oohs" and "aahs" from the bystanders. Rounding out the honors for Zeta Tau Alpha was Susan Parma, who served as one of the Homecoming Queen's attendants.

A "steak and bean" dinner found Zetas wearing everything from dunce hats to glittering crowns, depending on their previous semester's grade average. The hard-working coeds with high averages were rewarded with steaks, while the others were restricted to a diet of beans.

A monthly party was given for the children at Denton State School by the Greek organization as its philanthropic project. Members also supported an orphan girl from Viet Nam.

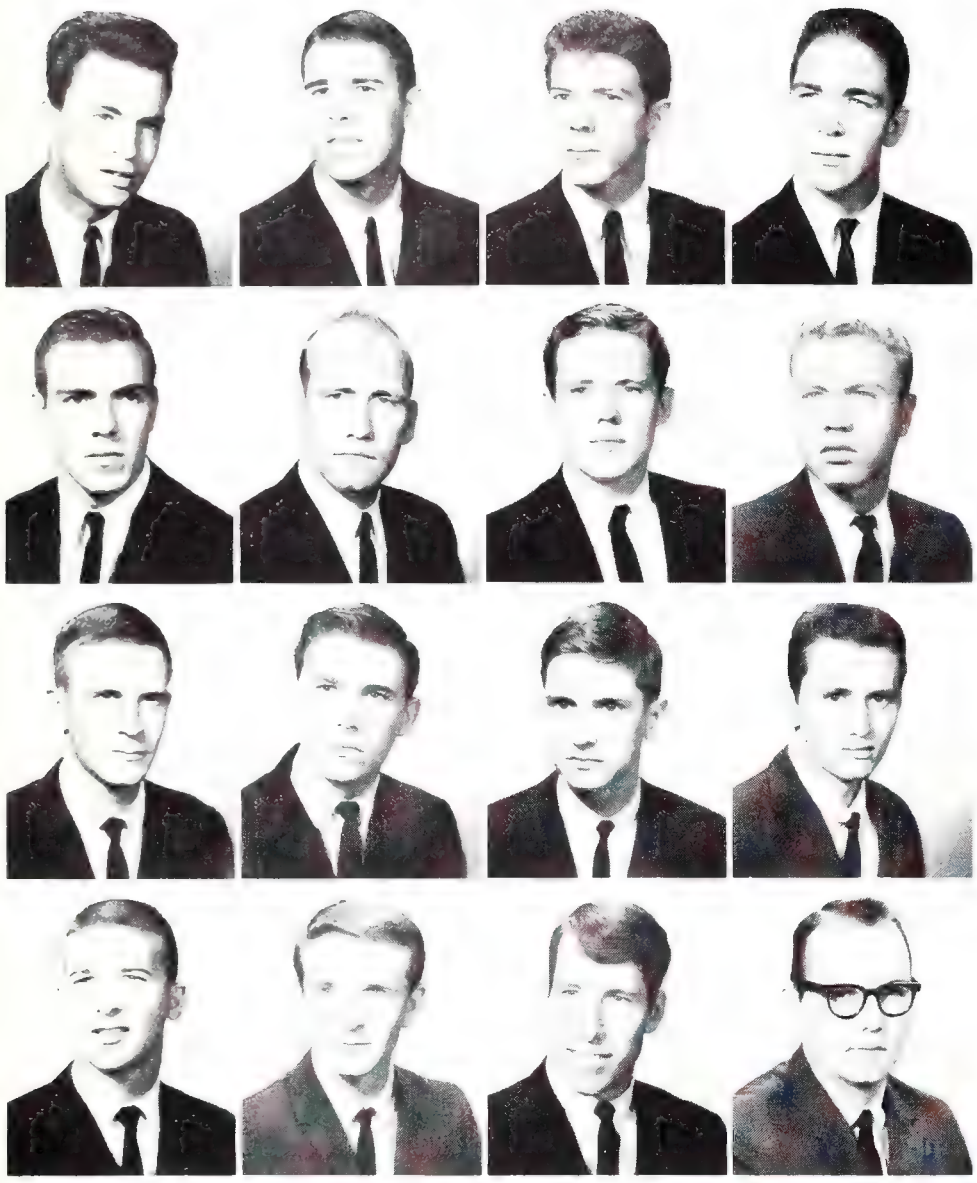

Dressed in costumes resembling a suppressed desire, Zetas and their dates attended a "sea cruise" party given by the pledge class at the University Clubhouse.

Delta Sig Takes Large Pledge Class

Sporting one of the largest pledge classes among North Texas fraternities, the Delta Sigma Phi chapter initiated 16 pledges during the fall semester.

Acquiring this large group of initiates was not the only project of the fraternity. During Homecoming, the chapter performed last rites for an imaginary University of Wichita Wheatshocker in an effort to spur campus enthusiasm.

The house was awarded second place in the house decorations contest during Homecoming Week, and following North Texas' 7-3 victory, the active members entertained returning alumni with a dance at the Sheriff's Posse.

Repainting and redecorating the house was the main project during the fall semester. Spring plans called for landscaping the grounds.

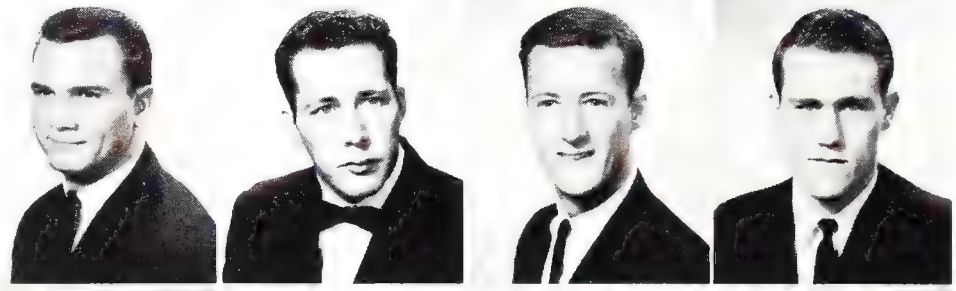

At Christmas, the NTSU group journeyed to East Texas State College for a joint holiday caroling with fraternity brothers at the Commerce school.

The Christmas season was one of giving as the Delta Sigs collected food and toys for a Denton church for distribution to needy families of the community.

"Congratulations, Prospect Ingram," Chi Omega Dena Perkins tells a future Geezle member Roland Ingram during fraternity bid acceptance. The local North Texas fraternity initiated seven of its pledges during the fall semester.

Athletic Geezles Defend Intramural Championship

Athletics come rather easily for the Geezles, North Texas' only local fraternity. One reason is that most of the members are NTSU athletes.

From each of the official university athletic teams comes at least one active member. For this reason the Geezles dominated intramural play last year. This year the group is defending intramural champion.

Not only do members engage in sports activities, but the Geezles can also boast of their academic achievement. The fraternity posted a 1.7 over-all grade average last year. This was the highest ever posted by an NTSU fraternity.

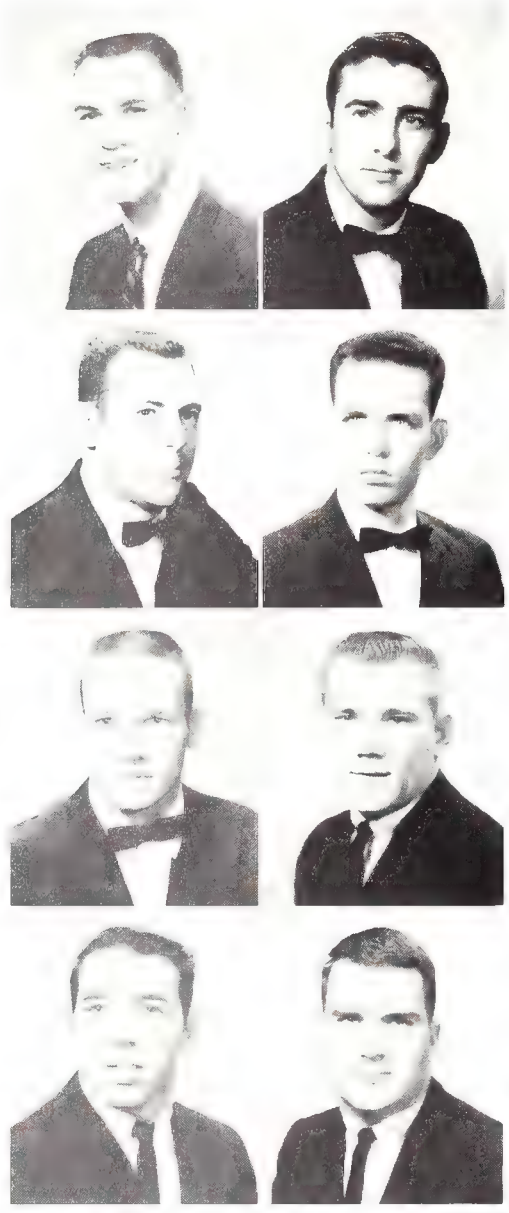

During the fall, the Geezles celebrated the football season with a party following each home game.

Chapter Named Outstanding at Convention

A Friday afternoon invitation delivered by a Southern Beauregard on horseback to his favorite Scarlett O'Hara inaugurated the spring semester's Old South Weekend. This is one of the biggest events of the year for the North Texas chapter of Kappa Alpha.

The weekend, highlighted by a Saturday night Old South Ball and the crowning of the Kappa Alpha Rose, helps sustain the confederate traditions of KA chapters throughout the South.

During the fall, the NTSU fraternity was chosen the outstanding chapter among participating schools of Mikell Province at the annual province convention. Also in the fall, pledges were initiated into the Gamma Lambda chapter.

KA's found outsiders to help decorate their house, which was entered in the Homecoming competition.

Kappa Sigma Wins First for Originality

Headed by fall president Stewart Smith, Kappa Sigma members built the "most original" float in the Homecoming parade.

At Christmas, toys were presented by the fraternity to children at an orphanage.

During semester break, Kappa Sig members redecorated their house. One addition was made; a room was changed into a lounge. The house living capacity is 18 members.

Pledges in the fall numbered 16. They were honored at a Mexican party during rush. Spring rushees were treated to a Playboy Party at Dallas' Ramada Inn.

Distinguished members of the fraternity include Jerry Grady, junior senator, and Talons Rod Brown and Charles Turnbo.

Lambda Chis Place With Float

This year the North Texas fraternity once again placed in the house decoration contest during Homecoming with a third-place award. Also during Homecoming, Lambda Chi members entertained returning exes with a party which featured entertainer Ray Sharpe.

A series of rush parties and smokers were held both semesters, and at Christmas the fraternity joined forces with Chi Omega sorority for a party for the Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home. The home also received the benefits of a joint Halloween Party with Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

In the fall, members and 14 pledges redecorated the fraternity house. In the spring the Lambda Chi pledges defended their championship crown at the annual Kappa Sigma Bicycle Relays.

Lambda Chi pledges are in charge of the cart which carries their sweetheart in the parade.

A Touch of the French With Phi Kaps

A touch of French decor has given a new look to the Greek-lettered Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity house.

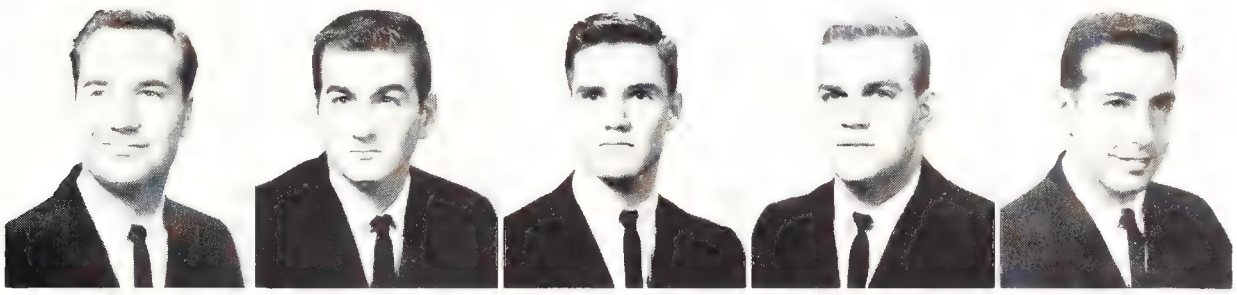

In an effort to refurnish the two-story house in a more attractive design, during the fall semester chapter members selected French provincial furniture.

Not only did the chapter improve physically, but members also strived during both semesters to maintain prestige on the NTSU campus. Two members, president Johnny Harper and vice-president Rodger Taylor, were recipients of the Hutchinson Key Award from the national office as outstanding North Texas members. The two will receive the honors at the annual conclave scheduled for Norman, Okla. this summer.

When the national office of Pi Kappa Alpha made its selection of the top ten Pike chapters in the nation, the NTSU fraternity was not overlooked.

Based upon participation in campus and civic activities during the past year, the President's Service Award was presented to the Epsilon Delta chapter at North Texas for the first time.

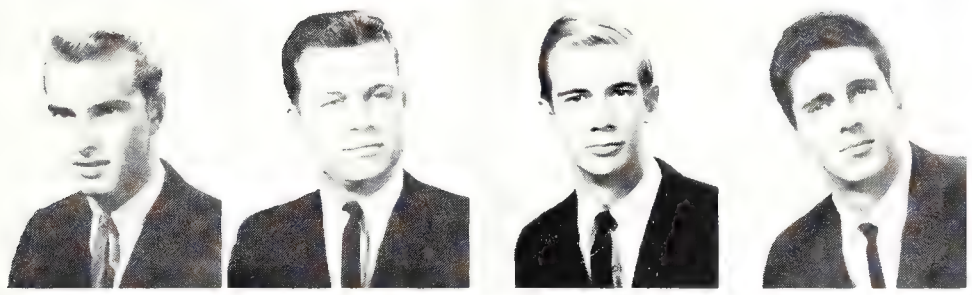

During the year's activities, the Pikes joined efforts with Alpha Phi sorority in a Christmas party for boys at the Harry Hines Detention Home in Dallas. At Homecoming, the Holiday Inn in Dallas was the scene of a party honoring exes of the NTSU chapter.

In December, actives and the 14 fall pledges defeated the SMU chapter in a football game and retained the rotating trophy between the two universities.

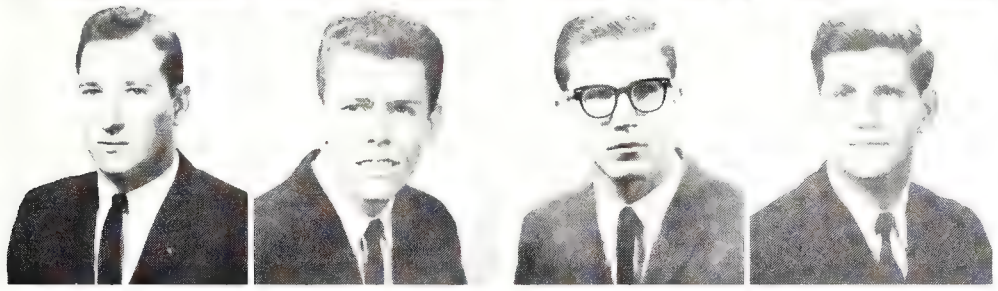

The presentation of a North Texas coed as the chapter's Dream Girl at the Dream Girl Party paced spring activities.

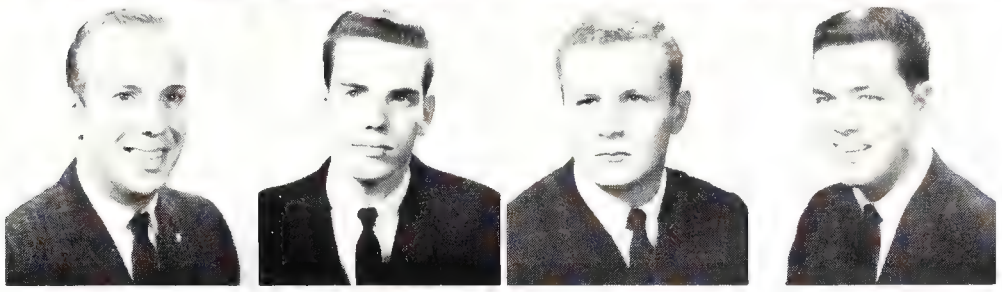

During rush Pi Kappa Alpha members tour the campus streets in their flame-red fire engine in hopes of attracting the attention of rushees.

Hustlin' Sigma Nus Win Football Championship

Homecoming, Greek Week, White Rose Formal.

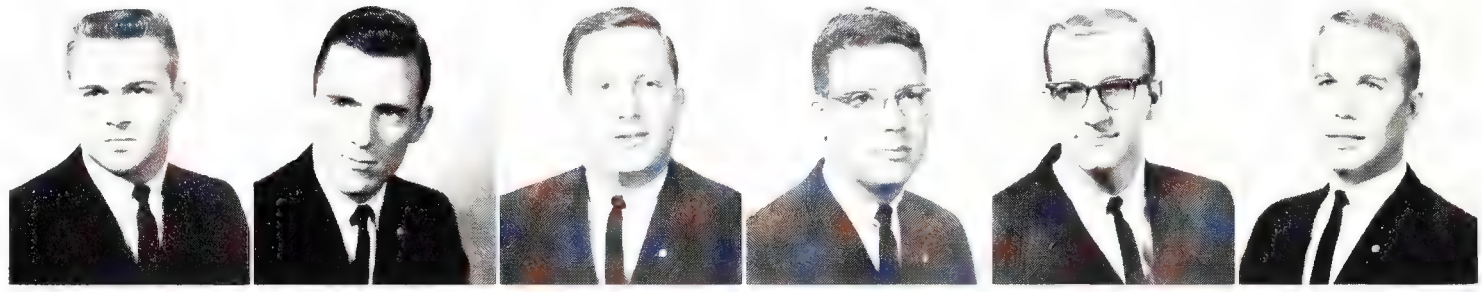

Sigma Nu fraternity lists these activities and counts 1963-64 as one of its most active and successful years.

Once again Sigma Nu emerged as the intramural league football champion by defeating fraternity opponents and then edging the independent league champion in the football playoff game.

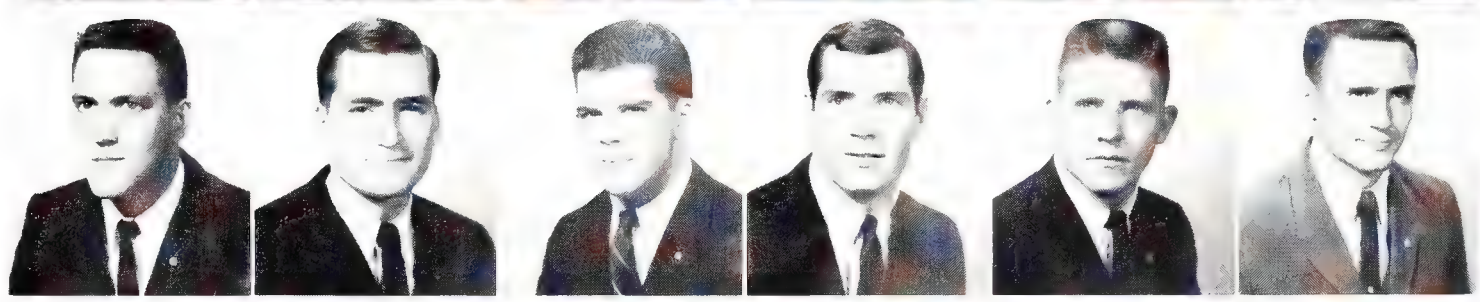

In the annual Greek Bowl in December, Sigma Nu was victorious over Kappa Alpha. Proceeds went to the Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home.

A rope pull and the Sigma Nu Relays highlighted the fraternity's spring activities.

Sig Eps Promote Spirit

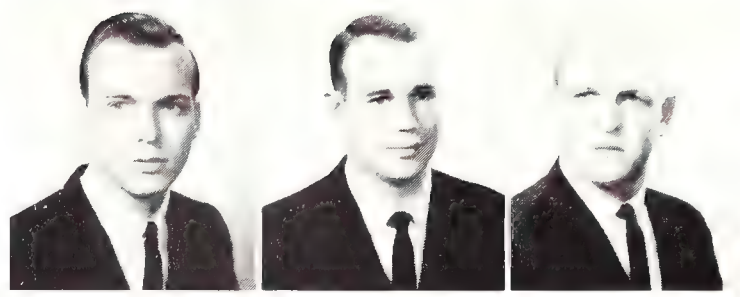

Displaying school spirit for North Texas athletic events is not enough for members of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. They extend it to the holidays as well.

During the Christmas season, the Sig Eps, along with Delta Gamma, invited 35 underprivileged Denton children to an all-day holiday party at the fraternity house.

The fall semester pledges were kept busy, too. As a class project, the 13 neophytes worked at the Denton State School.

Homecoming proved successful as the Sig Ep chapter earned the Talons Spirit Award for displaying the best spirit during Homecoming Week. In the house decorations contest, the fraternity was given honorable mention.

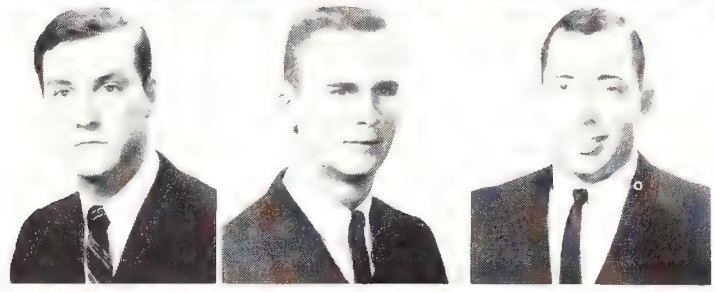

This year a new member of the Sig Ep household — a housemother — was added to the fraternity for the first time. Mrs. Bertha Nelson brings hope of instilling fraternity prestige throughout campus. "We hope that this will start a trend that will present the image that the fraternity members are all gentlemen," Sig Ep spring president Jeron Stevens said.

Theta Chi Chapter Seeks Improvement

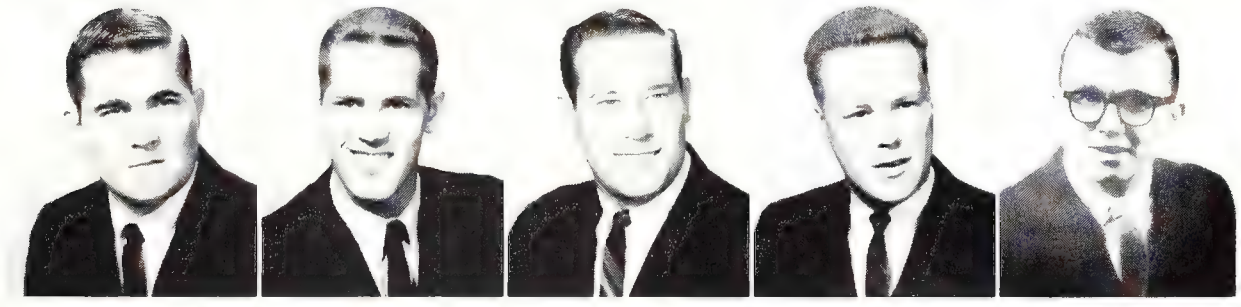

Probation can be a saddening affair for a social fraternity, but the North Texas chapter of Theta Chi has not allowed such a situation to discourage them.

As a result of being placed in this disapproved status for activities last spring, the Theta Chis redoubled their effort to improve their situation.

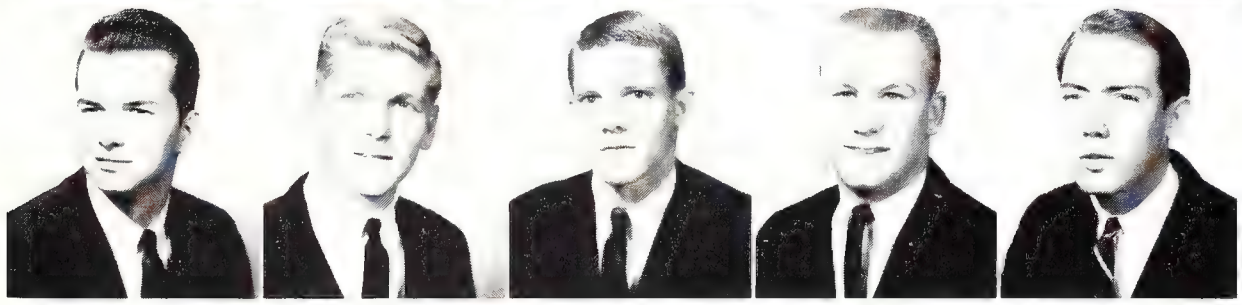

Because of the suspension, the chapter was allowed only two social functions: a Christmas party and a Homecoming Party. The fraternity was not permitted to bid for pledges during the fall.

"The probation has caused an aroused concern to accent our academic work more. It is through this effort that we hope to be fully reinstated in the eyes of the university," secretary Bill Joplin said.

Effectiveness Marks Outstanding Profs

Whether or not a teacher depends heavily on class discussion, his own "performance" or teaching aids is of little significance. The mark of an outstanding professor lies in effectively making a course stimulating to the point of learning.

From 116 nominees, seven NTSU professors are honored as outstanding professors by the 1964 YUCCA staff. Selected on the basis of percentage of nomination frequency, an exceptional teacher was chosen from each of the four schools — plus one from each College of Arts and Sciences division.

Junior and senior students drawn from departmental organizations were asked to vote for one faculty member in their major field and one from their school or division as a whole.

National, Faculty Grants Finance Research

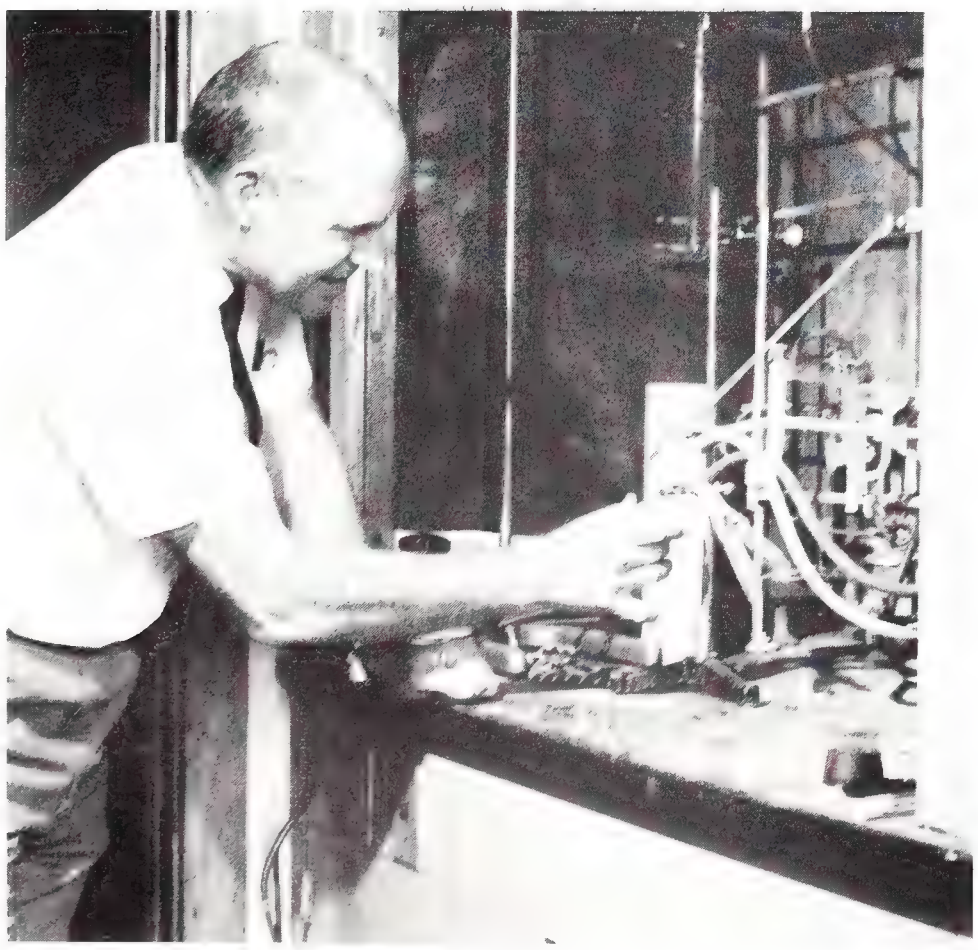

"Every succeeding scientific discovery makes greater nonsense of old-time conceptions of sovereignty," once said England's Anthony Eden.

One of the little-known but more important facets of scholastic life at North Texas is research. Research in physics includes building of a Van de Graaff particle accelerator which will produce rapidly moving atomic particles for nuclear research; in economics, the study and evaluation of economics as taught in public schools; in education, the determination of the effectiveness of closed circuit television for training elementary teachers; and in music, the study of a repertoire for woodwind and stringed instruments.

Research grants from national institutions, both private and public, and faculty grants provide the financial assistance necessary for intense, time-consuming studies by faculty members.

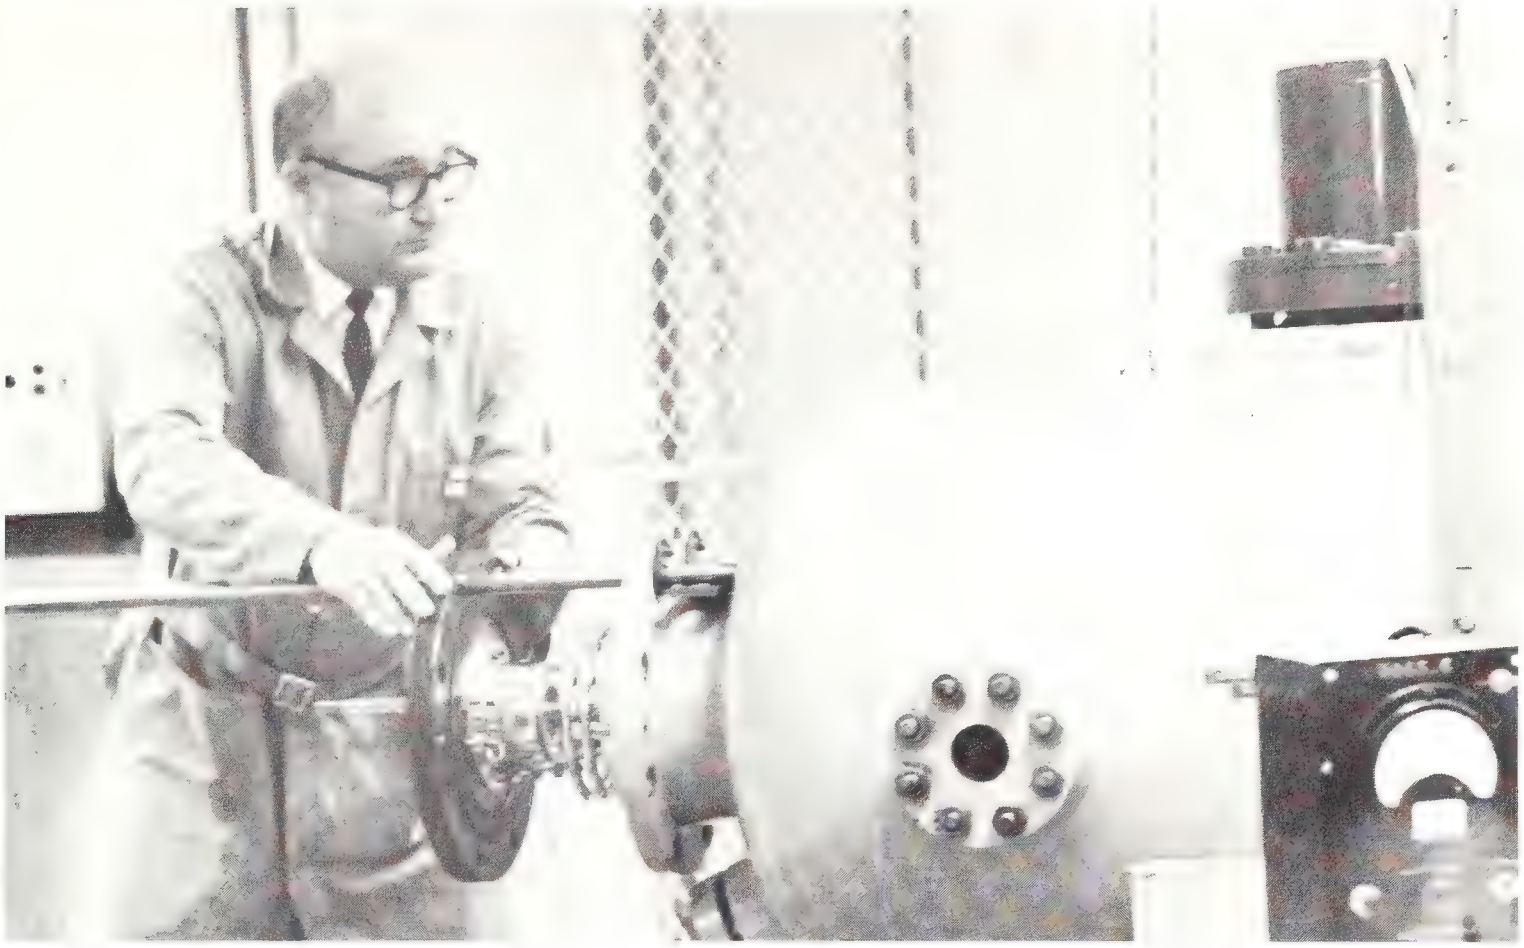

Dr. Silas Griggs, English, uses an original method he calls "Potential-Substitution Distribution" in his statistical study of stylistics.

Dr. Price Truitt of the chemistry faculty is engaged in a three-year study to develop chemicals with possible cancer-fighting properties.

Dr. David C. McGuire, music, supervises graduate students experimenting with the use of teaching machines in music classes.

Dr. Pat Windham, physics, is currently building a Van de Graaff particle accelerator which will produce rapidly moving atomic particles for nuclear research.

ARTS & SCIENCES

Vanna Ingram, secretary in the College of Arts and Sciences, compiles thousands of records while helping students complete their degree plans.

Dr. Frank H. Gafford, Dean, College of Arts and Sciences

College Fulfills Twofold Goal

Occasionally a disgruntled student — he might even be called pseudo-sophisticated — will pounce on the basic academic design of the College of Arts and Sciences, belligerently arguing that it does not offer an extremely liberal education. But this student doesn't understand the College's twofold goal: While providing the intellectual discipline and cultural experience necessary for a liberal education, the College strives to prepare students for their chosen professions and for research and graduate study; often practical knowledge and experience is emphasized.

Dr. Frank H. Gafford is dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, which is organized in three divisions: humanities, science and social science. Fourteen departments award degrees, which include the bachelor of arts and the bachelor of science. B.S. degrees are provided in biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, medical technology and library service. Instruction is offered in Bible and philosophy.

A Many Splintered Thing

Dr. Cora Stafford, Director, Art Department

Brushes, palettes, sketch books and wet clay ... Van Gogh, cubism, avant garde and pop art ...

These terms are all part of any art department. At NT they are merged. The history and the basis of art are discussed in relation to their application of these to a career—as designer, educator, craftsman, advertising man.

The department offers courses of interest to the nonmajor also. A key ingredient to a well-rounded education is an appreciation of art.

For the major, the department provides full facilities for complete preparation.

The building houses areas both for work and display. Suites and rooms are designated for interior design, weaving, ceramic work, sculpture and costume design.

Advertising art is offered at all levels for those interested in mixing business and creativity.

Among courses offered above the bachelor's degree which lead to an M.A. are the study of the physical, physiological and psychological properties of color.

Fair weather allows art students freedom to work in natural surroundings so they may capture outdoor scenery in a traditional or more modern style.

Mr. Gough calls attention to important aspects on a plate prepared by this interior design student which need special emphasis.

Interior Designers Club Given National Charter

The Student Association of Interior Designers, previously affiliated with the Dallas chapter of the National Society of Interior Designers, received a national charter in the fall. Frequent trips to furniture exhibitions in Dallas and Fort Worth give association members an opportunity to see work done by professional interior designers. These trips also provide an opportunity for talking with professionals about their work.

Faculty member Mrs. Shirley Williams, former manager of a Dallas furniture showroom, spoke to the club and said that a designer must be businesslike. Accurate records are an essential factor in being successful, she told the art students.

Encouraged by members of her costume design class, Mrs. Shirley Ezell started the club in September, 1963. Since its beginning the group has gained a membership of 13 students — 11 women and two men.

Gay Horton, a 1963 North Texas graduate, spoke to the organization on her work as an employee of a Dallas dress manufacturer. Numerous speeches are planned for the future to stimulate more club interest.

Varied Religious Views Treated by Courses

Although a Bible major is not offered at North Texas, instruction in religion is offered by an agreement between the university and local religious organizations. These classes are taught off campus.

One Bible professor said of the courses taught, "The only justification for the presence of such a Bible chair adjacent to a university is that there will always be maintained the same high standards and even-handed treatment of varying viewpoints and students of different backgrounds that is expected of courses taught on campus."

Whether it is a study of the ministry of Christ or the definition and origin of religion, North Texans are learning that religion and Bible courses can be an integral part of their campus life.

Frequent informal group discussions are an important aspect of the activities offered at the religious student centers around the campus.

Courses Stress Teaching Field

From "Whan that Aprill . . ." through "'Tis better to have loved and lost . . ." to "Here we go round the prickly pear," the English department deals with English as literature and as a mode of expression.

As is the case in many departments at NT, the English curriculum includes studies designed for the future teacher. There are specific courses designed for the prospective educator — methods of teaching English in high school, a study of the English language, the English language in America and modern English grammar.

At the freshman level English is designed to offer the student extensive practice in clear writing which will help him during college.

The department is headed by Dr. E. S. Clifton, who is assisted by Dr. William F. Belcher for freshman studies and Dr. Sam Henderson for sophomore classes.

English majors planning careers as high school English teachers must go one step beyond studying the various styles of grammar and the periods in literature. They must discover techniques to convey effectively these ideas in their future classrooms.

Sigma Tau Delta

Membership limited to 35, Sigma Tau Delta, national honor society in English, requires a 2.5 over-all grade average. Junior standing is required for membership consideration in the society.

Seeking to promote the mastery of written expression and encourage worthwhile reading, the society honors the outstanding senior English member of Sigma Tau Delta at a spring banquet.

An outing to the Dallas Theater Center in December, a Christmas party and the annual spring banquet were special events for the society.

Sponsored by Dr. Mary E. Whitten and Dr. Lee W. Miller, both of the English faculty, the society, which is one of 115 chapters, sponsored the appearance of Julian Long. Long presented Old English folk songs and more modern attempts at musical folklore in a concert.

Mary Arden

Literary Coeds Gain Club Work Training

Named for William Shakespeare's mother, the Mary Arden Club, women's honorary literary group, seeks to give North Texas coeds training in club work.

The club, which was founded in 1902, heard a variety of speakers including Dean Imogene Bentley Dickey, who reviewed Happiness Is a Warm Puppy. Other activities included attending A Christmas Carol after a Christmas dinner at Marquis Hall, a speech by Dr. Mary Evans of the School of Home Economics on the importance of dressing correctly and a seated tea in Marquis Hall in May.

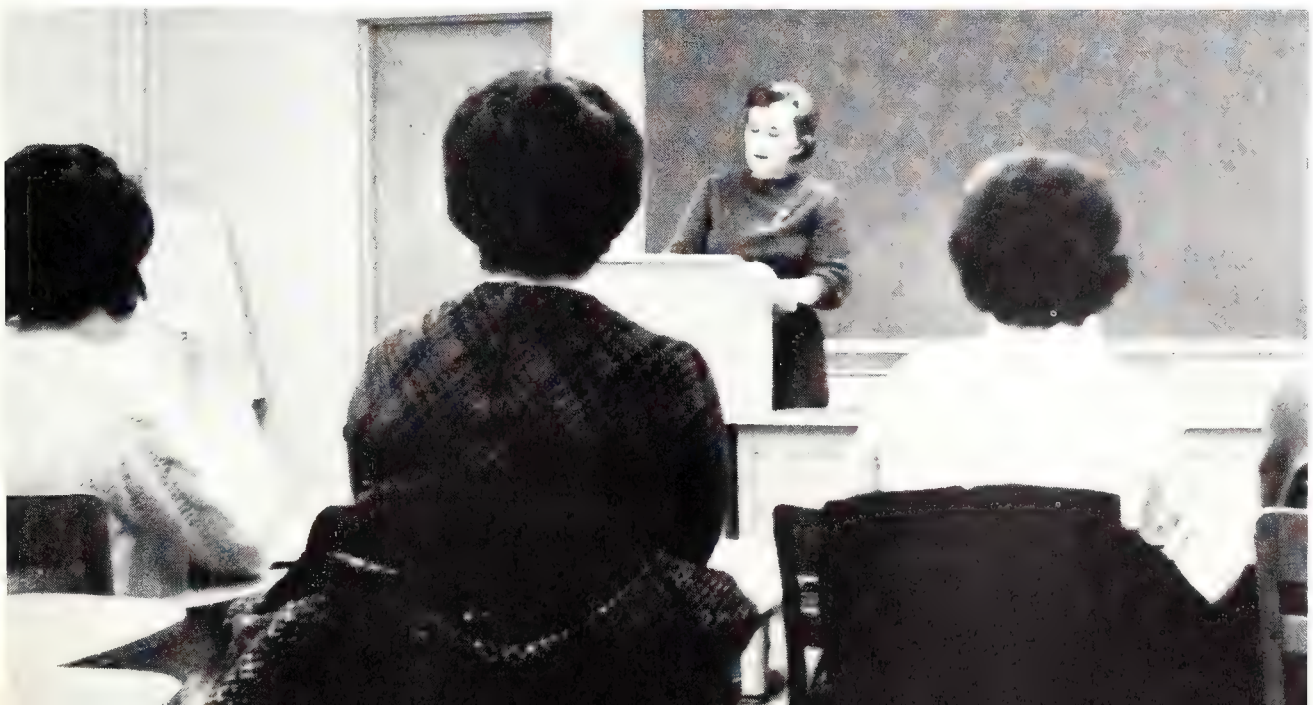

North Texas students Betty Grace and Tom Shuford showed a film and discussed their summer travels in Europe after the initiation of 54 members in November.

Membership in the club, which is sponsored by Mrs. Mary Glenn Peery, is restricted to juniors and seniors.

Officers J. Redfearn, president; J. Holmes, vice-president; J. Whitehurst, publications officer; M. G. Peery, sponsor; L. Guinn, treasurer.

Sister Groups Honor 60th Anniversary

Junior Mary Arden joined with its sister organization, the Mary Arden Club, to celebrate its 60th anniversary at a dinner meeting in the Marquis Hall Crystal Room in December. A Christmas songfest was preceded by a presentation of the Christmas story by Miss Judy Shulz, a graduate teaching fellow in the speech department.

The initiation of 19 new members in the fall, collection of gifts from members for children from the Fred Moore School, a Christmas party, scholarship presentation in the spring to a member who needs financial assistance and the May Fete Banquet were among the events which made the year memorable for club members.

Membership for Junior Mary Arden is by invitation. Only freshman and sophomores with a 2.5 over-all average and an A average in English are eligible.

Laborious hours spent in the Language Lab in an attempt to catch each word and each inflection prove simultaneously exhausting, trying and rewarding.

Languages Emphasize Conversational Method

As a requirement for bachelor of arts degrees, foreign languages are in demand.

The department offers German, French, Latin, Spanish and Russian. If further interest is aroused, the curricula offers advanced courses in reading and writing skills.

The basic courses are designed as conversational courses with the exception of the classical language, Latin.

Language laboratories are offered for building proficiency in their language. Learning is enhanced by hearing a native speak and then trying to simulate the audial experience.

Both bachelor and masters degrees are offered from the foreign language department.

The club sponsored a tutoring service to raise money for a student scholarship to Laval University in Quebec. Tutoring was offered in French, German and Spanish.

Sponsored by Dr. J. L. Gerding, Sigma Delta Pi presents an award on Honors Day to the outstanding elementary and intermediate Spanish students.

This year Pi Delta Phi, national honorary French society, voted to sponsor a $250 scholarship. The grant will help an outstanding junior French major to attend summer sessions at Laval University in Quebec.

Seeking to further interest in the French language, customs and institutions, the club plans its programs around the use of French. A treasure hunt with clues in French and a French beatnik party were special annual events held by the society this year.

The society, which received national honorary recognition in 1950, initiated six members in the fall. French songs and games followed the November initiation.

Sponsored by Dr. Marian F. DeShazo, the society presents the Jules A. Vern Award to the outstanding member of the chapter.

Library Service Offers Masters

Comprising a major portion of library service courses are minute details of books — such as the Illustrated Junior Library series — which must be learned by students who will be librarians.

Students who have ever been lost in the Main Library or have tried to locate information about seal colonies in the Bering Straits know the importance of trained library personnel.

The first 500-level course in library service was offered in the fall. It represents an initial step toward a master of library service degree. Students already working toward a B.S. in library service may continue their plans or transfer to the new M.L.S. degree.

The library service department under the direction of Dr. David A. Webb has two main functions: preparing prospective librarians in all fields and offering students aid in use of library facilities.

Presents Honors Day Award

Alpha Beta Alpha, national undergraduate library science fraternity, presented the library service award to the freshman with the highest scholastic average on Honors Day in the spring.

The fraternity, which is one of 24 in the nation, attempts to further professional knowledge of its members and acts as a recruiting agency for librarians.

Members entertain annually at the Denton State School with a Christmas party, celebrate Founders Day in May and hold pledge initiation ceremonies and a banquet in February. Undergraduate members must maintain a C average and pledges must have a C average in order to be initiated.

Prior to the installation of the fraternity, the McCracken Club was a service club for library science. These students became the charter members of Chi chapter of Alpha Beta Alpha.

Activities of Chi chapter are included in monthly issues of The Call Number, which is put out by North Texas library students. The fraternity is sponsored by Dr. David A. Webb.

False Movie Myth Eliminated by 'J' Schools

C. E. Shuford, Director, Journalism Department

Movies took a profession — journalism — and created an image for its public. But today this misleading concept of nosy crusaders out to scoop all competitors is slowly being eliminated by journalism schools across the nation.

The NTSU journalism department is one of these adherents of professionalism rather than myth. Students spend hundreds of lab and publications hours preparing to enter the news world. Clear and concise writing, accurate headline counting, interesting page dummying, proficient spelling — all are immediate goals of student journalists. Classwork includes reporting, photography, teaching methods, advertising, public relations and creative writing. Several professional newsmen teach specialized courses for the department.

C. E. Shuford directs this study. Writing under the pen name of Gene Shuford, he was awarded three first-place prizes for his poetry this year by the Poetry Society of Texas.

Press Club

Editor Summarizes Experience

"He's been shot — the President has been shot!"

With these words Kenneth Smart, city editor of the Dallas Times Herald, learned of the death of President Kennedy. Smart, who was at the News paper "hotline" when the police reporter phoned, related his experiences to members of the Press Club. He and three other Dallas journalists comprised a panel on news coverage of the assassination.

The organization sponsored a get-acquainted dance for journalism students in October at the University Clubhouse. Summer newspaper interns gave anecdotes about "on the job" experiences as part of the entertainment.

Ten student journalists received Press Club of Dallas Foundation scholarships at a joint meeting of Press Club, Theta Sigma Phi and Sigma Delta Chi. A committee of the journalism faculty selected recipients.

In the spring the club presented news writing awards in eight categories. The winners were selected from issues of the Campus Chat submitted to Southwestern Journalism Congress competition.

Dr. H. B. Dalrymple is professor of philosophy. Majors in other areas often find courses in philosophy help clarify theories and provide deeper understanding of concepts used as basis for works and ideas they study each day.

Did Old Plato Ever Have It This Good?

Success or failure in an individual's life can depend upon his own understanding of his basic philosophy of life. Each person has beliefs on morality, education and religion, but understanding the derivation of these beliefs is just as important as the action taken in behalf of them.

Although not offered as a major subject, philosophy courses are available to students who wish to study theories, logic and ethics of acclaimed thinkers of the past and present and their effect on the societies of yesterday and today.

Informal discussions allow students to contribute their opinions and understandings of various topics to fellow classmates.

Practical Experience Augments Class Activity

The art of speech has developed into scientific speech therapy and a dramatic art since the days when a mouthful of pebbles was used to train orators.

Operating under the principle that skills in speech are "learned by doing," the speech and drama department supplements classroom study with practical experience. Two theatrical groups, which annually present varied dramatic productions, the speech clinic, which does case work, and the closed-circuit television system, which trains students to stage programs, give speech majors this opportunity. Participation in intercollegiate debate tournaments helps to develop forensic skills. The department consistently produces award-winning debate teams — competition has been entered for more than 50 years.

Speech and drama courses are intended to serve both the speech and drama major and other students who are interested in developing public speaking skills. Dr. R. V. Holland is department director.

Sigma Alpha Eta

Speech Therapists Learn New Ideas and Trends

One of the controversies among speech therapists involves whether psychotherapeutic methods should be employed along with customary speech therapy techniques in correcting speech and hearing losses.

Sigma Alpha Eta, national professional society for speech therapists, is designed to create and stimulate interest in such aspects of speech therapy.

Members — some of whom attended the Texas Speech and Hearing Association at Corpus Christi in October — learn through discussion and guest speakers new trends and concepts connected with their field. One of the speakers this year was Mrs. Margaret Clarke, Denton Public Schools' speech therapist, who spoke on "Education of the Deaf."

Research Prepares Modern Biologists

Various distinguished members of the biology department are involved in research in the many phases of modern biology. Dr. David Redden, for example, uses rabbits and other small domestic animals in search for possible explanations of bone loss in outer space.

Courses in the department are designed to prepare the biology student to enter the fields of professional biology or to do further graduate study in any of the fields of science, as well as prepare those students who plan to apply for admission to medical scools or go into medical technology training.

Student participation in research projects by faculty members serves as an important facet of their training. Directed by Dr. J. K. G. Silvey, curricula is offered leading to either the degree of bachelor of arts or to the professional degree, bachelor of science.

Math Strives for Clarity

Mathematics has progressed since the days when mathematician-philosopher Thomas Hobbes tried to square the circle (unsuccessfully it might be added) to modern mathematics where clarity is being stressed in the teaching of math.

Although languages have changed and mathematics has become more involved since the stage of the "three Rs," basic math concepts have remained the same. The math department at North Texas attempts to provide students with an appreciation and understanding of math from Euclid to Einstein.

The department strives to train professional mathematicians and teachers of mathematics and prepare students for further study in the many fields of science, engineering and business. Although North Texas has no school of engineering, students may complete the first two years of an engineering curriculum.

Math Club Initiates Freshman Contest

A freshman mathematics competition night was sponsored in April by Kappa Mu Epsilon, national honor society in mathematics. Math tests were given to freshmen who wished to compete; winners received engraved sets of math tables.

The formal purpose of Kappa Mu Epsilon is to bind together in a common fellowship those who are serious students of mathematics. On Honors Day the fraternity presents the Freshman Math Award as its special award of the year.

The society was founded in 1931 at Northeastern State College in Tahlequah, Okla. The Texas Epsilon Chapter was established at North Texas in 1951, replacing the Mathematics Club.

The 40-member organization is sponsored by Dr. John Ed Allen. Paul Lewis served as president of KME, which initiated 23 new members in the fall.

Physics Student Presents Paper to Academy

Dr. L. F. Connell, Director, Department of Physics

Proof of something smaller than the infinite parts of the atom could mean the forming of a basically different form of quantum theory.

This is the stand taken by senior physics student Albert Jackson in his theoretical paper presented at the collegiate level of the Texas Academy of Science. His research illustrates the opportunity offered by the NTSU physics department on graduate and undergraduate levels to apply principles learned in the classroom to practical experience.

The department received a $9,000 National Science Foundation grant — to become effective in June — which was earmarked for research, financial support for six students and purchase of equipment.

As many of their problems involve the use of the slide rule, this giant model is used to demonstrate correct procedures.

Louisiana Teacher Talks to Physicists

Members of the American Institute of Physics, North Texas Student Section, were briefed on "The Viscosity of Liquid Helium" by Dr. R. G. Hussey of Louisiana State University at a joint meeting with the Tri-Cities Physical Society in the fall.

Besides guest speakers, professors from the physics department contribute to monthly meetings by telling of their research projects.

Organized in 1952, the club limits membership to physics majors and minors who have maintained a high average in their fields and in their other courses of study.

Sponsored by Dr. Pat Windham, the club confined its social activities to fall and spring picnics.

Series Includes Eco Authority

Created 27 years ago, the economics and sociology department trains students to enter social work, teaching, government or industry after graduation.

In the economics division, courses range from public utilities to comparative economic systems. Sociology courses offered include crime and criminology. Graduate work is offered in both divisions.

Economics students were especially interested in the University Lecture Series presentation of Leon H. Keyserling, who discussed unemployment and automation. An economic adviser to former President Truman, Keyserling has served as counsel to committees in the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives in the past 30 years.

The use of graphs and curves to help explain various relationships or to show changes over a period of time are frequently helpful to economics students.

Trip West Recalls Year's Class Study

Lectures told them; slides showed them; but a bus trip spanning 7,000 miles through the western sector of the country recalled all classroom study.

Geography students who took advantage of the field trip course last summer spent five weeks studying first hand the geographic regions, historical sites and population centers of the Western United States. Lee Knox was faculty sponsor.

Directed by Dr. Walter Hansen, the geography department offers a curriculum designed both for geography majors and those majoring in social science with a concentration in geography.

Director's Position Filled by Newland

Dr. Chester A. Newland was named director of the government department in August of 1963, filling the vacancy left with the death of Dr. Sam B. McAlister the previous spring. Thirty-three-year-old Dr. Newland, who received his B. A. in government in two years at North Texas, joined the staff in 1960.

Through the facilities of the department, North Texas students learn the basic fundamentals of citizen participation in government regulation as a means for improving community conditions and citizen life.

Students majoring in government are trained to become leaders in municipal, state and national affairs. This study — at both the undergraduate and graduate levels — may lead not only to governmental service, but also to careers in foreign and diplomatic services.

A social studies convention hosted by North Texas featured several exhibits and speakers. Participants broke up into informal discussion groups.

Chancery Club

Interests Promoted In Self-Government

"When the people don't care, they have a poor government and when they are concerned, they have a good government," Rex Jennings of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce told members of the Chancery Club in November.

Interested in promoting intelligent participation in responsible self-government, the Chancery Club heard Dallas Mayor Earle Cabell discuss "Municipal Government and its Effect on the Metropolitan Areas" and a panel of state legislators discuss Texas' legislative problems.

Sponsored by Dr. Chester A. Newland, the club also heard retired Judge Ben Boyd of Denton speak on "The American Heritage and Government." Judge Boyd was in the Texas Supreme Court System for 34 years.

Faculty Helps Boost Prestige of Department

On the graduate level many courses are taught in a seminar fashion. At informal meetings students discuss subjects related to papers they will later present.

In addition to a 40-course curriculum, the history department helps to promote an understanding of yesterday's events through faculty and student activities.

Two faculty members were prominent in boosting the prestige of the department this year. Dr. Keith Eubank was invited to speak before the American Historical Association in Philadelphia, where he discussed German responses to American diplomacy. Dr. Dale Odom's article on the problems of a post-Civil War Southern railroad was published in the December issue of Southwestern Social Science Quarterly.

National history honor society Phi Alpha Theta sponsored a talk by the chairman of the Texas Christian University history department. Dr. Donald E. Worcester spoke on the Spanish resistance to change in Spain and South America.

School of Business Administration

Business Suggests Challenging Future

Challenges much like those of the changing business society are offered to students enrolled in the School of Business Administration, where areas of concentration include accounting, banking and finance, business education, insurance, management, marketing and secretarial administration.

To its students and ex-students, the school maintains a Business Employment Service; personnel officers from more than 100 companies annually interview graduating seniors who register for this free service at the beginning of their senior year.

In November, two members of the business faculty, Dr. Vernon V. Payne and Dr. Ruth Anderson, were among nine guests throughout the nation who attended a demonstration tour of the International Business Machines (IBM) plant in Lexington, Ky.

The fall of 1964 will give opportunities to students working on their master of Business Administration or master of Business Education to choose from additional courses covering the fields of management, business services, finance and marketing.

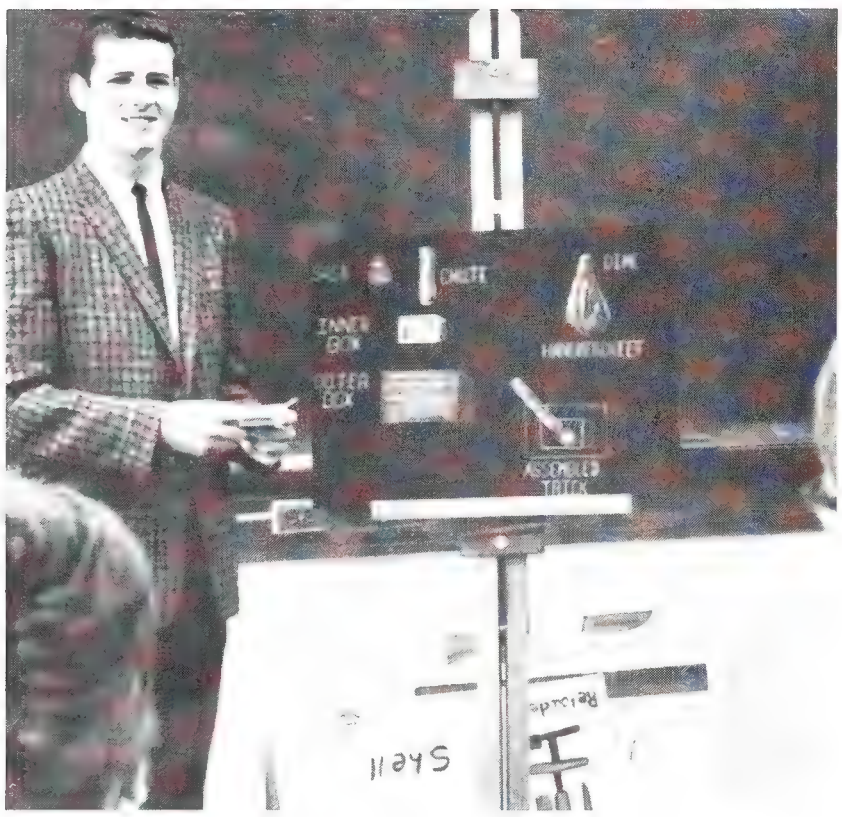

Being able to change the ribbon and to make the necessary adjustments is just as important as punching the right keys.

Phi Chi Theta

'National Key' Award Given

Phi Chi Theta, a national fraternity for women in business, was organized at North Texas in 1924. Purpose of the 50-member organization is to promote competent business education and training for all women.

Projects of the fraternity this year included a coffee for members of the business administration faculty and presentation of the scholarship award, Phi Chi Theta National Key.

Social activities were planned around the Founders' Day observance, fall and spring initiation banquets, a Christmas party and a party for freshmen business majors.

Sponsored by Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cox, members of the fraternity will attend the national biennial convention in Dallas during the summer of 1964.

As prospective women in the professional business field, Phi Chi Theta rushees mingle during one of the rush functions held in the fall.

Alpha Lambda Pi

Outstanding Senior Given Cash Award

Edward R. Bacon of Fort Worth was awarded a $500 scholarship as NTSU's outstanding senior accounting student at the February meeting of Alpha Lambda Pi. The cash grant is presented annually by Haskins and Sells, an international accounting organization.

Composed of students interested in accounting as their professional field, Alpha Lambda Pi held its fall initiation banquet at the Ramada Inn.

Club members are tutors in the accounting labs for students taking introductory accounting courses.

Social events for the year included a fall banquet with Dr. James L. Latham of the business administration faculty speaking on "The Story Behind the Story," a spring picnic and a pie-and-coffee meeting.

Marketing Club

Professionals Speak To Business Club

Aiding business majors to gain a better understanding of their chosen profession, the Marketing Club each year invites professionals to speak at the club's monthly meetings.

The Marketing Club is recognized by the American Marketing Association as the largest affiliated collegiate chapter in the nation. It boasts 230 members.

The theme of the Eighth Annual Marketing Conference held in the spring was centered around the contribution of the Dallas Trade Market to manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

For social activities, the Marketing Club holds a fall banquet in December and picnics in the fall and spring.

Phi Beta Lambda

State Presidency, Four Trophies Won

Phi Beta Lambda hosted the state Future Business Leaders of America convention here in February. Four first places and the presidency were won by the NT Chapter.

D. A. McGuire was elected state president of the college division, Phi Beta Lambda. First-place trophies were awarded to Pat Powell, named Mr. Future Business Executive; Sandra Anders, chosen Miss Future Business Executive; and Riley Fitzhugh, selected Mr. Future Business Teacher. Jeffie Johnson was winner in the vocabulary contest.

A record 606 representatives from 30 high school FBLA groups and seven Phi Beta Lambda chapters attended.

During the year the fraternity held a get-acquainted party for prospective members, a Christmas social and spring dinner. On Honors Day a plaque was awarded to the outstanding secretarial science major.

Beta Alpha Psi

Fraternity Gets High Rating In Interchapter Competition

Officers J. Wight, secretary; G. Payne, vice-president; K. Pretz, treasurer; H. Perkins, president.

Beta Alpha Psi, national professional honorary fraternity in accounting, was organized at North Texas in the spring of 1962. Beta Pi chapter annually engages in a nationwide interchapter competition set up on a point system to determine the outstanding chapters. Points are received for various activities such as review labs, extracurricular events, meetings and scholastic standings of members. For the second school year of 1962-1963, the NTSU chapter was rated 18th out of 62 chapters which participated in the contests.

Social events for the year included a Homecoming reception, fall and spring initiation banquets and meetings and dinners with a Dallas professional organization.

Faculty member Dr. Stanley A. Self told the fraternity "How to Get Along With Your Accountant" in the fall and an NT ex, Sam Catter, told members about his "First Year in Public Accounting."

Sponsored by Nelson G. Sullivan, the fraternity annually presents the chapter's Excellence in Accounting Award.

School of Education

NT Studies Project In Teacher Training

North Texas has been selected as one of four schools in the nation to conduct a project aimed at improving the education of teachers through the use of new classroom technology.

The project is aimed at the nationwide use of new media, such as audio-visual material, programmed instruction and closed-circuit television, in the college training of future teachers. Its basic purpose is to improve the undergraduate education of persons training to be classroom teachers.

Preliminary steps call for recommending a set of "behavorial goals" or courses of action that should be stressed in the education courses required of all future elementary and secondary teachers.

By integrating these goals into the teacher-training courses, future teachers should learn to recognize situations when the use of new media could aid the explanation of a subject in the classroom.

Four delegates from North Texas attended the TACE state convention in El Paso in the fall and the ACEI study conference in Portland, Ore., in the spring.

Events for the year included a "Show and Tell" program with fifth - grade and second - grade students taking part in a program about classroom activities, a display of children's work by junior and senior student teachers and a speech by Dean Witt Blair in the spring.

Field trips included a visit to the Carrollton Elementary School for a Christmas program and a tour of KERA-TV, the educational station in Dallas.

Service projects by the club included contributions to the children's book fund at the Denton City-County Library and the Childhood Education Center in Washington, D.C.

NT Chapter Reigns At State Meeting

The gold trophy signifying the best chapter rating was copped by the North Texas chapter of the Student Education Association at its state convention in Houston.

Selection at the February meet was based on chapter activities for the year. In addition, Doris Shivers was elected state vice-president, the NT club's yearbook won a blue ribbon, and Sharon Guyer and Polly Jo Pillow were named to serve on state committees.

Formal purpose of the group, whose 625 members comprise the second largest of the 62 Texas chapters, is to prepare education students for leadership and responsibility.

The organization sponsored speakers at its meetings. Included were Morgan Moses, an NT graduate student; Dr. John Curry and Dr. C. C. Williams of the School of Education; and Gary Gore, Texas Tech student who is Texas SEA president.

Officers S. Renshaw, secretary; J. Johnson, state treasurer; B. Fisher, chapter treasurer; R. Housewright, president; M. Rush, vice-president.

PE Accents Dual Goal Of Fitness, Preparation

Physical fitness for all students and teacher preparation are goals of the physical education department. North Texans must have four P. E. hours for graduation.

For physical education majors, practical work is combined with classroom lectures. In November a Play Day was sponsored by the recreation in American culture class. About 800 Girl Scouts and Brownies were entertained on the Lab School field with stunts, games, a sack lunch and hootenanny.

Due to the increased popularity of gymnastics, members of the faculty began preparations for a summer workshop to include theory and demonstrations of dance and gymnastics.

Los Caballeros

Old West Reflected In Riders

Hoping to reach their membership quota of 35 with "dudes," members of Los Caballeros entertain guests at a hayride rush party on March 3.

Gone are the days of wagon trains, cattle roundups and Billy the Kid. But a bit of the Old West can be found in Los Caballeros, the horseback riding club at North Texas. As part of their western activities, members of the horseback riding club have barn dances, wiener roasts, evening trail-rides and hayrack rides.

Proudly exhibiting their riding skills, members took part in the Homecoming parade.

During dudeship, the cowboy equivalent of pledgeship, new members of Los Caballeros competed with old members in riding games, rope pulls and Indian wrestling.

IA Prof Appointed Secretary at Convention

Dr. M. D. Williamson of the industrial arts department faculty was appointed executive secretary of the Texas Industrial Arts Association during its ninth annual state convention held at College Station. Dr. Williamson was president the past year. Several members of the North Texas delegation took part in the special interest sessions at the meeting in February.

Offering almost 50 courses, the industrial arts department provides basic instruction in courses ranging from pattern making and foundry work to measurement of manipulative skills and technical knowledge. Graduate work is offered in the department.

Observation Aids Nursery Workers

The School of Home Economics now offers major emphasis in child development which previously was a sub-category of home and family life. Aiding in this study is a unique raised observation booth above the classrooms of the Home Ec Nursery School. Designed to seat 10 observers, the booths give opportunity to watch the youngsters as they work, play and sleep. Observation periods are required for certification of nursery school teachers.

Practical experience and lectures in other areas prepare students for industrial home economics and homemaking. Twelve coeds made their own garments and entered the district Make It Yourself With Wool contest at Texas Women's University.

Home Ec Majors Host FHA Meet

It was a busy year for members of Ellen H. Richards Club, departmental club for home economics majors. They began the year as hostesses to Future Homemakers of America when the high school group met here in the fall.

The club, which was organized in 1919, heard a variety of speakers this year, including a North Texas ex, Mrs. Margaret Hunter Combs of the Dallas City Nurseries. Mrs. Combs spoke at the annual tea for graduating home economics seniors.

Fund-raising projects for the organization included selling fruitcakes off campus at Thanksgiving and a booth at the University Day celebration.

Miss Mariann Wilson was named Home Economist of the Year by the club.

Home Ec Majors Receive Awards

Phi Upsilon Omicron, national professional home economics fraternity, presented an award to the outstanding freshman home economics major and a $25 award to the outstanding sophomore member in the spring.

Alpha Iota Chapter, founded at North Texas in 1947, gave food, clothing and toys to two needy families at Christmas, initiated as an honorary member Miss Julia Hunter, who is president of the Texas Home Economics Association, and honored graduating seniors with a party in May.

Sponsored by Mrs. Loren Kellar and Mrs. Avis Hall, the fraternity celebrated Founders' Day with the TWU chapter of Phi U.

Members plan to attend the biennial general assembly planned for the University of Iowa during the summer.

Music School Among Nation's Largest

One of the 10 largest music schools in the nation, the North Texas School of Music provides a combination of knowledge and experience through classroom and performance experience.

Providing artistic surroundings for music majors and students from other curricula, the school offers the skills of four resident artists: Miss Margaret Kalil, soprano; Stefan Bardas, pianist; Miss Carroll Glenn, violinist; and Eugene Conley, tenor.

Doctor of philosophy degree is offered in the graduate program. Majors available are musicology, theory and composition. Music laboratories are designed to supplement technique with performance experience. The most exciting lab experience for 1964 found the A Cappella Choir on a 10-week European tour, part of a cultural exchange program, sponsored by the State Department. Closer to home, the Lab Bands performed frequently for students in the Union Building Howdy Room.

Each year the fraternity joins Sigma Alpha Iota and Mu Phi Epsilon in presenting North Texas Christmas Vespers. This year the vespers were held Dec. 8 at the First Methodist Church sanctuary.

For the seventh straight year, Sinfonia has received the award for the best chapter in a province which includes Texas Christian University, Baylor University, Texas Wesleyan College and Southern Methodist University.

Gamma Theta Chapter's membership of 95, 64 actives and 31 alumni members, is the largest nationally of the 213 chapters which compose the biggest fraternity in the world. They also hold the national record for the largest membership of 60 initiates in a single biennium and the record number of initiates in a single initiation, 32.

AIR SCIENCE

Camp Moves ROTC From Class to Field

Air Force ROTC senior cadets had a choice of summer encampment at either James Connally AFB in Waco, June 16-July 13, or Webb AFB in Big Spring, July 28-Aug. 24.

An elective program, the air science program offers two years of basic training and two years of advanced training for cadets. The curriculum offers basic drill, study of the constituents of aerospace power, weapons and operations which prepare future Air Force officers.

Upon completion of the program, a cadet is eligible for an appointment as a second lieutenant. Cadets designated as "distinguished graduates" may be given special consideration for a regular commission.

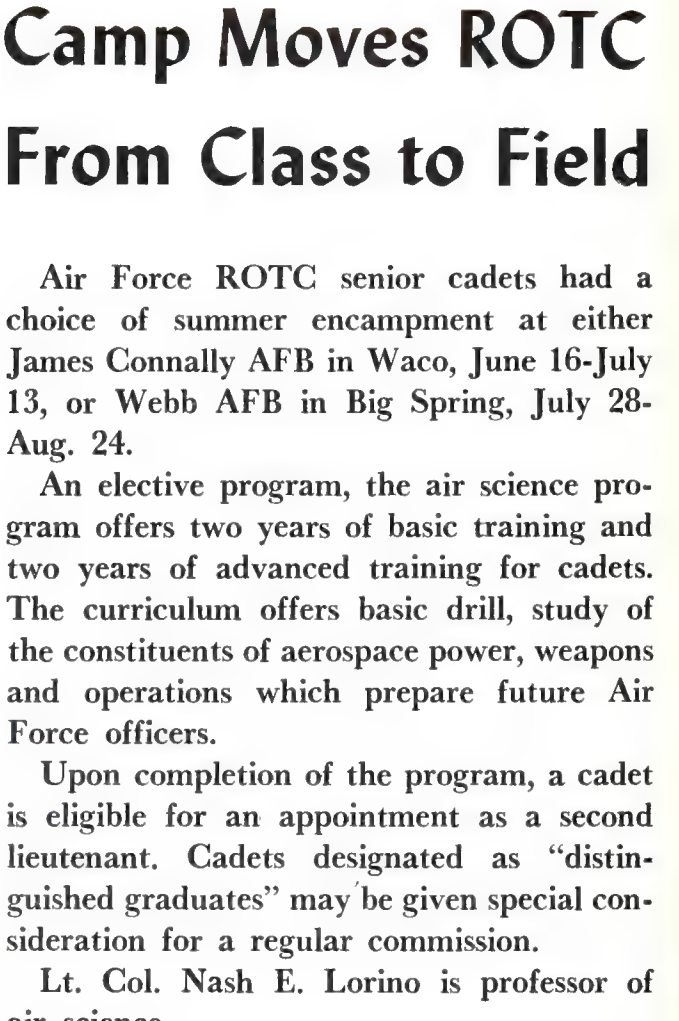

Lt. Col. Nash E. Lorino is professor of air science.

Cadets Promote Tradition

Cadet Officers J. Foster, comptroller; J. White, administration officer; H. Hanks, information officer; J. Burch, operations officer; D. Walsworth, executive officer; R. Brookshear, commander.

Composed of outstanding air science cadets, Arnold Air Society takes pride in furthering the purposes, traditions and concepts of the United States Air Force.

The Royal N. Baker Squadron of the society is open to men with a 1.5 overall grade average of a 2.0 in air science courses. Squadron pledges built the group's Homecoming float this year. The squadron also sponsored Suanne Davis, a member of Angel Flight, as sweetheart of a district which includes units from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana. Sponsor of Angel Flight, Arnold Air provides drill instruction for the corps' women's auxiliary.

During Christmas, the group collected its annual "Barrel of Joy." Donations from local merchants and individuals for needy Denton families passed a $1,000 goal.

William David McClintock served as commander of the squadron in the spring. He was assisted by David W. Barksdale, executive officer; Richard F. Meacham, comptroller; James C. Bash, information officer; James Railsback, administration officer; and David W. Cox, operations officer. Maj. Louis A. Johnagin, member of the air science faculty, was sponsor.

Roger M. Ramey

The Roger M. Ramey Club was organized in 1952 to coordinate and regulate the finances and social activities for the 835th Air Force ROTC Group. Highlights of the year included the Homecoming float project in the fall and the formal Military Ball in the spring.

Club members are representatives from each squadron and classroom and approve student military unit expenditures for field trips for the Sabres, Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight and AFROTC Band.

The military organization was named in 1952 for the late Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, a former member of the Board of Regents and a North Texas graduate.

Thirty uniformed members of the Sabre Drill Team, a highly selective drill unit of the Air Force ROTC, held the rapt attention of crowds at the Homecoming Parade. This was only one of many exhibitions.

The Cotton Bowl parade, the Veterans Day parade in Fort Worth and the Battle of Flowers in San Antonio celebrating the victory at the battle of San Jacinto are the major parades in which the team performs each year.

Organized in 1951 to promote leadership and precision drill techniques, the Sabres finance parade and competition trips by parking cars at the Eagles' home football games.

Members are chosen by the commander and deputy commander of the drill team from a group of volunteers on the basis of ability to carry out commands, interest and appearance. John Bramlet is commander this year.

Graduate School Introduces New Master's Degree

Representing an increase of 26.4 per cent over last year, 5,304 semester hours are now being taught on the graduate level.

The graduate-level growth is slightly larger than that of the college as a whole, Dr. Robert B. Toulouse, dean of the Graduate School, commented. A master's degree in speech was added in September 1962 and a master's degree in library service was started in September 1963. New doctoral programs in business administration, biology, chemistry and physics were submitted to the Texas Commission on Higher Education.

Grants of $1,500 each were awarded this year to 10 doctoral students as part of a recent legislation to aid doctoral students. The grants are administered by Dr. Toulouse and three members of the graduate faculty. During the fall 1,076 North Texans worked toward their master's degrees.

FOOTBALL

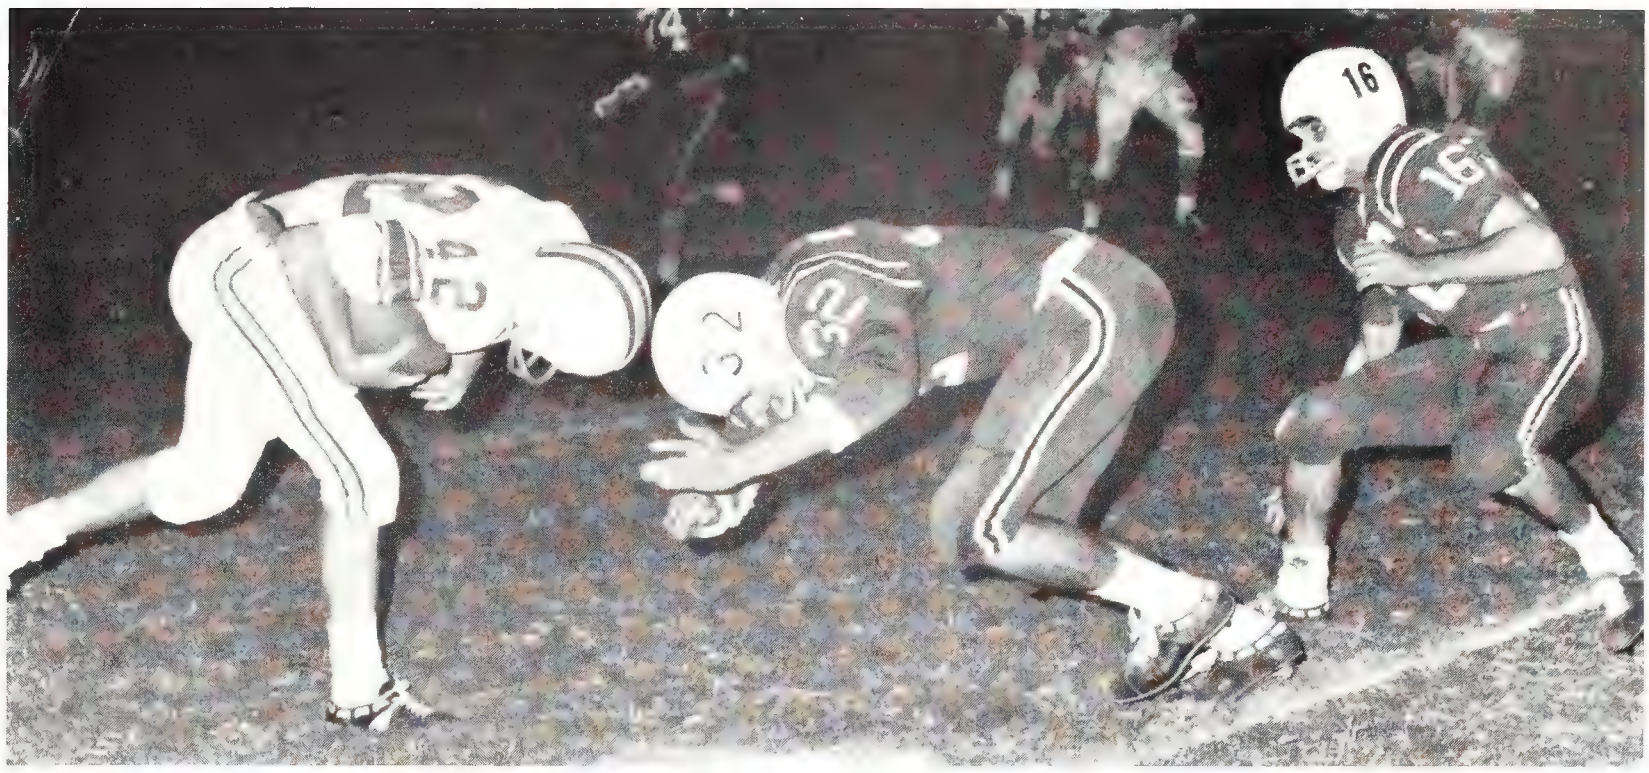

Before 14,000 fans, halfback A. D. Whitfield completes a 19-yard pass play that turned a near-defeat into a last-minute upset over favored Wichita 7-3 to extend NTSU's Homecoming victory streak to seven straight games.

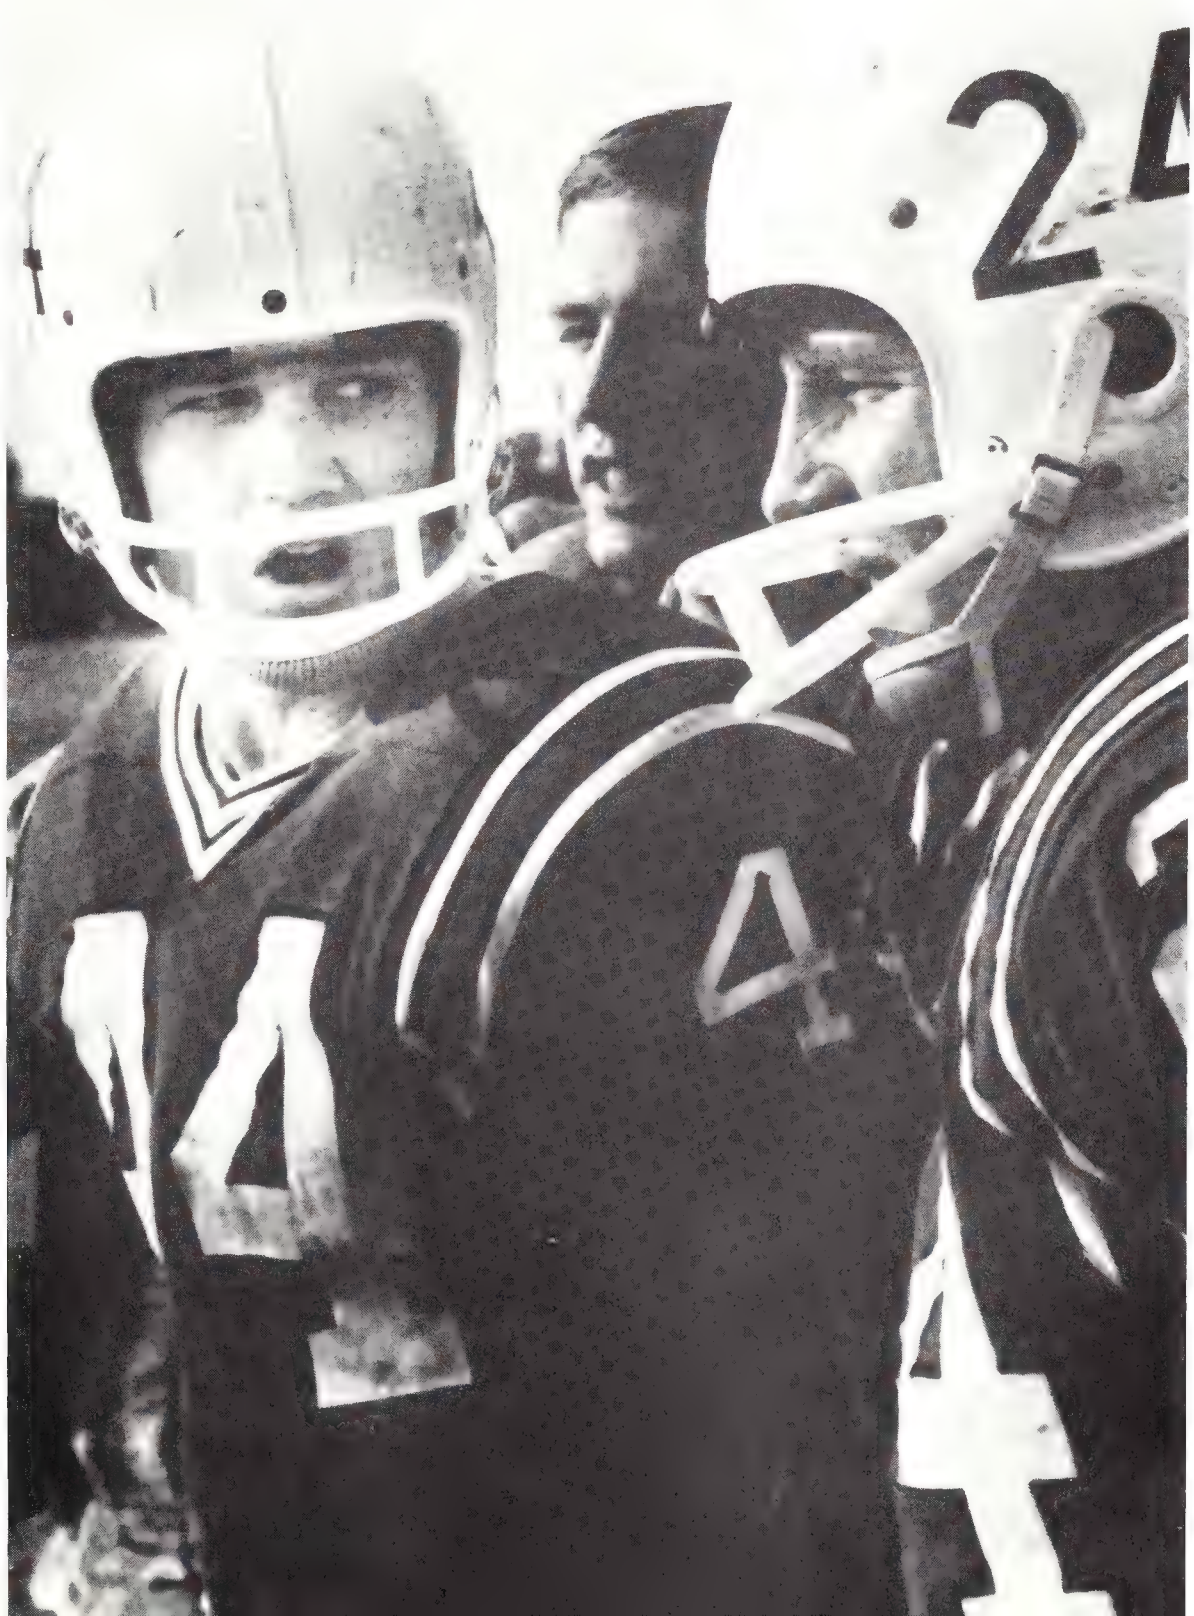

Down, Down, Down Soar The Eagles

. . . as frustration in the form of key injuries, the loss of key players for disciplinary reasons and poor gate attendance contributed to the dismal 3-6 showing of the 1963 Eagles.

In the Missouri Valley Conference race, North Texas settled for third place behind co-champions Cincinnati and Wichita. In non-conference play, the Eagles won one and lost four, with the season's final game cancelled due to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Heads or tails? Tulsa's tailback Charlie Phillips called the wrong choice as NT's Philip Gonzales moves in to halt the speedy Golden Hurricane's advances and teammate Tim Falgout closes in to assist. Tulsa won 22-21.

Sideline conferences often provide the winning combination as teammates seek the correct solution. Here Dwain Bean and James Littlepage plan tactics.

Two Wichita Shockers stop A. D. Whitfield after a short gain. The halfback later thrilled the 14,000 fans by crossing over for the game's lone touchdown.

Shocking Win Extends Homecoming String

Seven straight Homecoming Day victories.

Odus Mitchell, in his 18th season as head coach at NTSU, is able to boast of this feat as his oft-beaten Eagles came alive to edge the University of Wichita 7-3 to keep his Homecoming victory streak intact.

A sun-drenched crowd of 14,000 watched the underdog Eagles respond with a last-minute touchdown to overcome the Shockers. A tough defense and a clicking offense under the direction of quarterback Billy Ryan were credited for the win.

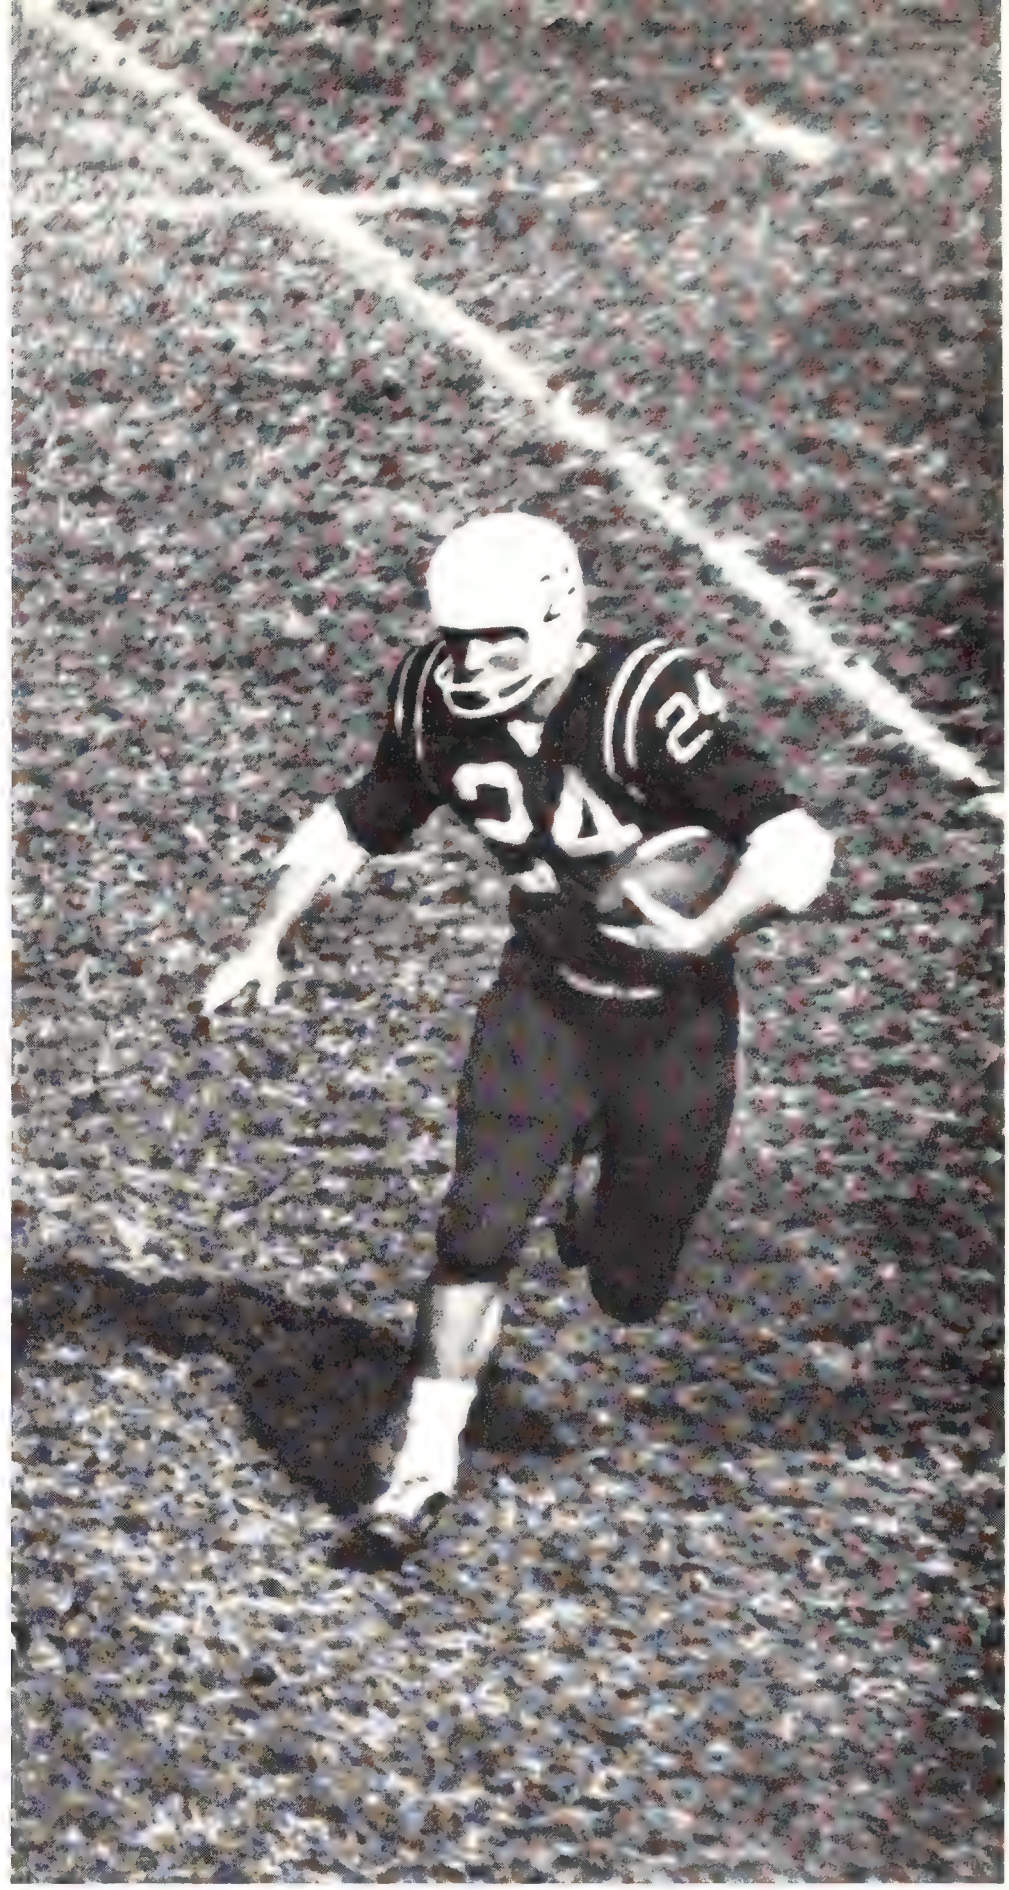

With one minute and 48 seconds remaining, Ryan passed to halfback A. D. Whitfield, who plowed through from the 11 for the winning tally. But the Shockers refused to accept defeat as the Kansas team roared downfield to threaten the Eagles in the final seconds. Defensive safety Tim Falgout preserved the Eagles' lead by intercepting a pass in the NT end zone to halt Wichita's final threat.

Against Wichita, fullback Dwain Bean proves he's the Eagles' leading ground gainer as he plows through for part of the 77 yards he earned.

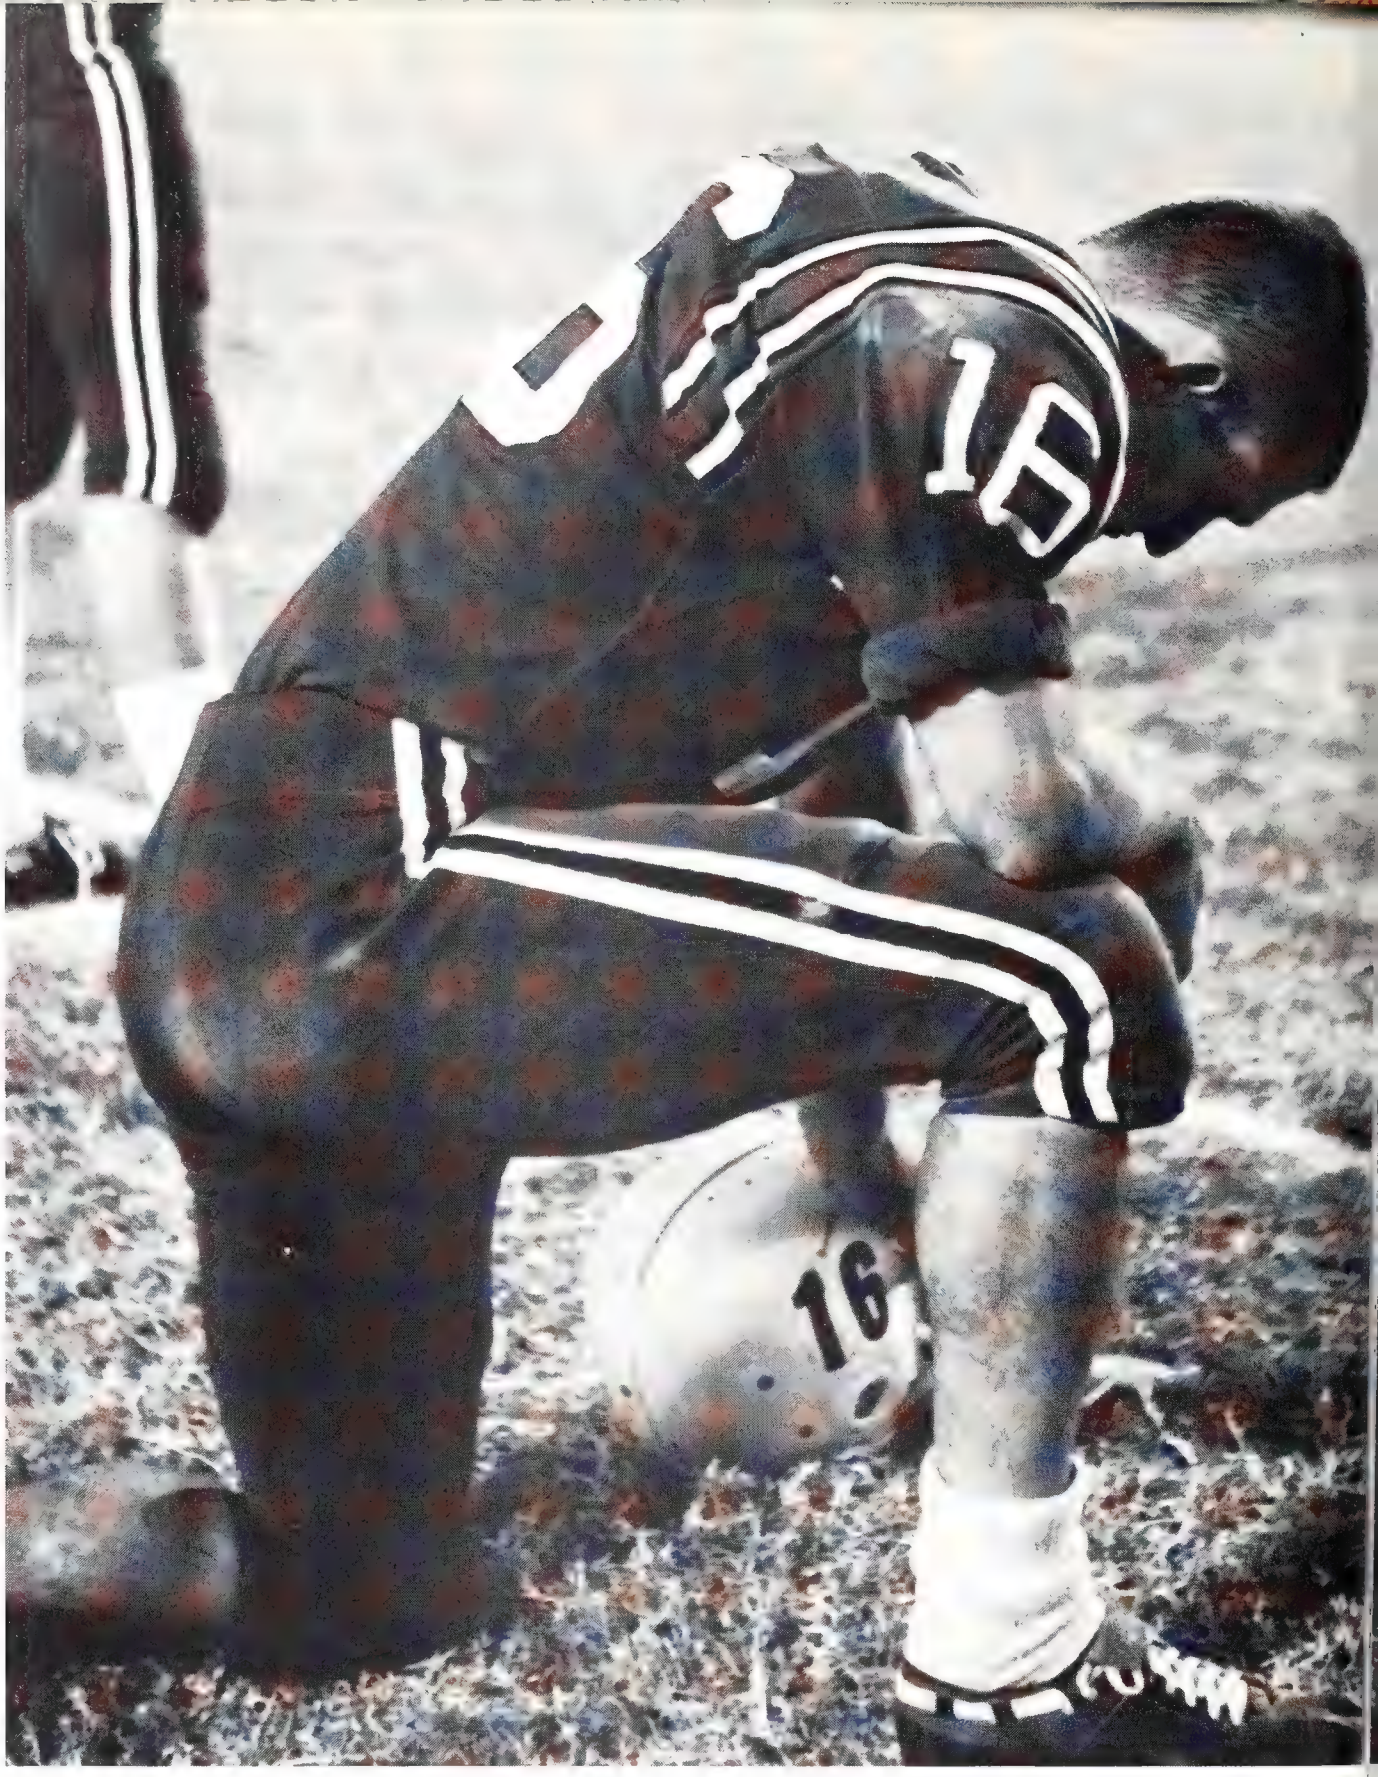

With each step playing a vital part in the Eagle offensive threat, James Littlepage returns a first half Wichita punt.

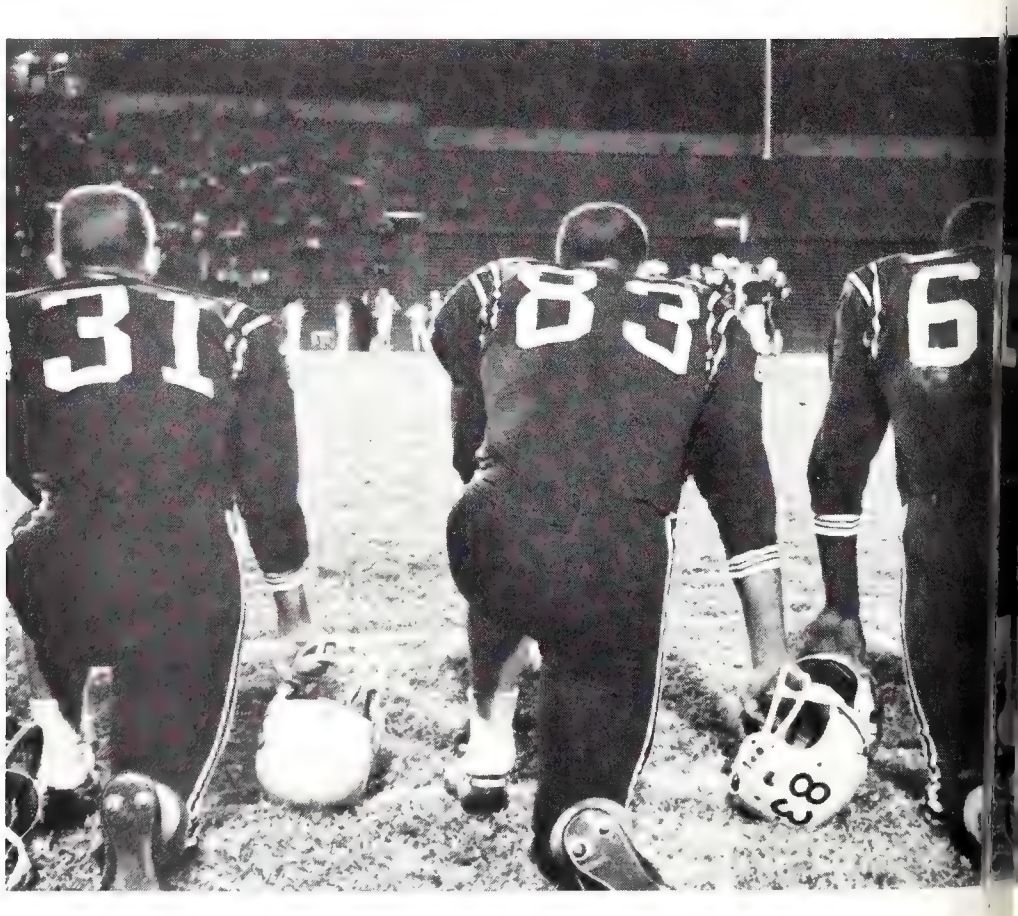

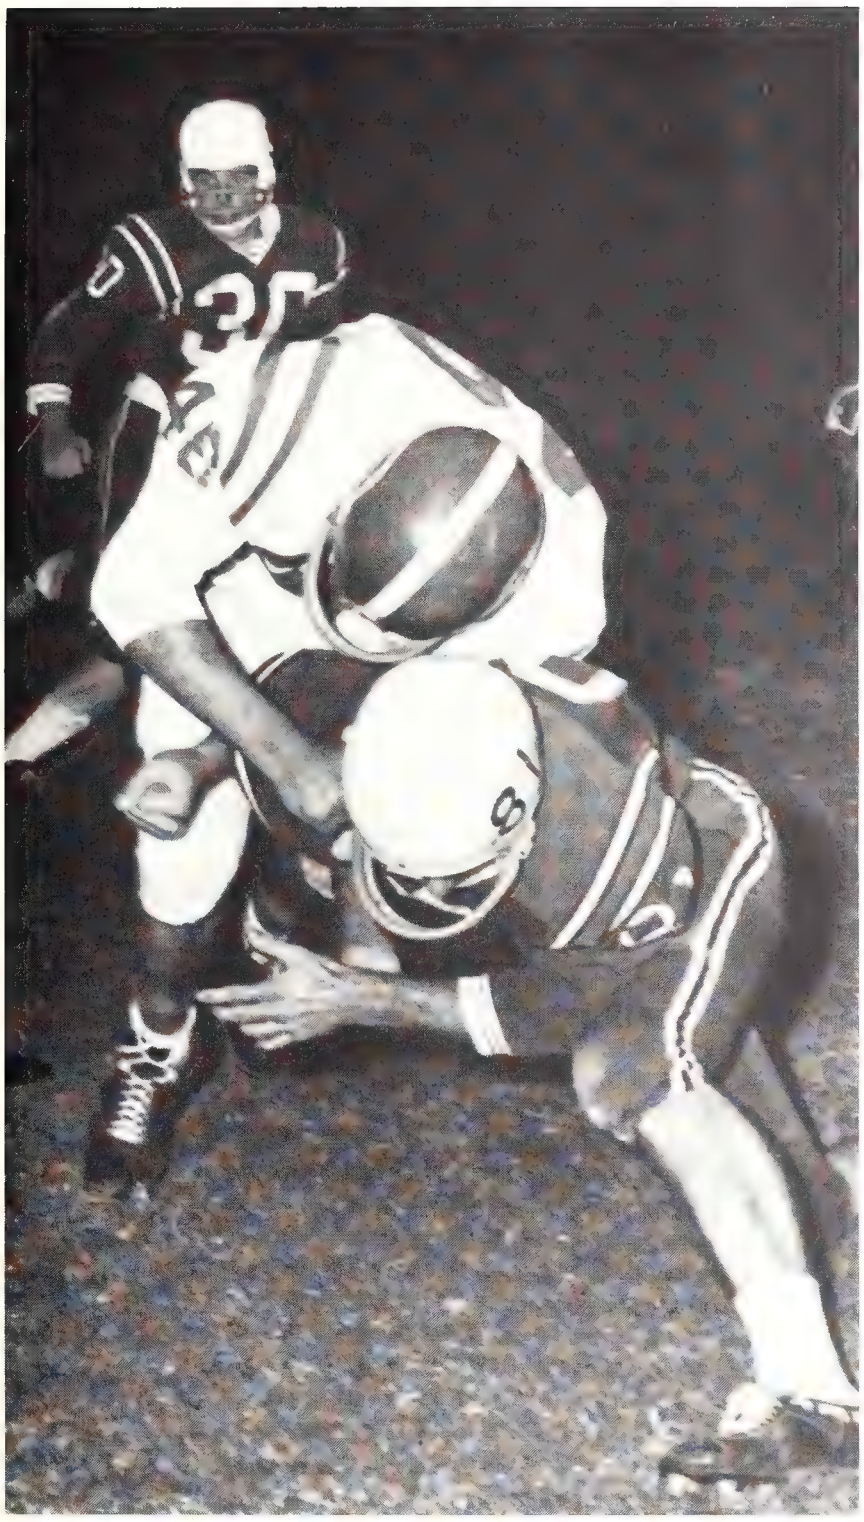

Dodging a series of Shocker defensive men, Bobby Smith batters his way to the Wichita 37 on a 52-yard jaunt that helped set up the touchdown.

Anxiety, anguish or even disgust sometimes mar the face of the quarterback, witnessing the action from the sidelines. Why won't the plays work? he asks.

A Cardinal clears the way by blocking Herb Carr (81) as Louisville makes its MVC football debut in a losing cause, 26-6.

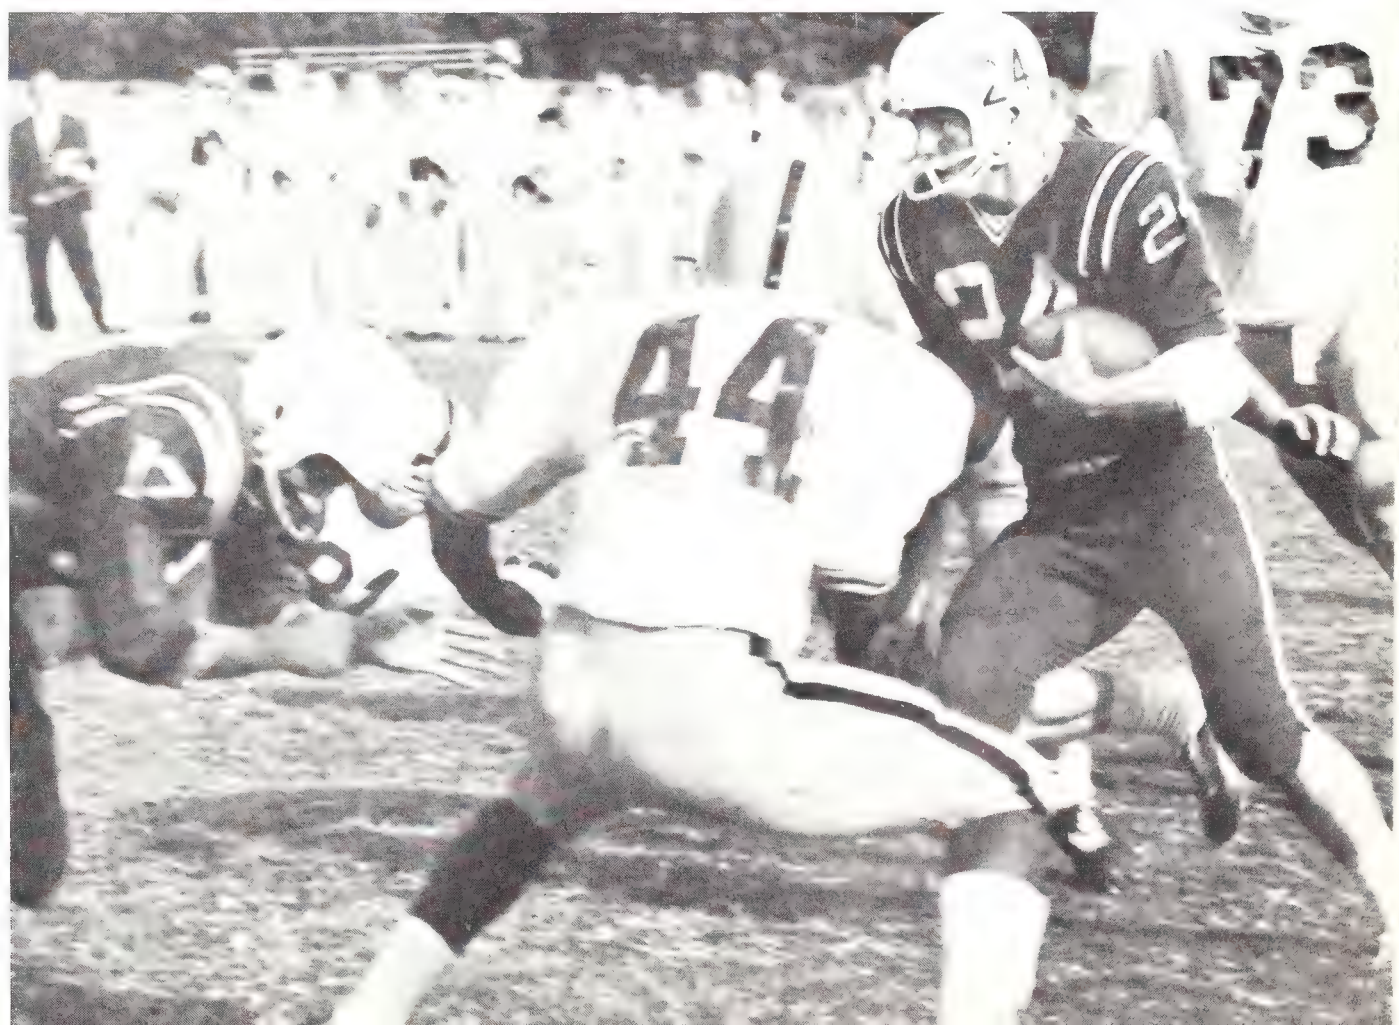

A faint smile haunts the face of Coach Odus Mitchell during NT's brief lead over Tulsa.

The anticipation of getting into the game is a feeling that only the player understands. He has one thought—to play his best—that dominates all others.

Minutes before the halftime intermission, halfback James Littlepage scrambles for a first down, only to be met by Wichita's safetyman Miller Farr.

Quarterback Mike Crocker receives tips from Coach Fred N. McCain who spies from the press box and then relays his information to the sidelines.

Disdainful eyes regard the referee who attempts to explain a controversial ruling to Hardin-Simmons Coach Floyd Huggins. North Texas dampened the spirits of the Cowboys with a narrow 18-12 grid victory.

Coach Odus Mitchell—one of the country's most winning coaches—stands sentinel-like from the sidelines. The team's strategy and tactics depend upon his and his assistants' knowledge, plus the determination and will to win by members of his team.

The Associated Press selected fullback Dwain Bean, the conference's leading rusher for two years, as one of two repeaters on its All-MVC team.

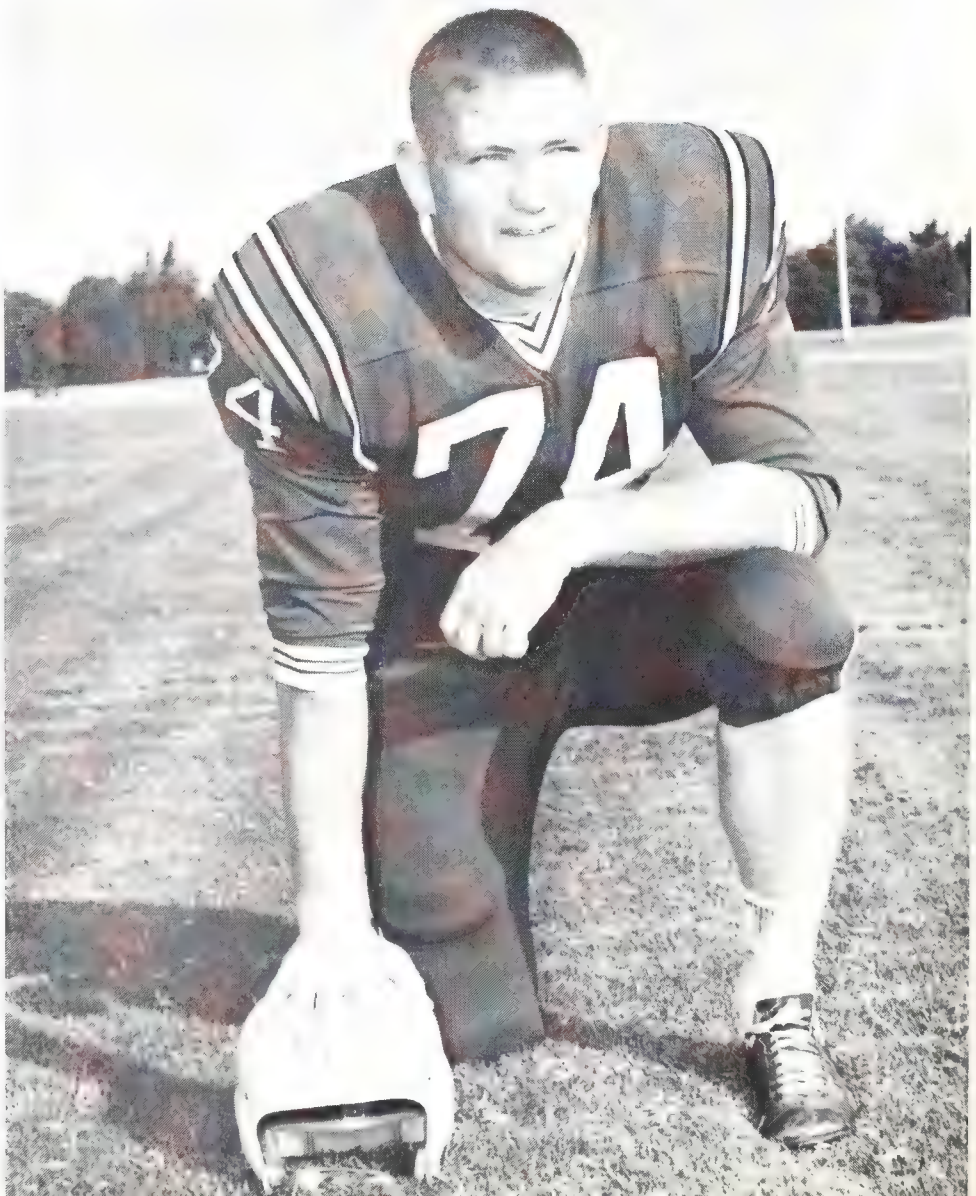

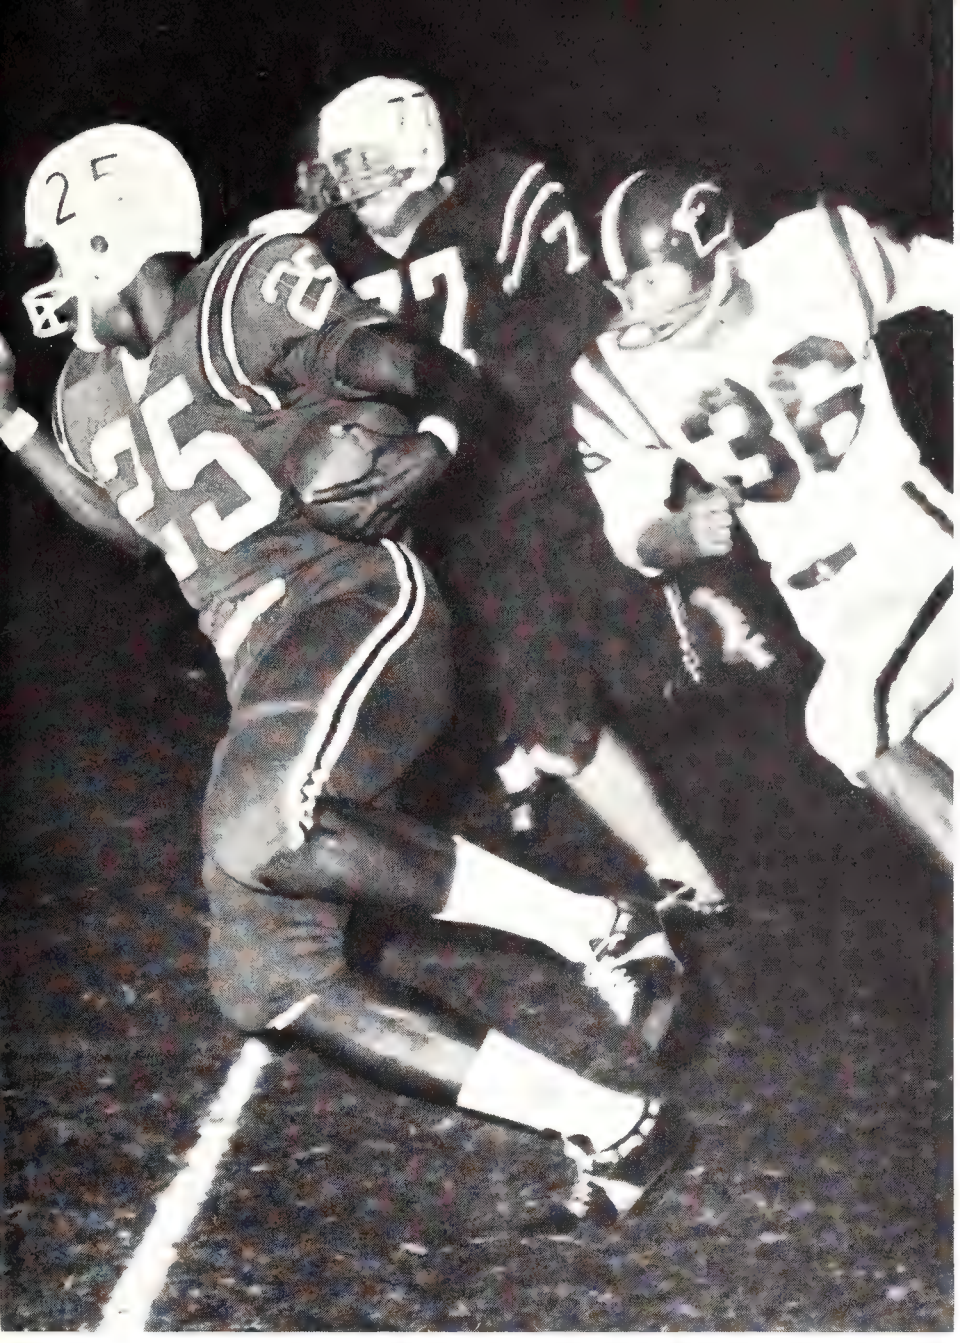

Two top MVC prospects—Tulsa's John Simmons and NT's Bobby Smith —discuss the Hurricane victory. Both later signed with Buffalo.

Problems, problems, problems arose for the Wichita backfield. And Tim Falgout is the name of one.

Tackle Cotton Moore, 220-pound junior, joined Bean as the only other Eagle to be named to the AP's All-Missouri Valley Conference team.

Injury-ridden Eaglets Win 1, Lose 3

Thirty-two recruits — a record-breaking number for North Texas — sent early autumn hopes of a successful season soaring but Coach Ken Bahnsen's luckless Eaglets were forced to settle for a bleak 1-3 record.

Throughout the season injuries riddled the team. At one time, Coach Bahnsen remarked that it would be easier to name the players who were not injured than those who were.

The freshman team's lone victory came at the beginning of the 1963 campaign when the Eaglets invaded Wichita and returned 26-0 winners.

Two Southwest Conference teams furnished setbacks for the North Texas freshmen as TCU's Wogs came from behind to win 28-12 and Texas Tech's Picadors won easily, 56-28. The Tyler Junior College Apaches handed the Eaglets the other loss with a squeaking 19-12 victory.

The final game against Tulsa was canceled following President Kennedy's assassination.

Despite this ground-gaining attempt against Tyler Junior College, halfback James Leatherwood was later added to the growing list of key injuries.

A stubborn North Texas defensive line refuses to give up additional yardage to a TCU Wog. Despite a spectacular first half and a 12-6 halftime lead, the Eaglets fell to the Wogs 28-12.

Perennially a football powerhouse, Tyler Junior College uses a sturdy front line as the Apaches edge the injury-ridden Eaglets 19-12 at Fouts Field.

As David Burns and Ron Bonham watch, Eagle mainstay Albert Jones eyes the basket while driving for a crucial shot against Cincinnati. But the Flock fell to once-mighty Cincy, which dropped to fifth place in the MVC.

Victories Were Scant

. . . during the 1963 - 64 cage season, but Coach Charles Johnson feels that this year's team was one of the finest to don NTSU uniforms. Paced by All-MVC forward John Savage, the Eagles compiled a 7-17 season record with a 1-11 Missouri Valley Conference mark.

Savage, making the All-MVC first team for the third straight year, scored a varsity total of 1,423 points, placing him second in the most points scored in a career by a North Texas player.

Midway through the season, a crucial blow was dealt the Eagles when 6-7 forward Carl Miller was sidelined with mononucleosis and 6-6 forward Fred Schulz dropped out of school.

In the MVC race, defending champion Cincinnati was replaced by Wichita and Drake, who tied for the crown. Wichita earned the right to advance to the regional NCAA tournament by defeating Drake in a special playoff. Cincy dropped to fifth, NT, to last.

Against the tallest collegiate team in the nation, the Eagles employ a fast-breaking offense and a tight defense in upsetting Oklahoma City's Chieftains 77-74 in Men's Gymnasium. But one month later OCU avenged their Denton loss, smothering NTSU 125-88.

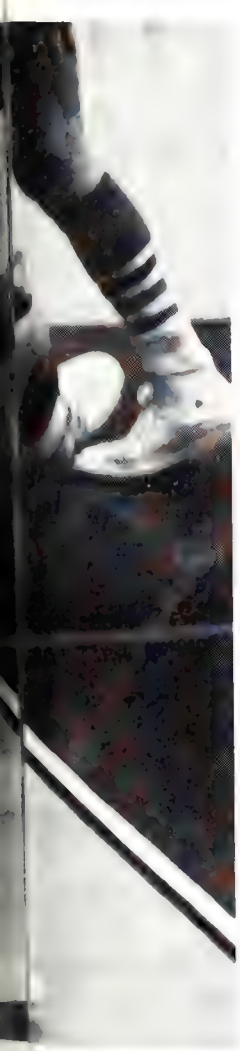

After driving in for a quick lay-up, junior David Burns picks himself up after tangling with a University of Houston foe. The Cougars won 58-56.

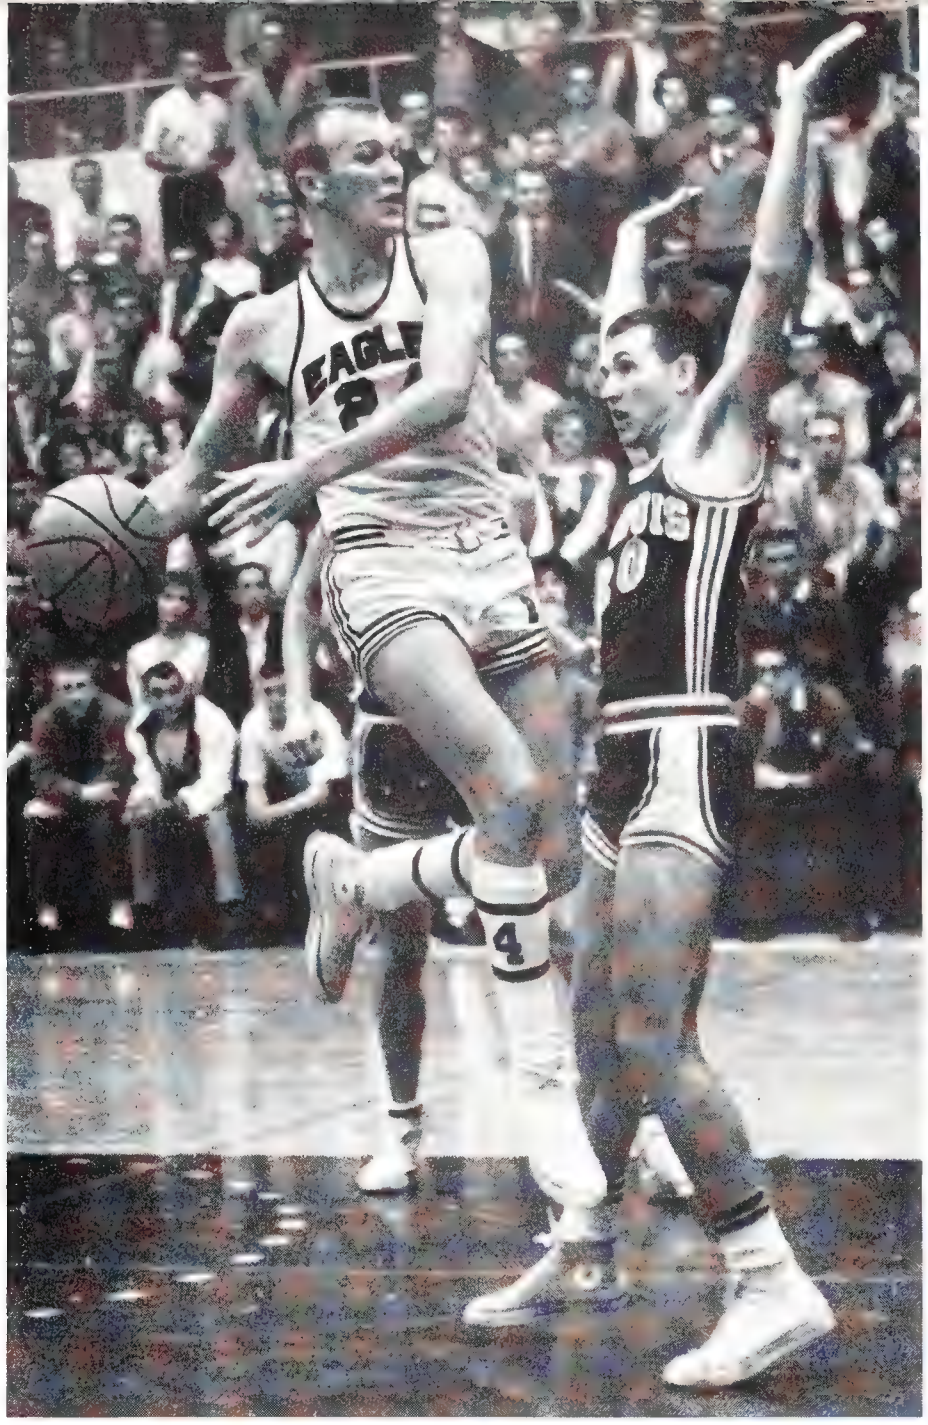

From a dirt court to big time in college basketball, NT's record-breaking John Savage drives in for two of his 1,423 points scored during his collegiate play at North Texas.

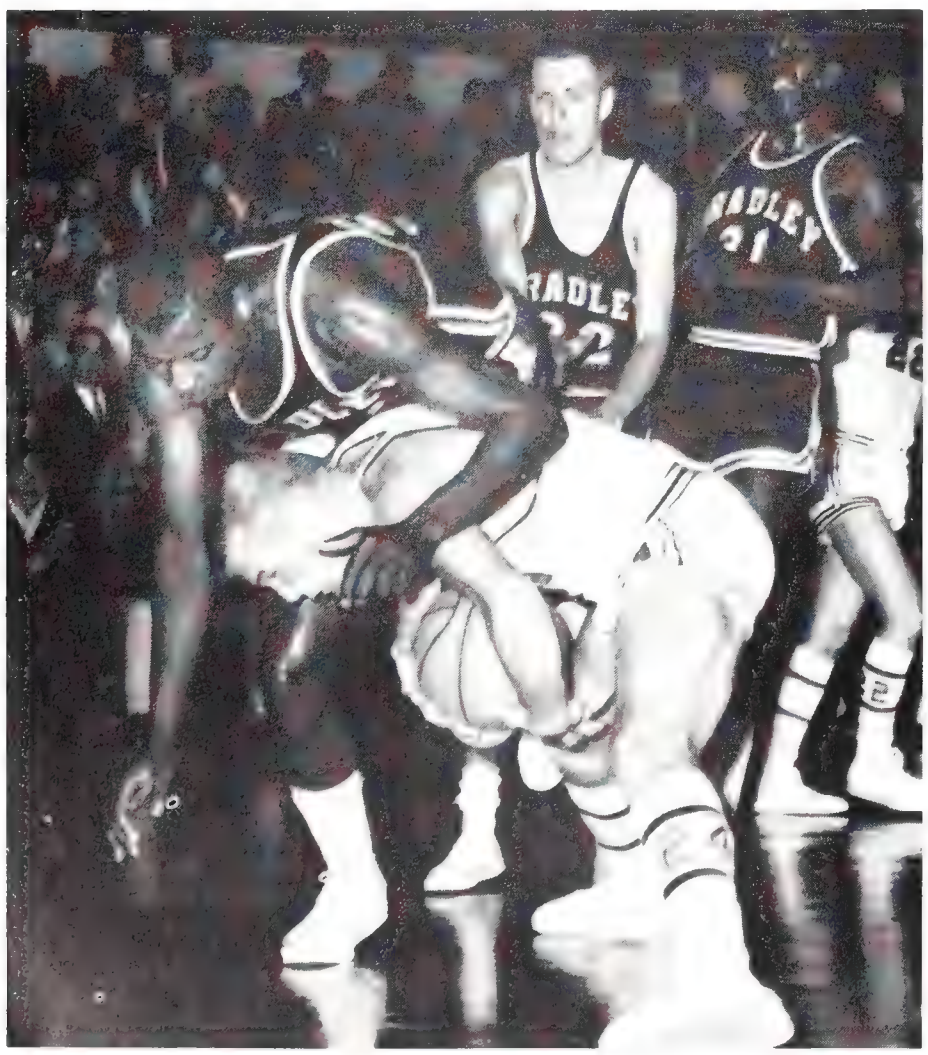

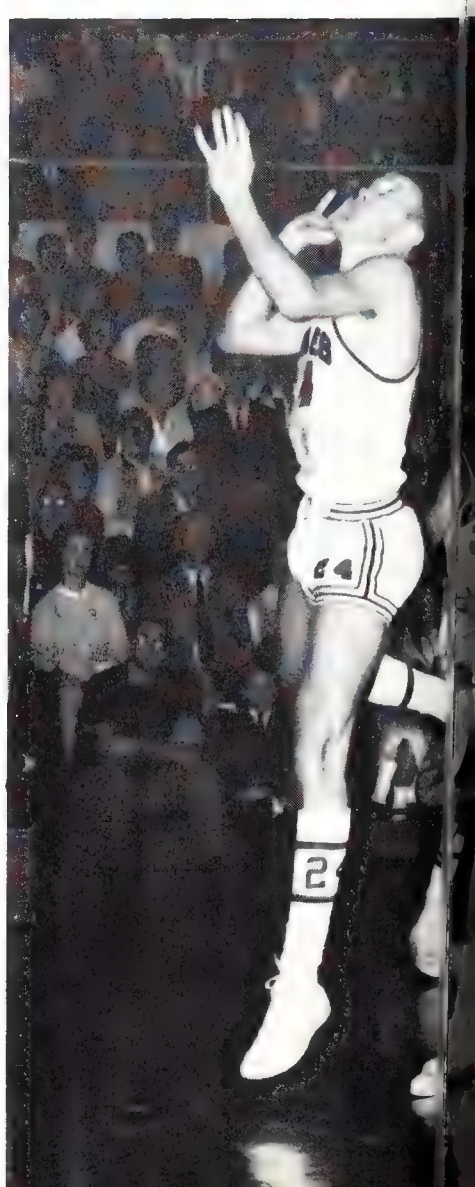

Bubba Bailey's stolen passes and quick lay-ups spell disaster as the senior playmaker goes up for two points against St. Louis.

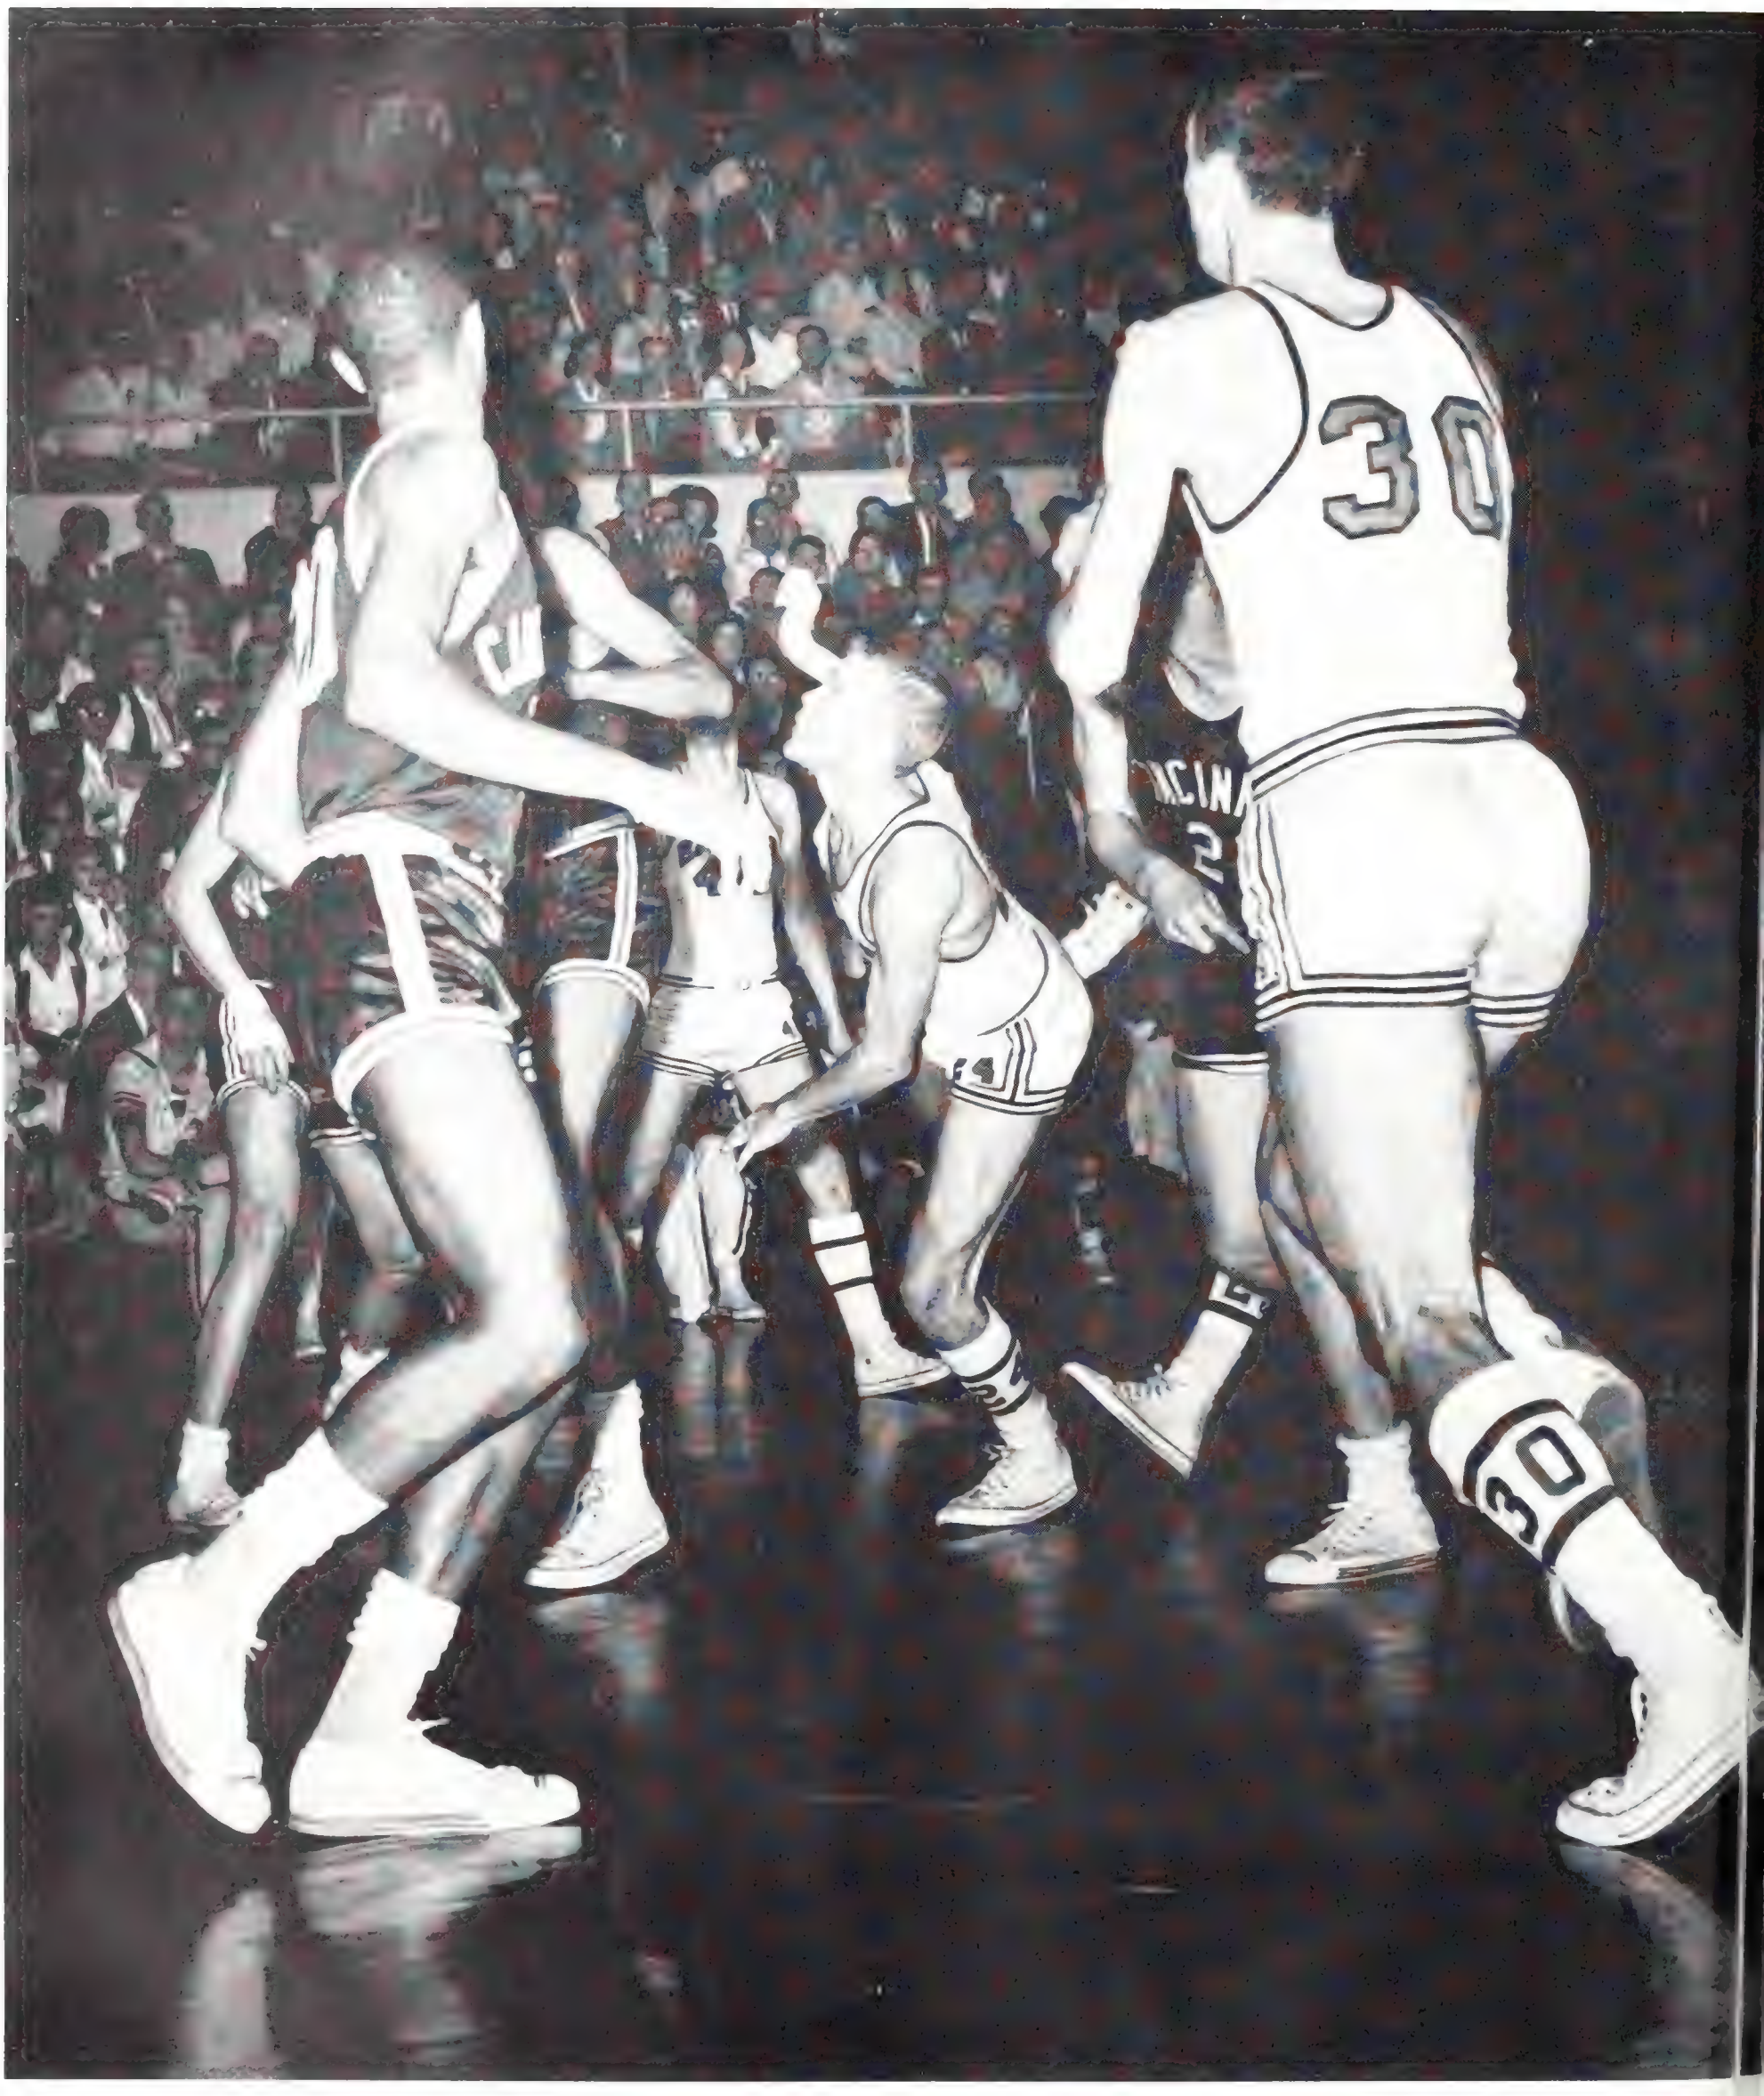

Fans were often confused as to whether the game was football or basketball. Bradley's Joe Strawder and Bailey are confused, too.

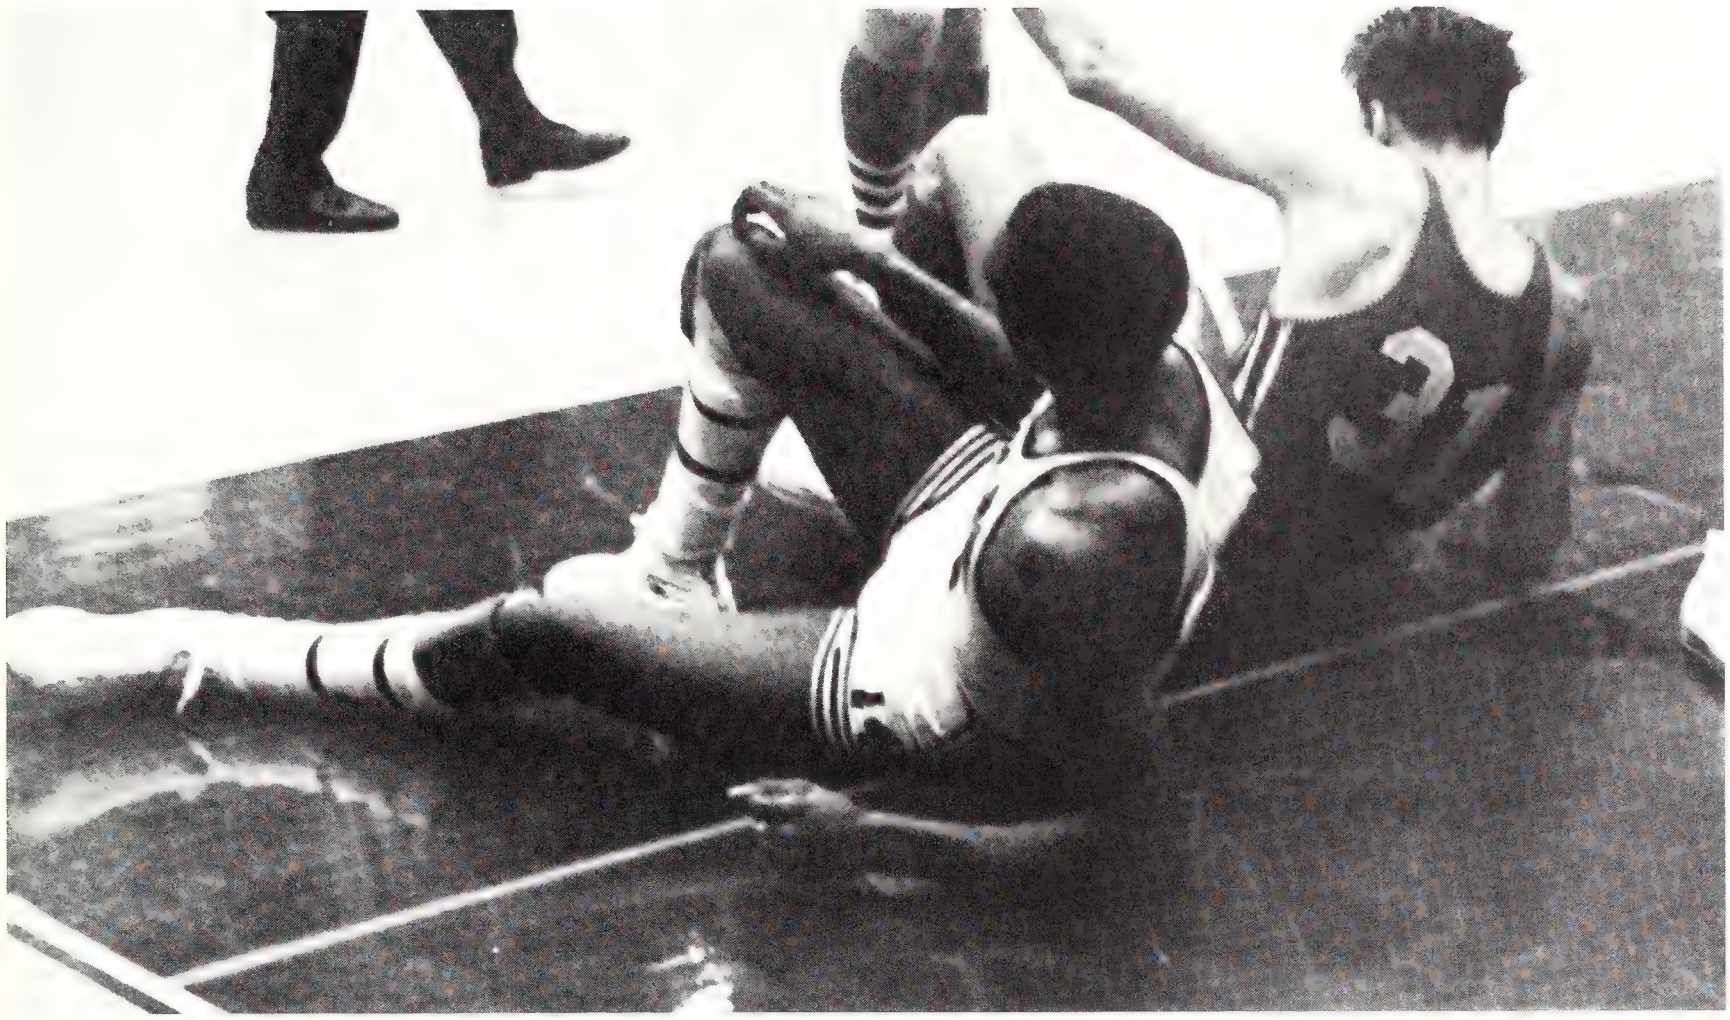

A packed Men's Gymnasium picked up the nickname of "The Pit" by other Valley teams during the season, but the enthusiasm of the North Texas students, filling the court with rhythmic "Go, Go, Go" chants, spurred the Eagles to victory in four of 11 home games.

Bailey's two points do not quite compare with All-American Ron Bonham's (21) 38 points, but in the game at Cincinnati, Bailey hit a career high of 41.

Long-time the dominating power in Missouri Valley competition, mighty Cincinnati's monopoly on basketball championships fell in 1964. In Denton, some 4,500 fans watched North Texas come close to upsetting the still-powerful Bearcats in the 78-68 rough and tumble game.

Savage, gunning for All-American honors in his senior season on the North Texas squad, collides with a Houston Cougar. The South Texas team employed a deliberate offense to edge the Eagles 58-56 in a Men's Gym non-conference game.

WU Edges NT on TV

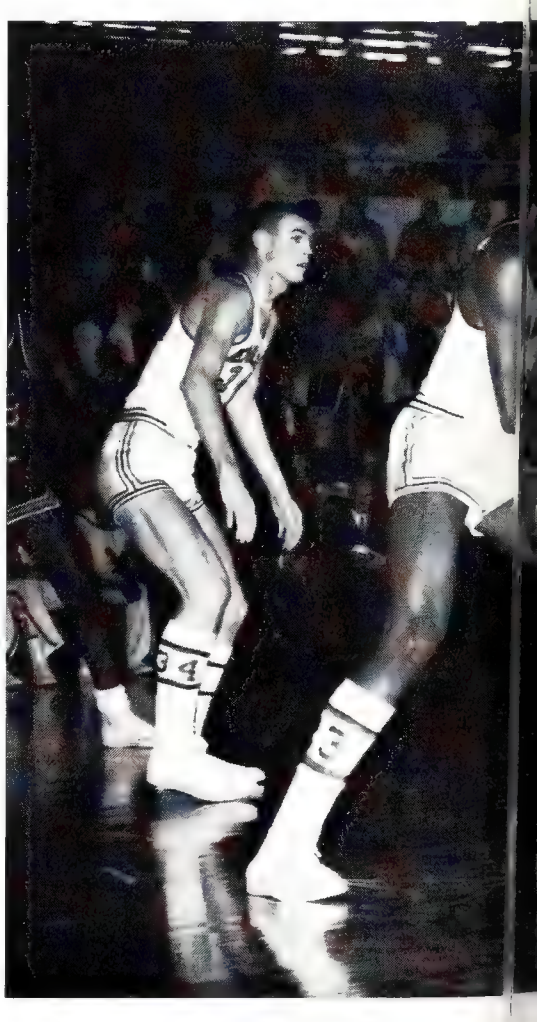

The home court advantage almost proved effective for the fired-up Eagles but a more-inspired Wichita team, before a packed crowd and a regional television audience, disposed of the shorter Eagles easily 86-70.

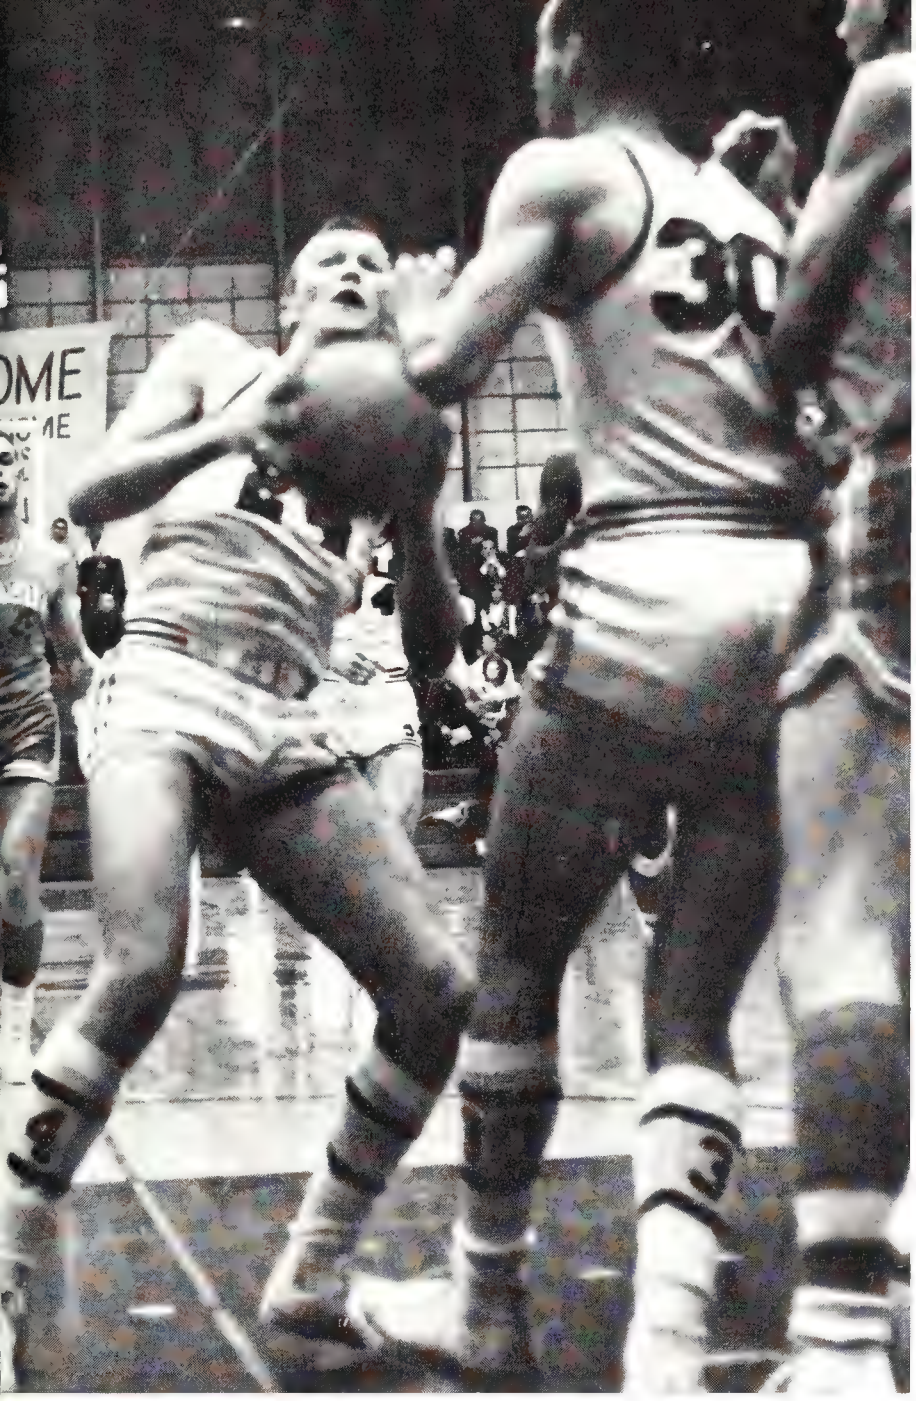

Led by Dave Stallworth, the Missouri Valley Conference's Most Valuable Player, the Shockers relied upon their added height advantage, sharp outside shooting and fierce defense to overtake the Eagles in the final minutes.

Rough and tumble tactics frequently marked the game, but the rebounding and shooting by the Eagles' John Savage and Carl Miller and Bubba Bailey's accuracy and defensive strategy kept the North Texas attack alive.

Telecast over the Missouri Valley Conference Network through a local outlet, Dallas station KRLD-TV, the North Texas-Wichita game was but one of a series of MVC contests that the network aired during the 1963-64 season.

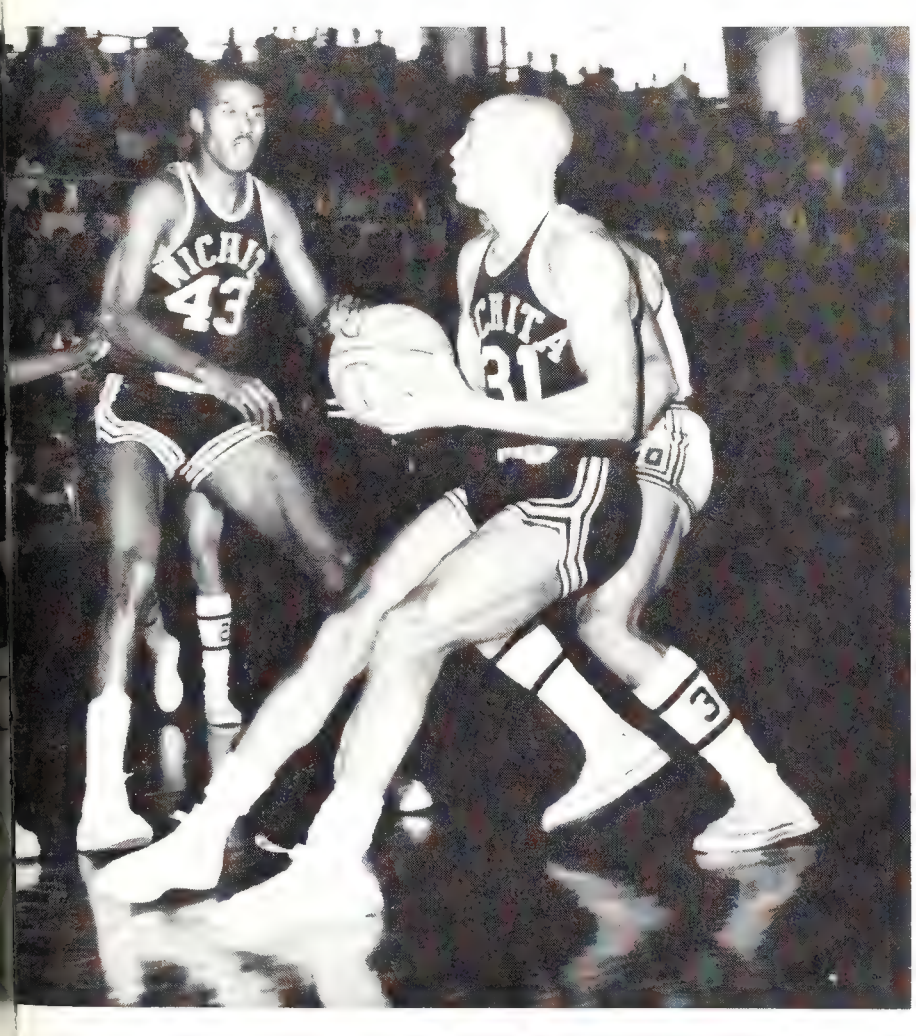

TOP: Extreme concern from the bench, witnessed in the final five minues, appears on the faces of the Eagles as the Shockers slowly prevent the upset. MIDDLE: Ralph Miller, one of the MVC's most energetic coaches, takes time out to confer with one of his Shockers. What's wrong? he seems to ask. BOTTOM: Coach Charles Johnson finds it hard to believe that his well-laid plans for defeating Wichita have suddenly exploded as he sees the lead diminish.

All-Missouri Valley choice Bubba Bailey attempts to shoot against Oklahoma City. Both he and John Savage made the Coaches' All-MVC honor list.

Guard Kelly Pete finds himself hemmed in, but the appearance of All-American Dave Stallworth reassures the Wichita sophomore.

Held scoreless by the Shockers in the first half, Savage breaks loose for 20 points in the second period of this crucial MVC contest.

Frosh Show Promise

The outlook for future varsity teams looks bright and clear.

For the third straight season, Coach Travis Duncan's freshman Eaglets posted a winning season with eight victories and six losses.

Brightest among the 13 prospects making up the frosh team, 6-8 Willie Davis collected 191 rebounds and 268 points for a 19.1 scoring average to lead the Eaglets in both departments.

Coach Duncan, besides helping with the varsity team, was able to rely on the assistance for the second season of Les Pollock, graduate assistant coach. Like Duncan, Pollock aided in scouting for the recruitment program.

Through extensive nationwide recruiting, the NTSU freshman team — a winning team for the third straight year — sets the pace for future varsity teams.

Eaglet Ron Miller drives around two Lon Morris Bearcats to open the season. Lon Morris, advancing to the National Junior College tournament, won 90-65.

TRACK

Holder of the North Texas outdoor broad jump record with a leap of 24 feet 2½ inches last spring, junior Ron Linscomb reaches the finals in Fort Worth's Will Rogers Indoor Meet. Linscomb later made the Dallas Indoor Meet finals.

A Young, Lean Squad

. . . greeted Coach Winton E. (Pop) Noah when workouts began for the 1964 NTSU track season. Thirteen members — only one a senior — formed the nucleus of an inexperienced team. Appearances at two indoor meets early in the spring brightened prospects as the Eagles fared well in Noah's estimation against some of the top competition in the Southwest.

After the Will Rogers Indoor and Dallas Indoor Meets, the Eagles lost a dual meet to Kansas State College of Pittsburg, placed sixth in the Southwest Recreation and third in a five-team meet in Denton. Appearances were also made at the Texas, Kansas, Drake, West Texas and San Angelo Relays in preparation for the Missouri Valley Conference meet.

Neck and neck with a Texas Tech sprinter, NT's Arvester Sheppard moves into his stride on the third segment of the 440-yard relay. SMU won first, Tech, second, and North Texas, third, in the five-team track meet at Fouts Field.

Sophomore 100- and 220-yard dash specialist Bob Strange gets set in the chilly practice meet against Arlington State to inaugurate the outdoor season.

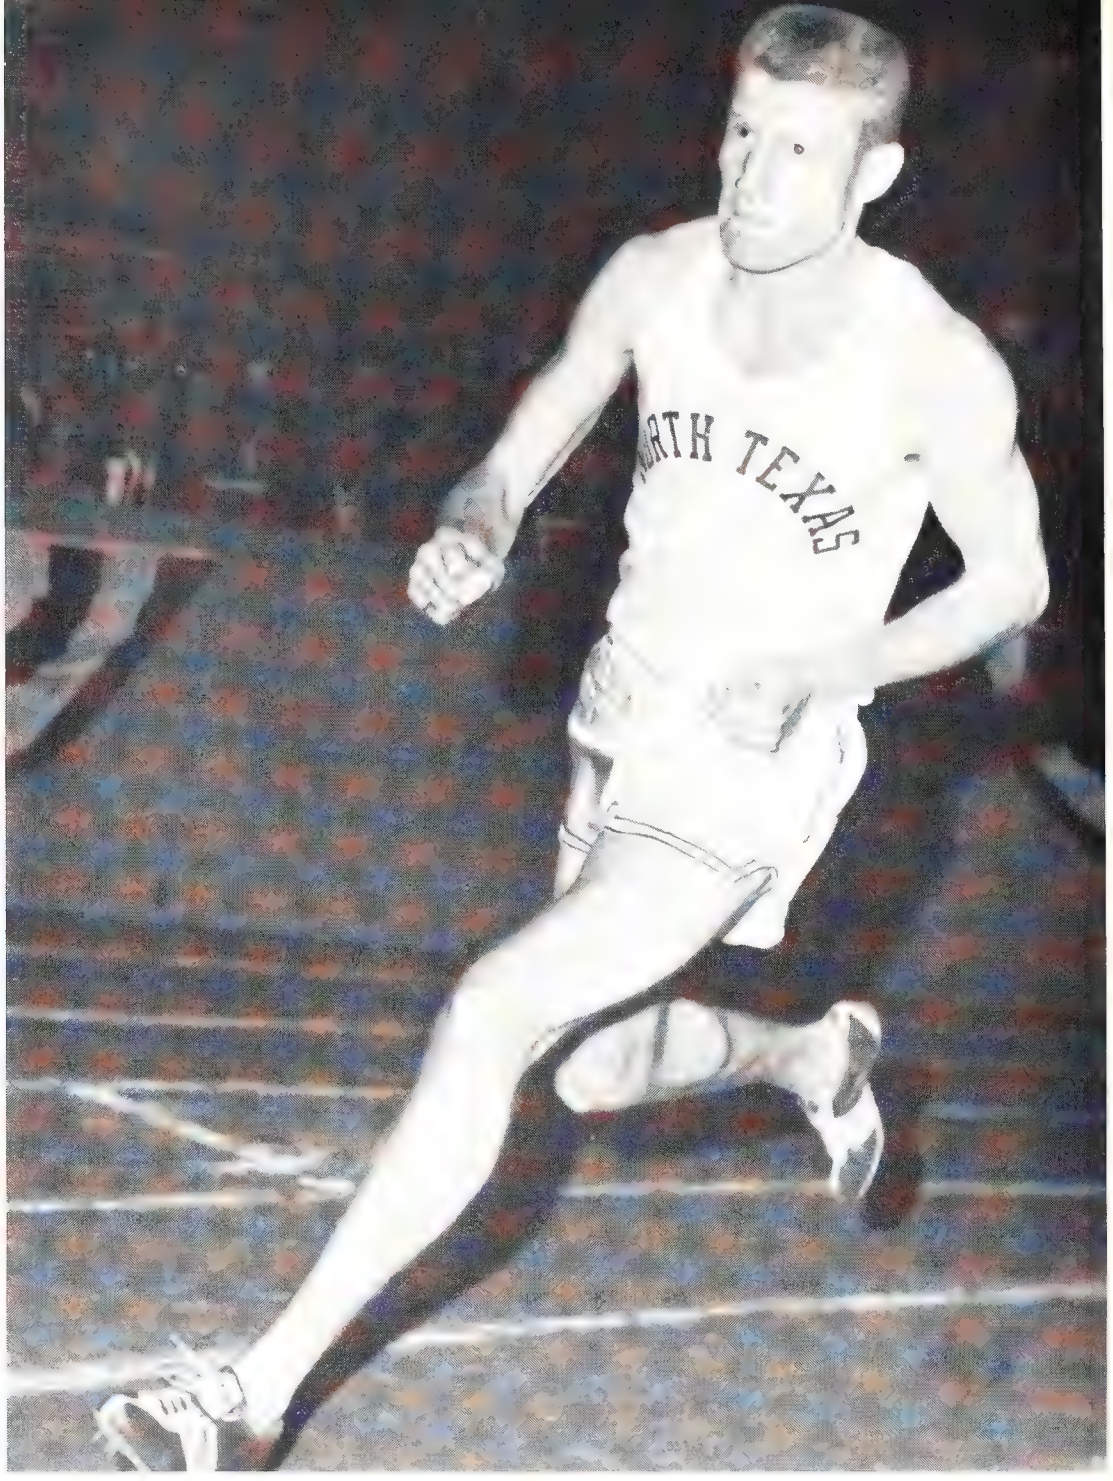

BOTTOM: Scantily attired tracksters receive a chilly reception at the Southwest Recreation Meet: a stiff wind gave little comfort to the athletes.

In MVC cross-country during the fall, miler John Chrisman, placing seventh, led NTSU to third place.

Making his first collegiate indoor appearance, freshman Doyle Magee, former Garland High ace, captures a third place victory in Dallas' 600-yard open division run.

A Golden Gorilla breaks the tape in the 440-yard dash. Fred Pink follows a distant second. Kansas State defeated the outnumbered Eagles 92-55.

A stride ahead of Texas A&M's Ted Nelson, Fred Pink leads the field in the 600-yard dash. Pink won NTSU's lone medal in the Fort Worth meet.

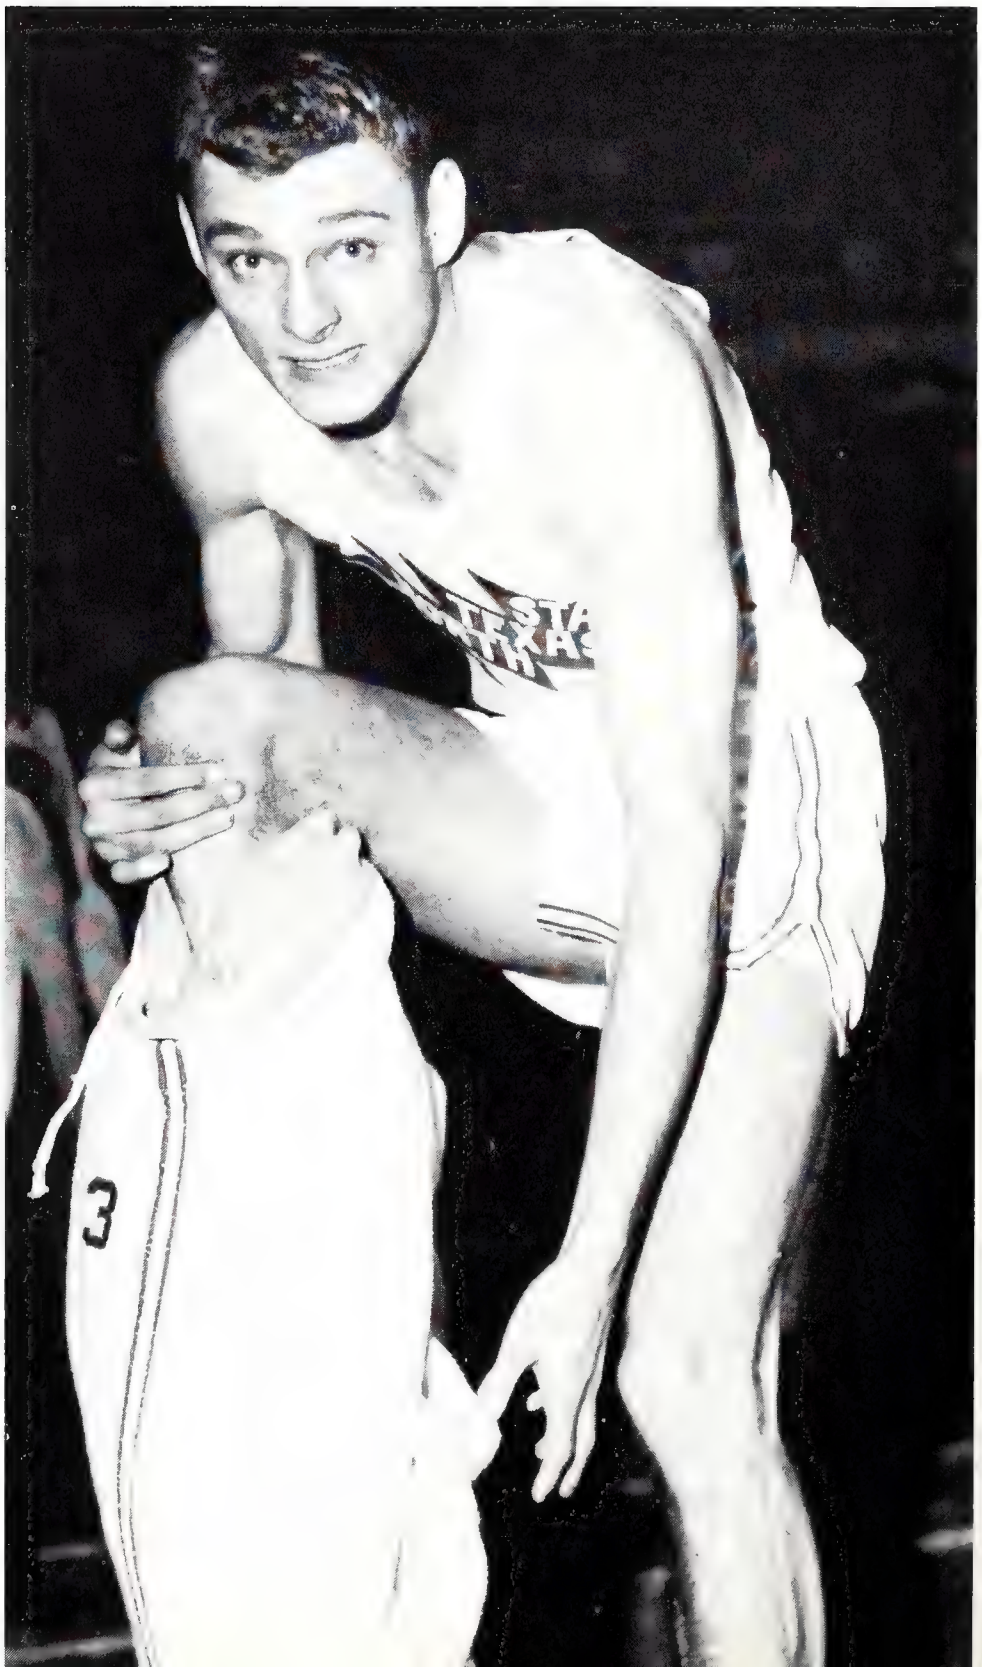

A sudden burst of speed by TCU's Roger Hunt edges out North Texan Jody Horton in the first heat of the 1,000-yard run at the Dallas Indoor Meet. Hunt was given first place, Horton second in the two-heat affair.

Against Kansas State College of Pittsburg, Ron Linscomb finishes first, teammate Jerry Tanner second, in the 880-yard run.

Sprinter Fred Pink, anchorman for the 440- and mile-relay teams, slips off his warmups in preparation for his lap at the Will Rogers Indoor Meet.

At the sound of the starter's gun, distance men leap from their "set" positions to begin the mile's journey to the finish line—a long way off.

A chilly Southern wind does nothing to improve running conditions at the Southwest Recreation Track Meet in Fort Worth.

North Texas' John Chrisman jockeys for field position on the third lap of the mile run behind runners from Texas Tech and Baylor.

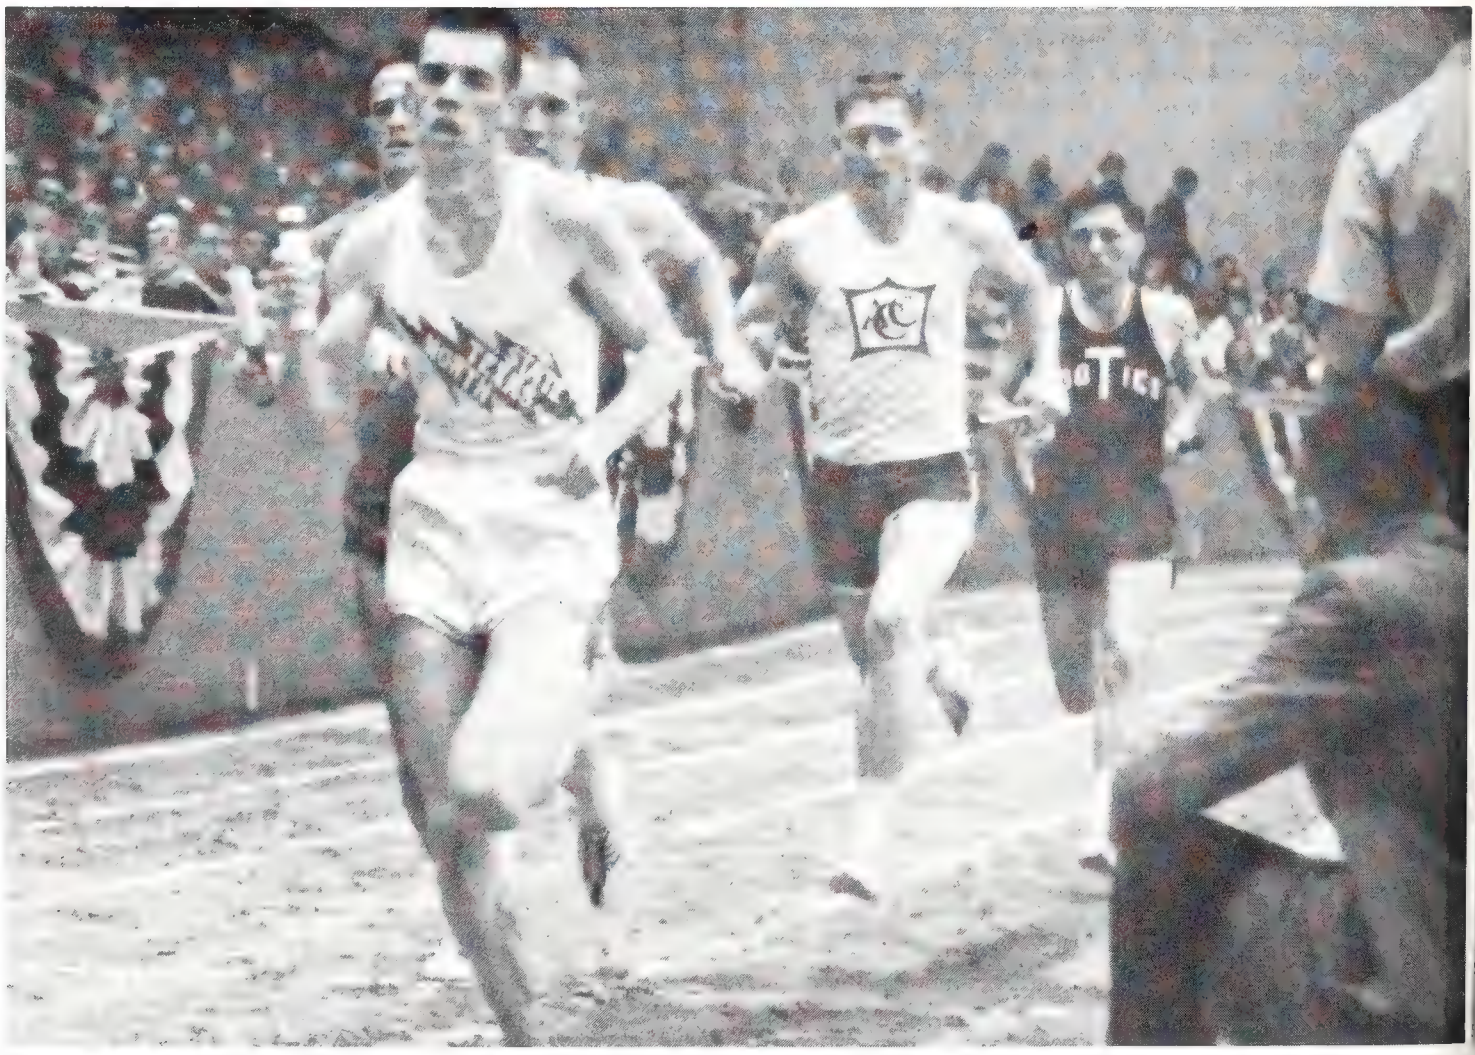

Lane assignments are given by Richard Menchaca and trainer Carroll Montgomery to Bob Strange, Jody Horton, Ronnie Linscomb and Fred Pink.

Precious seconds can be either gained or lost by the hand-off, one of the most important facets of any relay team.

Before a capacity crowd in the State Fair Coliseum, Ronnie Linscomb takes the lead in the mile relay at the Dallas Indoor Meet. NTSU placed third.

Victories at the Southern Intercollegiate, Southwest Recreation, Border Olympics and the NCAA Meet are only a few of the tournaments that Herbert Ferrill's golf teams have won trophies in during his 11 years as NTSU coach.

Prospects Looked Dim But

. . . a young and inexperienced North Texas golf team served notice that the 1964 squad was to be reckoned with. The squad, which had only two returning lettermen from a team that placed third in the NCAA tournament last year, started off in a blistering pace.

For the fourth straight year, the Eagles captured the team championship in the Southwest Recreation Golf Tournament in Fort Worth.

One week later, Coach Herb Ferrill's linksters entered the Border Olympics and won third place behind Houston and Texas.

The absence of All-American Bobby Greenwood along with captain Rives McBee, Don Wilson and Elgie Seamster was felt, but four transfers brightened Ferrill's prospects for another winning season.

In this 11th season as coach, Ferrill brought the school's match record past the 200th dual victory mark during the 1964 campaign.

A promising freshman last year, Dwight Nevil paced entries in the Southwest Recreation this spring to win the individual title with rounds of 70 and 75.

One of two lettermen returning from last season's successful team, Canadian Ron Folk helps Coach Ferrill capture the 200th dual match.

Expected to add depth to the North Texas link team, Bob Thomson, like fellow Canadian Ron Folk, is a returning letterman.

A sophomore transfer from Odessa College, Harold Gardner works on the links toward his first North Texas varsity letter.

In the Southwest Recreation Tournament, Brian Youngdahl finished six strokes behind teammate Dwight Nevil for medalist honors with 151.

Under the watchful eyes of the referee, neither the Sigma Nus nor the Lambda Chi Alphas dare move until the ball is snapped lest a penalty for offsides is called. The Sigma Nus won this early season fraternity game easily 30-0.

Athletic Enthusiasm On Campus

. . . spurred student participation to a new high as intra - college groups responded with exceptional vigor.

Promoting athletic spirit among North Texas males, the NTSU intramural program covered 11 sports. Football and basketball claimed the biggest student participation. Ten fraternity teams entered both sports, while a massive three-league contest was waged by independent teams in both basketball and football.

Perennial kingpin BSU was edged by the Spartans in a playoff of independent league teams. Sigma Nu, defending fraternity league champ, earned the university intramural football crown by defeating the Spartans in the playoff game.

A Welcome Sight: Tennis

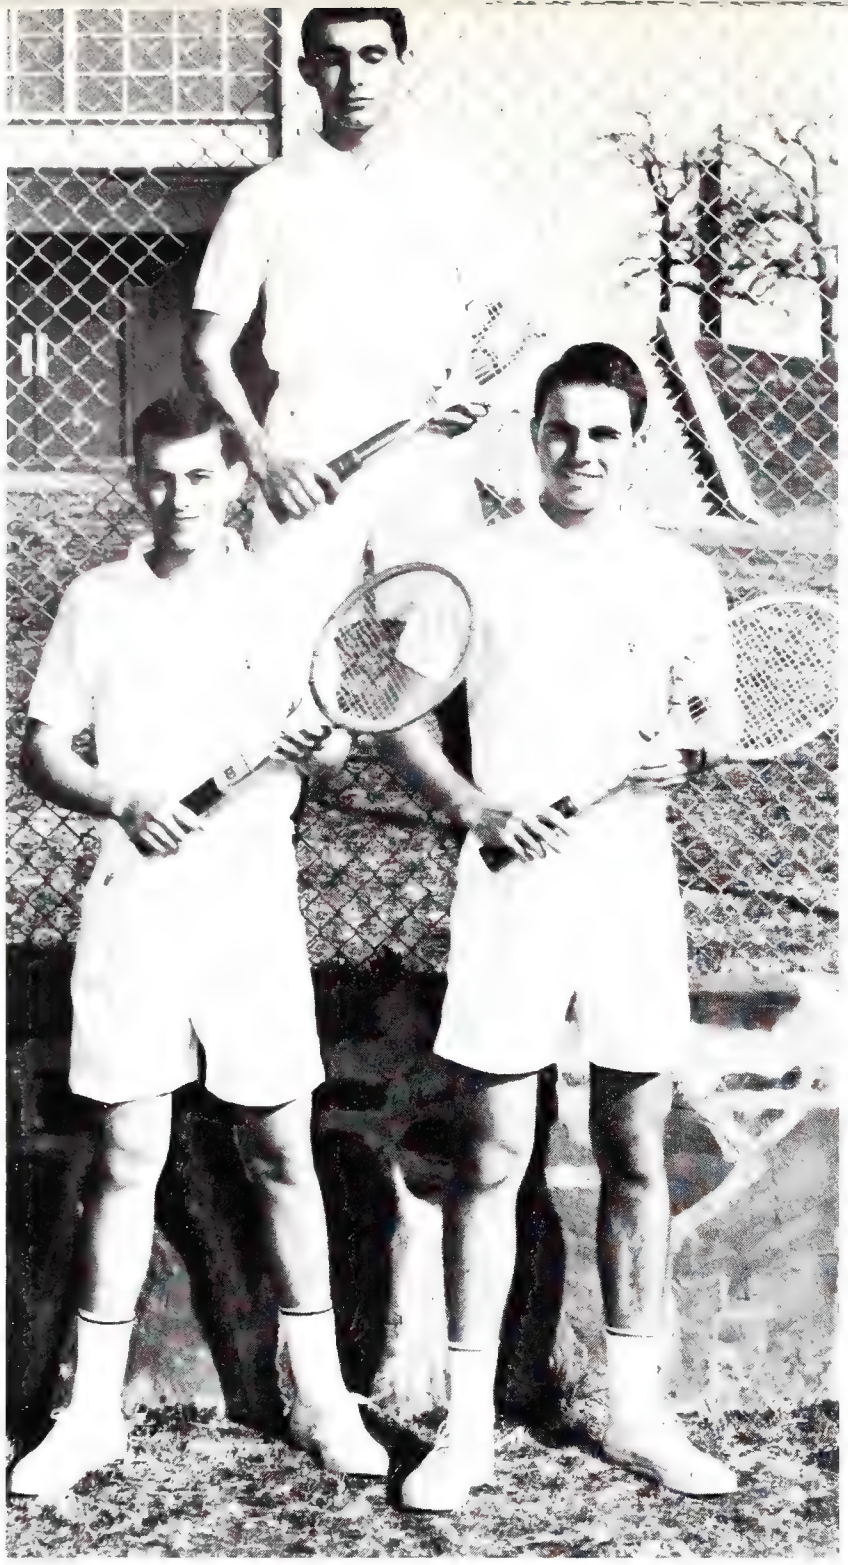

. . . at North Texas this spring rejuvenated sports interests.

Coach Kenneth Bahnsen's young team opened the season with a winning streak of six matches. The Eagles began a rebuilding program during the 1964 season after failing to field a team for official matches in 1963.

Bahnsen's net team is composed of four transfers and one member from the 1962 freshman squad.

Dual matches with such opponents as Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas A&M and Houston were played as a prelude to the Missouri Valley Conference tournament in May.

A former Eagle athlete in the early '50s, Coach Bahnsen began his eighth year at North Texas with a record of 41 wins, 43 losses and six ties.

FRESHMAN TENNIS TEAM

Harmon Caldwell, Bruce Gaines and Paul Snodgrass.

Joe Rigsby, a transfer from Odessa College, opened the 1964 net season with an impressive singles win over Southeastern Oklahoma.

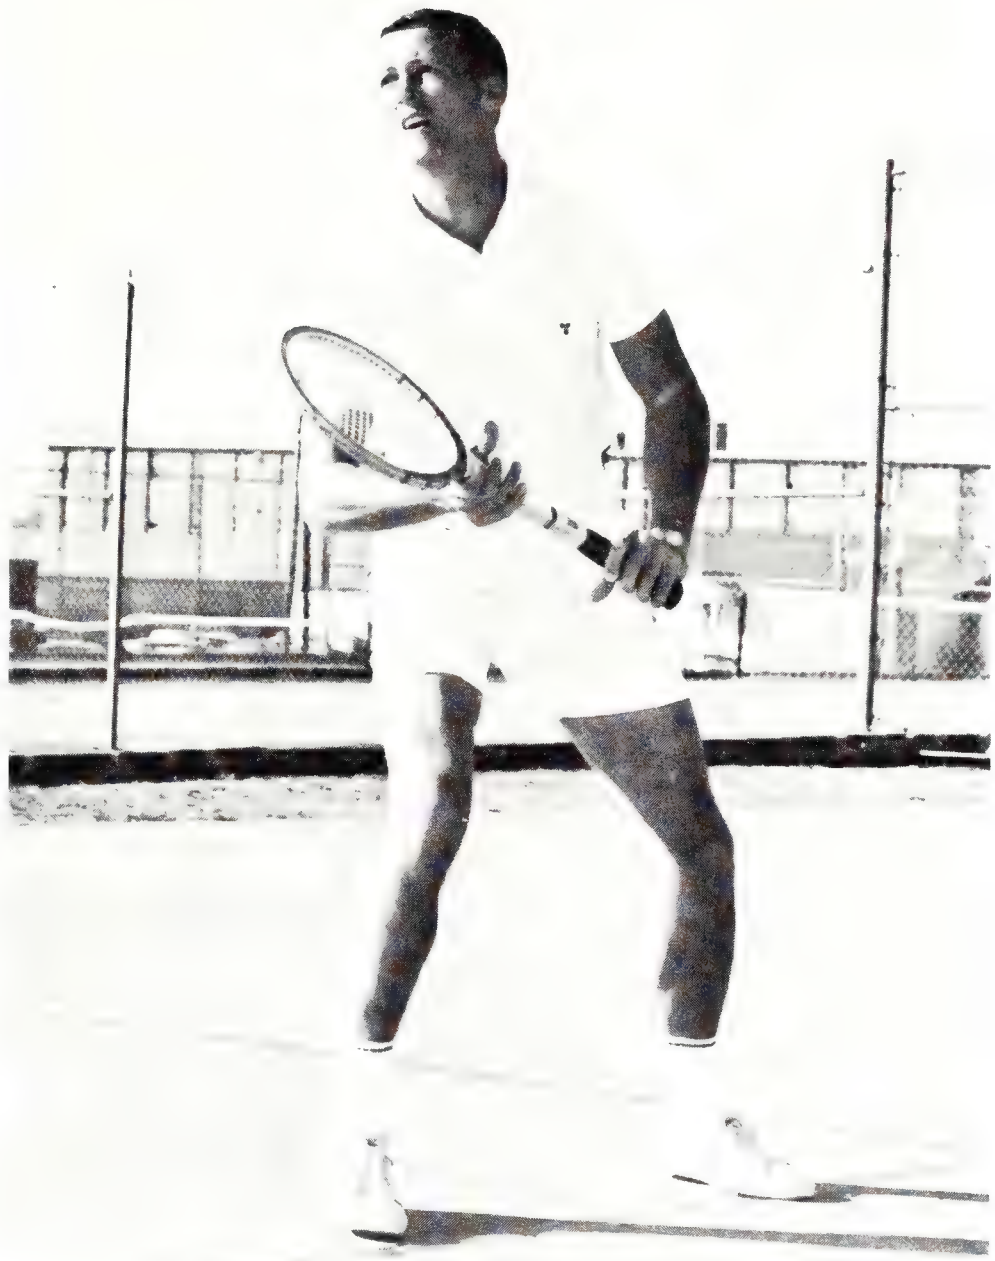

One of four transfers making up the nucleus of the varsity netters, junior Bob Rader earned letters for two seasons at Navarro Junior College.

Three times Texas' high school tennis champion, Charlie Chrane played the past two years at Lubbock Christian College before coming to NTSU.

Sophomore George Helton looms as a prospect on the Eagle varsity net team. He moves up from last year's frosh team.

Southpaw netter Dennis Conner, a member of the Eagles' doubles team, moves up to the North Texas varsity from the 1962 freshman squad.

WRA Sports Spirit, Skill for NT Coeds

While the athletic world may be predominantly male, North Texas females are not content to let the opposite sex monopolize sports.

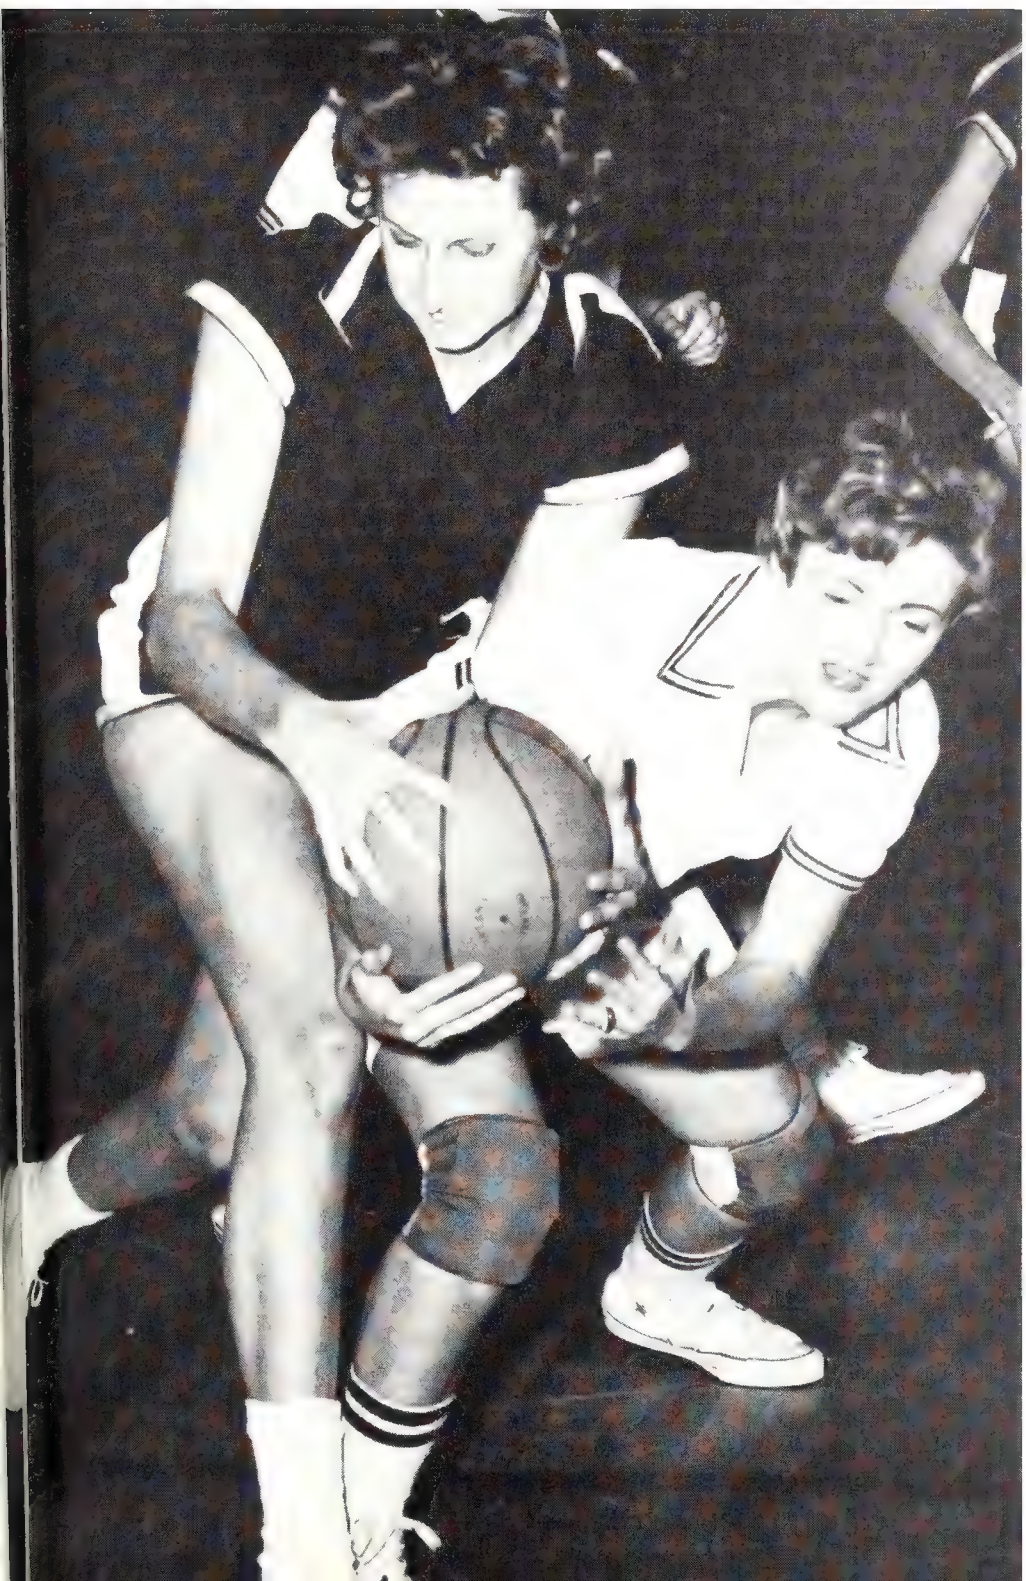

The Women's Recreation Association, coordinating six different sports, is designed to promote participation by North Texas coeds in athletics. During the fall, North Te[illegible]s members played host to the state WRA convention. Delegates from eight colleges and universities heard Dr. Darrell Dunham of the NTSU School of Education faculty deliver the keynote address.

Throughout the year, the WRA sponsored both intramural and extramural coed tournaments. Next year, the association hopes to include hockey in its broadening scope of female athletics.

A forward thrust, a parry, another thrust, and touche! A point. In February, members of the NTSU Fencing Club held their annual tournament.

A variety of movements, equipoise, and finesse gives the fencer a graceful appearance. He must know when to advance and retreat effectively.

A basketball tournament is just one of the sports sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association that allows coeds to compete athletically.

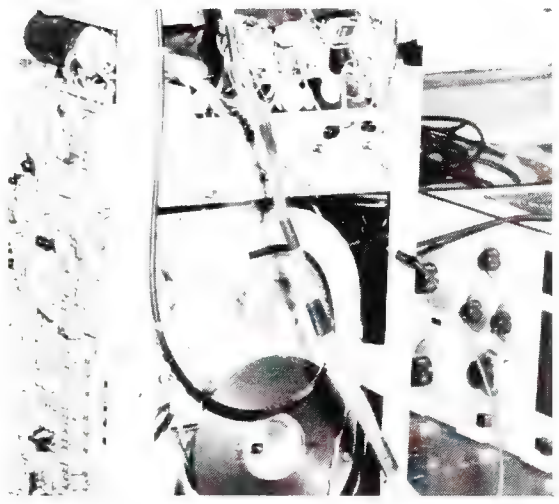

WRA hopes to include extramural hockey—competition with other colleges—in its expanding realm of female athletics.

Deadline Time - - A Fun Time

Once a month a change comes over the YUCCA staff. Beginning usually one week (give or take a day) before a large deadline, an air of hilarity seems to settle over the inhabitants of the cluttered (always) Yucca Office. Amid the scramble of triplicates and pica poles, staffers not only carry on work such as typing, drawing layouts and counting headlines, but plot pranks to play on each other, the Chat staff or just anyone who happens along. Result: mass confusion.

Amazingly enough, we somehow seem to deliver the copy to the publisher on time (granted we sometimes make it within minutes). The cry "we're not gonna make it, ya'll" is always heard when a picture is lost, a layout is found sadly lacking in style or copy somehow gets mangled by our "slot man." But just in time, c'est fini!

As any editor does, I've wondered many times this hectic year just how the staff survives. After all the screaming and hollering is over, however, everyone goes to coffee. (We should drink more coffee.)

Staff spirit was conceived by its members . . . Dick, whose genius for perfection set the pace of the YUCCA . . . Bill, who kept us abreast of the NT world of sports . . . Patricia-B, who provoked howls with ludicrous satire in the midst of thousands of staid copy blocks . . . Bettye, who amused us with tales of student teaching while contacting club presidents . . . Cragg, who turned the pages of the Notre Dame Dome with reverence and immediately scarfed same for his section . . . Carolyn, whose mathematical organization whirled names, pictures and layouts into a superb section . . . Susie, who had the dubious advantage of heading two sections of the book and doing equally well on both . . . Babs, who shuffled through zillions of index cards and kept good humor throughout . . . Suzanne, who tolerated with admirable joviality good-natured jokes about Greeks from a predominantly non-Greek staff . . . Dennard, who pitched in with layout ideas as well as turning out our favorite YUCCA cover . . . Smith Kiker, our adviser, who put up with our spasticity and helped to bolster our spirits with good photography from upstairs . . . this was the nucleus of the YUCCA '64.

Photographically speaking, we had another concentration of talent . . . Jim, who decided if we wanted blacker prints, we'd have blacker prints . . . Sheldon and Mike, who like to sell *YUCCA*s as well as shooting assignments and went over the top in sales during registration . . . W. B., whose enthusiasm amazed and delighted the staff; then we lost him to the Chat . . . Bob, who took time from News Service to take pictures and occasionally write copy for the YUCCA . . . Roy, who joined us at semester as proof man.

And to Jim, Mary Sue, Janet, Patti, Jimmy and Carolyn many, many thanks for helping and serving as assistants on the yearbook.

My personal appreciation must go to the Chat staff for helping the YUCCA people play jokes and create confusion and for donating periodically to our infamous bulletin board. Also, to Larry for being a fun escort at ACP convention time . . . Dome Associate Editor Dave Larsen for helpfulness in aiding to standardize our new format . . . Mrs. Kiker for cookies which kept the staff's appetites under control . . . Walter Adams of Anchor for ironing out staff-publisher problems . . . and Dr. James L. Rogers for advice, copy editing and puns.

And goodbye to UBG—and thanks. As the first organized society of yellow journalism, the coffee drinking club also has left its mark on the YUCCA. Part of the illustrious membership put out the yearbook; the other half (members of a next door publication) tried to prevent its going to press. All in all, it was a fun year—probably one of the best times of our lives.

Special thanks to Marvin Loveless and Frank Burchard for speedy picture delivery/Dean Imogene B. Dickey for late permission/Dean Florence I. Scoular for the loan of the Social Fundamentals Room during Yucca Beauty prelims/Yucca Beauty judges Billy Pope, Mrs. Margaret Cambell, Frank Burchard, Miss Bettye Myers/Dave Brubeck for presenting the Beauties/Carl Marder for helpful hints about the presentation/department heads for cooperation about Yucca Who's Who/ Riley Willey for much-needed advice on typography/ J. D. Hall for accurate and often tightly scheduled form production/News Service personnel Roy Busby, Fred Graham and Mrs. Billie Featherston for contributing to the sanity of a staff which often went seeking hard-to-find info or supplies/A Cappella member Jane Norris who sent photos of the tour to us for production/Tobin Drug for processing color/the Denton Record-Chronicle for supplying prints/Craig Wheeler for climbing on roofs and other out-of-the-way places to "get that picture"/President J. C. Matthews for taking time from a busy schedule to write an open letter for the student body/Anchor Printing and Universal Bookbindery for producing your book — our book — the YUCCA '64.
